Some of these officios to take pains to prevent megucas from witching out, instead of pushing for it to happen. This probably improves life expectancy.

So she aged since her parents got killed and either wished for large breasts or grew into them naturally.

Fairly certain at least one 4koma artist made fun of that...

Well, it's good advice. I do sometimes get frustrated because it feels like I've hit a wall. However, it's not a habit that's easy to break. I mean... I like it when the lines are neat and tidy, but I do realize that sometimes my drawings will feel "flat and lifeless"

So, that criticism is not something that I'm unaware of.

Stealth and wetwork missions, mostly. Which aren't really anything I've featured her in, and she hasn't had the chance to do much in the main quest. She can take most jerkoffs in a fight, too, but she usually ends up scrapping out of her weight class because she hangs around near the Warmaster tier and tends to pick fights if she isn't sure how to handle a situation.

She's suffered somewhat because it took me a long time to get a good feel for her magical abilities and strengths, though now I've got it pretty much nailed down and she'll get to look competent for a change now and again.

I guess I also tend to veer too far from showing her as impressive because it's just not that interesting to read about hypercompetent and flawless characters, so I overcompensate somewhat with the poor girl.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE FALL OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 07/11/14(Fri)09:13:50 No.33332251

"You got 'em?" You shout at Sayaka over your shoulder, over the hungry roar of Schpeltiger's engines. A blinding flash of crimson electricity makes you wince - your Equerry having drawn Blueberry Cheesecake Brownie from its brutal sheath, her grip enough to quicken the red blade with killing lightning. Perched behind Wendy, her cape billowing out behind her, Sayaka offers you a smirk, and a nod.

"I got 'em."

"Then take 'em!"

Even before the reply leaves your lips, your Equerry had already kicked off of Schpeltiger's back seat, with enough force that the massive machine actually bucks a bit in her wake. You hear Wendy curse, at the same time that you catch Sayaka charging into the fray, into the scattered group of pale-faced Magical Girls gripping their weapons with sweating hands.

"My name is Miki Sayaka," You hear her snarl as she lands on both feet. "Eversor. Equerry of the Ninth Officio Assassinorum." Another crackle of crimson electricity, and she points the sword at the heart of their ragged formation. "PREPARE TO FUCKING DEFEND YOURSELVES!"

You almost feel sorry for them, you think as you twist in your seat, facing forward again, to brace yourself just before Schpeltiger barrels through the pitiful barricade they've put up.

Almost.

The barricade all but explodes apart, as everything does when a two-ton wheeled monstrosity with rockets strapped on crashes through it. Bits of splintered metal, wood and barbed wire clatter and spit at your Shield, you having raised it in an attempt to protect yourself and Wendy from the debris.

She murmurs something that sounds like thanks into your ear, but you've no time to answer it as she guns the throttle - powering Schpeltiger through the rest of the barricade and deep into the warehouse district itself.

...Maybe you should look into getting a bike for yourself, you wonder as Wendy manhandles the massive armored bike into a series of turns, each one pressing your harder against her with every tilting swerve.

Certainly not as comfortable as the backseat car rides you're used to, but...well, it definitely has a certain style to it. Maybe something like Mami's Hayabusa? ...No, she already has that, and you don't want to just copy other people. Maybe a Harley, or--

An explosion from somewhere inside the district itself, one loud enough to eclipse Schpeltiger's snarling, jars you out of your line of thought - and you swallow hard and dry as you see a tower of smoke and flame start to rise from where Misaka's warehouse should be.

No. No. Shit, no--

You make to yell at Wendy, panic rising in your chest, to tell her to get this scrapheap masquerading as an ICBM going faster, faster than it could go, before it's too late, before Misaka dies in witchflame like Haruka predicted--

--but you didn't have to. Another curse tearing its way from her gritted teeth, she flexes her double-handed grip on Schpeltiger's handlebars and HAULS - forcing the machine to smash right through a warehouse's iron-sheet wall and clear the other side.

You hold up the Shield again as all manner of debris fly past you, thrown up into momentum's mercy by the bike's unstoppable, inexorable bull-charge fueled by rocket fuel. And Wendy repeats this again - and again - and again, smashing the both of you through three warehouses full of merchandise as she takes the fastest and most direct route to your objective.

The fourth and final warehouse has a ramp, and you briefly wonder if your ex from the States is crazy enough to take it full-speed.

She is. She does.

And at the eighth time that the two-wheeled monstrosity from America crashes through sheet iron, it does so while taking flight - the wide, fang-tracked wheels spinning madly, trying to chew air as it sails forward. You'd have cheered - maybe even yelled a curse or two at the sheer ridiculousness of it all - but you were too busy taking in what Oriko's flunkies have done to Misaka.

Outside, you see what appears to be a melee - one that, by the looks of the pulped magical girl corpses littering the floor - has been going on for a while. Tiny Pete, the armored giant that Misaka had extracted from your Shield and made operational, is locked in combat against what looks like two golems made out of dripping, burning lava, each one nearly as tall as he is.

There was apparently a third, its remains joining the flesh-and-blood ones as cold, brittle coal. The giant had made short work of it with its hammer, but with the giant weapon now also melted to uselessness, he seems to be doing the best he can with his own fists.

Even now you can spot that his gauntlets are slowly being melted with each strike he metes out, as well as each attack he parries from the lava golems. Four Magical Girls - those who seem to have survived their initial encounter with Tiny Pete - are also harrassing the Terminator with gunfire and blasts of caustic white light.

Now, in the split-second before Schpeltiger lands, you have to decide.

What do you do?

[]Help Tiny Pete.
[]Misaka first. You have to get to Misaka first.

You know, I wonder what would happen if we used that password thingie the phone gave us that was strongly implied to refer to Tiny Pete.

This one:
[Armor needs customization first. Inner dimensions made for transhuman build. Have competent tech make necessary adjustments. The password for suit activation, once modifications are complete, is MALLEUS.]

Maybe that would give Tiny Pete a boost in strength or something?

Ofcourse I have absolutely no fucking idea what would actually happen (if anything). Maybe it would help. Or Maybe Tiny Pete would suddenly start summoning chaos gods from WH40K.

I don't think so. Pretty sure there was a Q&A a while back where someone asked Misaka (in other words, Deculture) about the Malleus password, and she had no idea about it. So its not just an on-off switch.

Presumably it does something unique. But again, not sure if this is the proper time to test something when we have no idea what it would actually do. I guess if the message is from Mamal it probably won't do anything too horrible?

>>33332537
We can because misaka modified it. The password is only for modification. The problem is that we have no idea what misaka did to pete, and if its safe to activate in combat and/or with misaka in it

>> ☐ Anonymous 07/11/14(Fri)09:50:42 No.33332576

>>33332537
Well I would presume its helpfull in some way since directly or indirectly, we got that password from Malal.

However I do tend to agree that we should check out if Misaka is inside Tiny Pete before we start experimenting with this, given that we have no idea whatsoever what it would do to her in that case.

If Misaka is inside and Tiny Pete is running on auto-pilot however, then it might well help.

The Schpeltiger lands with a hard, kidney-jarring crunch - and it's only the stench of freshly-exposed viscera hitting your nostrils tells you that Wendy had, in fact, landed the bike on one of the four Magical Girls keeping Tiny Pete from the burning warehouse itself.

The rest immediately rain their gunfire and magical blasts at your direction - but Wendy wheels the bike around in a vicious turn, smearing the corpse underneath it and presenting its broad, armored side to the oncoming volley of projectiles. She forces you to duck, pushing your head down with one elbow as she guns the throttle to dodge a clump of seething, burning lava thrown by one of the lava golems. It splatters thickly against a iron-sheet warehouse wall, the lava immediately eating right through and setting the innards on fire.

"ANY IDEAS?" Wendy all but screams you, her voice gravelly and low, obviously unaccustomed to yelling.

"GET INSIDE THE WAREHOUSE!" You shout back. "FIND MISAKA!" It's here that you worm out of her grip - and she's stunned long enough to skid Schpeltiger into a screeching halt, long enough for you to hop off, your Golden Desert Eagle in hand. You break into a run towards Tiny Pete - holding your Shield up against your face and wincing as you hear the scarred metal take further abuse by blocking gunfire. "I'll deal with these fuckers myself!"

Wendy blinks at you, before shaking her head and hunkering down behind Schpeltiger's handlebars. "...Whatever. Don't get yourself killed!"

And it's with a snarl of engines that Schpeltiger charges into the fray again - very nearly running over another Magical Girl had she not thrown herself out of the way, and out of the reach of Wendy's flashing kitchen knife. Another roar, followed by a thunderous crash of metal giving way, and your ex successfully enters the burning warehouse where your arms dealer should hopefully still be alive inside of.

A part of you wonders if you should trust Wendy with Misaka, but...well, she was eager enough to help you here. She was also amicable enough, despite everything, to agree to what you've planned with Oriko. And she hasn't turned the meeting into a fucking bloody ambush, so that's good too.

Yeah. Maybe you should trust Wendy. For now, at least.

Cursing with every running step you make in these fucking heels - each impact jolting painfully up your knees - you manage to finally scramble behind the Terminator's large, spiked bulk, just before he rocks back from a lava-encrusted punch across his tusked, helmed face.

The smell of engine oil and gunpowder isn't quite enough to overpower the acrid scent of molten metal from him, along with the sharp tang of burnt copper wiring - but even in this state, you know that the towering machine will not stop fighting until he's all but rendered to his component pieces, or destroyed utterly.

Ducking momentarily out of the large, walking cover you've provided yourself, you return fire at Oriko's flunkies with the Desert Golden Eagle, taking your time to aim in the split-seconds between their own shots.

Your first shot sends one of them flying back in a flailing, broken ragdoll, her entire skull and part of her breastbone disintegrating into pink mist and bone splinters.

The second catches another one as she and her mates make to run for cover as well - first hollowing out a kneecap, and then taking the rest of her leg with it. Reducing her to a screaming, shrieking one-legged invalid.

Heh. Just like target practice.

"SERGE--T M--ATSUDA," Tiny Pete suddenly intones through the vox-speakers of his helm, static damage ripping the words apart into near-indecipherability just as he speaks them. "THE CAP--AIN IS. INSIDE. THE WAREHOUSE. TRAPPED."

He blocks another oncoming punch from one of the golems - the heat so immense that you feel your own sweat immediately vaporizing in its searing presence - and sends it sprawling with a brutal one from his partially-melted fist, the fingers already fused together. "PLEASE. MAKE HASTE. RESCUE HER. MORE. WILL. COME."

What I am suggesting is that we leave him to delay the golems. Then once we find Misaka, we summon Pete TO US (away from golems to Chiaki). Then put him in the shield and just flee the whole place on the bike.

That way, if he starts losing, he will get teleported away before he is totally destroyed, leaving open the option of repair.

Funny thing, it doesn't matter how heavy the airframe is if you apply enough thrust.

The MiG-25 was mostly welded steel.

There would probably have been somekind of melee weapon for Tiny Pete in our shields. Heck, since we got Tiny Pete from our shield in the first place, maybe something that would even be designed for him.

And as was pointed out above, Braids has the ability to choose what comes out of the shield, so we would not be at the mercy of a random number generator.

Had we thought of it earlier, we could probably have summoned somekind of bludgeoning weapon from the shield for Pete. Too late now.

You glance towards the ragged hole that Wendy's charge on Schpeltiger had carved right through the warehouse gates, and then back at Tiny Pete - the blackened, lava-scorched giant still looking like a giant armored demon out of hell even with nearly most of his bronze elblems and plating nearly melted away.

Christ, you want to help him get rid of these molten lava bastards, but...you've never heard the Terminator ask for help like this. Almost in the same way that a parent pleads for their child to be rescued first before them.

"SAVE HER!" Tiny Pete bellows, whirling to point one melting gauntlet-encased finger towards the warehouse, just as one of the lava golems takes hold of his other arm - and rips it off of his shoulder, the oversized pauldron attached to it dropping to the ground in a heavy, cement-cracking thud.

The Terminator roars in pain, before slamming his helmed face into the Golem's own. It rocks back on its heels, stunned, before being sent sprawling to the ground once more - courtesy of the Terminator wrenching his severed arm from its grasp and clubbing the golem with it.

...Fuck. Right. Okay. You've gotten most of the Magical Girls out of the way anyway, and if you know how Sayaka is, she'd be on her way right this moment. She'll help him out.

"STAY ALIVE, PETE!" You roar, just as you yourself charge into the flames, shielding your face and eyes with both arms.

Inside, the burning warehouse is...well, it's strangely cold, and strangely not all that burning. You can see the flames licking from the gaps on the walls, but it seems like Misaka has done something to the inner walls to make it fire-retardant, or something.

Probably so that if anything like this happens, the place doesn't immediately go up like a fucking bomb because of all the munitions and explosives stored within.

Yeah. Yeah, that makes sense.

You spot Schpeltiger by the side, its engines left to run idle, ready to leave at the first opportunity. Its rider nowhere to be seen in the dimly-lit, dark warehouse.

Fuck. You keep forgetting just how big this place is. You know Misaka's living quarters is somewhere at the back, beyond the many rows of gun racks and explosive storage canisters. Yeah, she should be there, right? With luck, Wendy's already snatched her up from there and heading towards your direction, towards the exit, or something.

Still, you have to make sure. You make to run forward, gun held at the ready - before just barely managing to dodge a glove-clad fist punching from the shadows, aiming to break your jaw right off your face.

"HOW?" You hear a rage-filled voice screech from the darkness, twisted into near-incomprehensibility by a vox speaker. "YOU WEREN'T SUPPOSED TO BE HERE. NOT UNTIL IT WAS TOO LATE."

Another punch, and this time it slips past your guard, crunching solidly right into your gut. You feel the hot, painful rush of bile surging up your throat - but you choke it down, gritting your teeth as you flip your grip on your gun and smash it into the side of your attacker's face. It connects, making you grin with the sound of solid metal shattering solid plexiglass.

...Plexiglass. A helmet. That means--

Your assailant pushes you back roughly, spitting curses at you - and you barely manage to regain your balance before you start shooting with the Desert Eagle. She dodges the first, ducks under the second, before holding up a scarlet-gloved hand as you make to discharge the third.

--Culexus. It's the red FUCKING Culexus. The one in the video that set all those Magical Girls on fire after blowing their soul gems out.

Seriously, discharging firearms in a weapons depot may not be the smartest thing to do, but the vast majority of the stuff in here really isn't going to explode or really do anything except get damaged if hit by bullets - and the stuff that might react in a volatile manner is far more likely to be set off by the fire anyway.

You answer her the only way you see her fit to be replied with - by shooting her again. There's a wet, juicy crack as her outstretched gloved hand blasts apart in meaty chunks, followed by an abrupt screech of surprised pain and anguish issuing from the Culexus' helm-speakers.

Grasping her now-bleeding, ragged stump of a wrist, she turns tail to run, attempting to run deeper into the darkened warehouse. Calmly, easily, you level the Golden Desert Eagle, aim, and fire again.

The crimson Culexus squawks and falls forward on her face as her right kneecap explodes.

"Misaka knows how to store firearms," you murmur, feeling a cold, icy rage fill your veins, clearing your mind, cleaning your soul. Purifying you as you step forward and over her sprawled form. "She knows how to store explosives. It doesn't fucking work that way."

You pull the trigger again, taking out her other kneecap. Another shriek of pain tearing its way from her helm's mouthpiece, echoing in the otherwise empty warehouse. Another pull, another howling discharge, and her other hand disappears in a pink mist.

It shouldn't be this easy, you find yourself thinking, a voice at the back of your mind. This fucking Culexus just killed a hundred Magical Girls without even breaking a fucking sweat. It shouldn't be this easy. She should've at least tried to shatter your Soul Gem a couple of times instead of talking shit.

Another voice chimes in, this one much less doubtful, explaining how these dildoes obviously didn't expect you coming. Hell, this unfortunate little shit was screeching about it. Not until it's too late, she said - they WERE expecting you to find out, but not until you were too late to do anything about it, left only to kneel beside Misaka's burnt corpse.

...Yeah. So fuck if it shouldn't be this easy. It is. Thanks to Sayaka. To Tiny Pete. To Wendy.

And to Haruka. She's actually useful. Who knew?

You thumb the magazine release button on your Desert Eagle, and the hollow magazine falls to the floor beside the twitching, bleeding Culexus. Reloading quickly, you aim down at your prey's visor. Spying a blue eye staring at you from one of the cracks.

"Get fucked." You growl, before emptying the fresh magazine into the Culexus' helmet, each shot making her torso twitch and jerk as her skull is reduced to pummeled gore inside a bulletproof container.

At the last discharge, it's not the pulping of flesh that you hear, but the breaking of a small glass bauble.

And the corpse at your feet seems to shimmer, before re-establishing itself back into reality as a completely different corpse. One wearing a highschool uniform and a biker's helmet. Ahriman's armband, caked in blood, pinned to her sleeve.

"...Thought there was a Callidus around," Wendy speaks behind you, and you blink as you turn to face her. "Felt someone cloaking their presence around here, but I didn't bother with it."

So she left the Callidus for you to encounter, or something? What the fuck?

"Geeet inside the waaarehouuuse, fiiiind Mihsakuuuuh," Wendy slurs her vowels in an annoying imitation of your barked command earlier, just as she hefts what appears to be a sleeping Misaka swathed in blankets and cradled in her arms. "Did what you asked to, what the fuck did you think? Consider this the fucking exception, though, not the rule. Also rescued her robot dog, too." She cocks her head to the side, where a half-constructed robot dog...thing the size of a huge mastiff is limping on three feet.

Ah. Well...yeah, you did ask her to, yeah. That's good, then.

"...Yeah? Well that's fucking great, Kong, you know how I live for the moment when a Warmaster finally acknowledges my presence." It's here that she passes Misaka to you. "Let's do this AFTER we're out of the burning warehouse full of explodey shit, huh? And you take her. I think she'd be better off waking up with someone familiar, and someone's got to drive Schpeltiger out."

Yeah. That...that makes sense. You holster your Desert Eagle and take Misaka from Wendy - letting the sleeping arms dealer slump against your frame, her chin resting against your shoulder as you support her from below.

"Big Sister..." Misaka murmurs into your shoulder, and you couldn't help but feel Wendy's stare at you as she hears it too.

"...Didn't think you'd be good with kids, Kong." She finally says as the both of you hurry towards the exit, the robot dog following close behind.

That makes two of you, you suppose.

You manage to exit the warehouse - you, Wendy, Misaka, and robot dog - JUST before it explodes, the flames having finally eaten their way through the flame-retardant defenses that Misaka had installed. Surprisingly, it wasn't THAT powerful of an explosion - you were expecting the entire warehouse district to be vaporized in the blast - but it was still loud enough and bright enough to turn the night sky into day for a few moments.

Outside...well, it seems that Tiny Pete had once more lived up to its name as Terminator. Both lava golems joined their brother as brittle, cooling fragments of rock scattered on the ground, while the armored giant himself still stood strong despite most of its armor melted to near-unrecognizability. The remaining Magical Girl you left behind doesn't seem to be around - most likely escaped.

I--" She then catches sight of you and the sleeping arms dealer in your hands, before seemingly wilting in sudden relief. "OH THANK JESUS FUCKING CHRIST YOU'RE BOTH SAFE."

...What? She was worried about you?

Sayaka's eyes widen here, before shaking her head. "W-what? NO! Fuck no! I was...I was worried about Misaka!"

...Really? Huh.

"All thanks to Kong," Wendy murmurs as she switches Schpeltiger off, allowing the overworked beast to cool its engines momentarily. "You're a fucking hero, Warmaster."

You blink at Wendy, before turning towards Sayaka. That's...well, you didn't--

"W-well, forget about that. What happened?" Your Equerry gestures towards the burning warehouse behind you. "The MGs were talking about their Squad Leader still in there, something about making sure the job was done. What'd you find in there?"

Efficiency is tricky with a meguca. To kill the in the first shot you need to pop the gem, and there's no standardised location.

As such efficiency involves disabling their means of locomotion allowing you to pick away at them until you find the gem.

We just need to shoot the head. Or more specifically the brain stem. That's not too hard to locate. Modern helmets can't protect against even weak intermediate rounds such as 5.56 if shot head on, and the .50AE has roughly the same energy as 5.56 at the muzzle with around ~1600 joules so you shouldn't have a problem 1 shotting anyone even if they have a helmet on. Magical barriers notwithstanding. Just like my CS.

It's unlikely.

Assuming we choose to trust Wendy, then a Callidus would be in the best place to identify a callidus trick.

It's also seems unlikely Wendy was working with the assault force, since it was only the involvement of Schpelltiger, Haruka AND our time-stop that got us to where we needed in time.

In addition, it's unlikely they would have time to replace both Cooldown AND Misaka.

Fairly improbable.

A Callidus, you murmur, glancing back towards the burning wreckage of Warehouse #69. A Callidus pretending to be someone else. Should've just cloaked and then tried to shank you from behind, but she had to charge you instead. Didn't exactly work.

"Yeah?" Sayaka smirks here, before making to take Misaka from you. "Alright, come on. You don't look right with such a cute kid in your arms like that, Murderface, it doesn't fit you. Medevac's already on their way, I'll take her off your hands--"

"Nnnn." Misaka, despite clearly still being asleep, seems to shy away from Sayaka's hands, squirming in your grasp and curling her fingers into your costume. Sayaka blinks at this, before stepping back, hands on her hips now. A small, embarassed smile replacing her smirk.

"...Or not. Okay. You take care of her until they get here, then. Meantime I'll report to Mami, she'll want to know about what happened here."

Yeah, sure. It's...uh. Wait. Why is she still sleeping again? You doubt anyone, even a kid at Misaka's age, could sleep through a fire AND an explosion--

"Callidus trick," Wendy volunteers, raising a hand. "It's...it's not drugs or anything. I just gave her a nice dream to keep sleeping in. She'll wake up in an hour or so."

Really? She can do that?

"Dream stuff, remember?" It's here that your ex from America frowns. "What, you forgot AGAIN, Kong?"

No, of course you didn't. Yeah.

It's with your free hand, then, that you make to check for Callidus. You can't be too careful, after all.

Your Soul Gem manifests into its passive form, in its thorny bauble shape, on top of your open palm - and it pulses gently, utilizing your attunement to another Callidus to check. Wendy seems to bristle at this, but says nothing, merely staring at you as you continue to figure out if you're trapped in a Callidus barrier or not.

Thank Christ.

"Could've just asked me," Wendy grumbles. "Didn't need to pulse your fat girlfriend for it."

You heard that, but you ignore it. Instead, you ask her - what dream did she give Misaka? Or is that something you can't ask about?

"...Just one of her big sister taking her to an amusement park." She murmurs after a moment, looking away. "Her watch-wearing dildo of a big sister."

You glance back at the burning warehouse, before hugging Misaka tighter to you.

Yeah, you guess you are that, now.

So much for being the Magical Girl with nothing to lose.

We will have to thank the seer (Haruka?) for this. Maybe get a present.

Interestingly, does this not serve as proof that her visions don't always come true if there is warning. Might make her and Yuma a bit less crazy about that vision where Chiaki kills her now that theres a clear example of us avoiding one of her death visions.

It might be a good idea to grab Kyuubey, our staff (i.e. Midorin, Mami, Kyoko) and the Rank Leaders and have a cards-on-the-table meeting about the repercussions of Siberia (check with Kyuubey first whether they're cleared to know /what/ happened in Siberia), and what you know of Pinkey and your time-looped past selves. There's a good chance that Malal may already have filled Kyuubey in on at last some of it, but having out general and command staff all on the same page of "pink goddess with black eyes = capricious and prone to spontaneous murder" and "me with black wings = DEFCON 1" will cut end-of-the-world response times down.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE FALL OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 07/18/14(Fri)10:39:34 No.33489493

You are a Magical Girl, and it's been a crazy morning.

Lots of stuff happened, none of it something that any sane person would want to wake up to.

The first was a nightmare, where you saw Midori getting murdered by wide-eyed grinning dolls that giggled and called you names.

Then, your Equerry dragging you into a meeting with your ex - to talk about what you planned to do with Oriko, who'd apparently had an entire church full of Magical Girls burned to cinders a couple of hours ago.

And even before you could wrap up the last one, a surprise call from the last Culexus of your Officio had you scrambling to rescue your arms dealer from suffering the same fate.

You managed that last one, though. It came down to the wire, with you being forced to use one of the two Time Stops that the pink-haired demon inside your Shield allowed you to have - but you did it.

You didn't fail someone who was counting on you.

It feels like it's the first time you ever managed something like that. Which, if you'll be honest with yourself, feels a little bit depressing.

But you'll take your victories where you can get them.

>> ☐ Deculture 07/18/14(Fri)10:40:46 No.33489511

>>33489493

The aftermath of the rescue was less of hunting down any remaining flunkies of Oriko's and more of general cleanup. Allowing Sayaka to slip the leash at the barricade had basically ensured that, your Equerry murdering the entire squad of Magical Girls at the barricade and then intercepting two other squads that had been on the way to finish off what the Lava Golems had started. You asked if she left any of them alive, and she looked at you as if you'd just asked her to eat a hobo's ass out with a spoon.

That was a no, of course. She didn't leave any alive. She went for their Soul Gems a moment after she cut their bodies apart.

As for Tiny Pete, Misaka's personal bodyguard - and probably one of your best friends by now, along with Kyoko - you had him carted back to Headquarters through a heavy truck transport, along with the giant limping robot wolf, for immediate repairs and reconstruction.

After what he did - not only holding back Oriko's flunkies long enough for you to rescue Misaka, but also killing THREE Lava Golems on his own - the giant deserved nothing less than the very best. In fact, you'd heard Mami talking to Kyuubey about contacting the Fourth Officio about sending one of their top officers over, for a top repair job. Kyuubey sounded hesitant at that, but Mami winked at you and stressed to the Incubator that it was something you personally asked for. ...He relented after a while, sighing about ballooning expenditures.

As for Wendy and the meeting with the Church, well...your ex took off after making sure you and Misaka were alright, roaring away on Schpeltiger. Mami assured you that even if the meeting was adjourned a bit too quickly, it had ended on a good note - not only did the Ninth Officio and the Church agree on what was to be done with Oriko, but the sudden act of teamwork would also go down well with both organizations' members.

Magical Girl Noir Quest
THE PAPERWORK OF MATSUDA CHAKI

>>33489511

Another meeting, just to make things official with the High Priestess, would probably be likely later this week, but it'll be something that Mami could handle if you chose to attend to something else at the time.

So, not too bad for what could be one of your most exciting mornings ever.

Of course, with the sun up and the day finally beginning as God intended for it to begin - you're now stuck in your office, chained to your desk to attend to paperwork, while your rescued arms dealer snores through the dream Wendy provided for her.

A tall stack of paperwork, just waiting in your IN tray, beside your tupperware-encased breakfast. A breakfast that Midori had quickly and sheepishly pushed into your arms before whispering 'sorry' under her breath and then running away for...well, whatever Callidus instructors do.

You let out a sigh. Hadn't it only been a few hours ago where you were ducking behind an armored giant for cover, leaning out only to blow out some kneecaps with your Desert Eagle? You also managed to actually kill someone this time, a Callidus in a high school uniform that'd been pretending to be the Red Culexus. You shot her clean through the biker helmet masquerading as an Anima Speculum, and you didn't stop shooting until her skull was only scraps of meat and gore leaking through a plexiglass bowl filled with holes.

This is your life now.

What do you do?

[]Get to the paperwork. See what's on your plate, and then start clearing it.
[]Get breakfast out of the way first.
[]Check your schedule, see if you have any more dildory to look forward to today.
[]Other.

Just a guess, but I think that shit happened because Pinky was extremely pissed (about a number of things. Dragging others into timestop, disobeying command to not use deagle, romance, and just being Pinky) but still wanted to keep her promise.

I am sure we will pay for saving Misaka somehow the next time we see her. PROBABLY will be worth it though.

Just remember if we take someone else into timestop beyond our 2nd use the chance of them being aten is quite high.

Maybe, but I have my doubts.

The presence of feathers, the total absence of pinky and the chorus of screaming voices that sounded like Chiaki all strongly hint that the recent craziness is not due to Pinky but rather Homucifer (or Transcendent One as she is called in this story). The dream about Clara Dolls further suggest her influence.

That is also why I figure consulting the three stooges might help. They know little about Pinky, but presumably they would know a lot more about Homucifer/TNO, since in a way she IS us.

You decide to leave the paperwork for now and check on Misaka first. It's not like it's going anywhere anyway - your paperwork will still be there when you get back. You just want to make sure that the arms dealer you rescued from that inferno is alright and in one piece. Not that Wendy herself didn't check or anything, she did - and Sayaka did as well, after your ex left on that beast of a motorcycle of hers. Both of them declared that she was, by all rights, unharmed and unscathed, making your own checking moot as it is.

Still, it couldn't hurt to check again, yeah? Of course it couldn't, you reassure yourself as you slip out from behind your desk, making your way towards the couch. Towards the sleeping Russian who called you her big sister with a big smile on her face.

...Well, she does look alright, from what you can tell without moving her. Besides a few grease smudges on her face and some stains of engine oil on her overalls, your arms dealer looks completely fine. ...It doesn't look like she's comatose or anything, either, as you see her fidget every now and then in between snores. Just like a kid who'd fallen asleep, exhausted after playing a bit too much.

A brief indulgence of your paranoia - courtesy of your Soul Gem and a pulse check - also confirms that this IS the real Misaka - not a Callidus just taking a nap on your couch, waiting for the time to bury a knife in your spine.

You feel guilty about that last bit, but you've already decided that when Oriko's involved, guilt's the least of your worries.

"Big...Big Sister Murderface..." Misaka suddenly murmurs, her voice creaky and thick with sleep, making you jerk back in surprise and very nearly making you drop your Soul Gem on her face. "Misaka...Misaka wishes to ride the bumper cars..."

Bumper cars...? Oh, yeah. Wendy did give her a dream about you taking her to the amusement park. That's...that's really kind of her, really. You should thank her for that--

...Right. Well. Maybe not FOR that. Did she have to make your dream self that lousy with the sexual harrassment?

Anyway. Misaka seems to be fine. You probably don't need to frisk her just in case Oriko's flunkies strapped a bomb to her and hid it under her clothes, or something.

What do you do?

It's not just the bullying or physical abuse though, it's the tears. They learn to think that the hitting is just you caring , but in the wrong way. Emotion suffering is the purest. You draw Moemura in, with sweet words and the promise of more, then you yank back the chain and they stumble down on their knees at your feet. They look up at you, lip and voice quivering in disbelief, surely a joke and in denial then you break them with a single word. Then the tears and the desperate clawing at you with hands. They try to run but can only stumble as you follow along, pour out more and more cutting abuse, of course leveraging all the weaknesses and insecurities you've learned as you lured them in. The worst part is you keep your voice free of emotion, as if reading facts from the dictionary. All up until the little moemura is there on the ledge, pleading with you to stop and take it back or anything, just the slightest indication you care. The last thing she hears as she pulls the trigger is your callous laughter at her suffering and how you won't even savor the tears you drew.

Something like that, she's perfect for it, stuttering voice and insecurity. Prime mark, wonder why pinky isn't all over her.

I have, in fact.
The vast majority are stupid, rash, ill-behaved and ill-tempered.
Very few are violently insane, and very few don't find shy/awkward nerds to be anywhere from 'simply there' to 'cute'.
When one becomes violent, the veritable hive-mind of others recognizes the threat, whether on a conscious or subconscious level, and reacts.
One does not simply stab a girl and get away scot-free.
A guy I knew barely prodded a girl with a pencil and was suspended for three days for it.

And the girl was a bitch nobody particularly liked.
She was more accepted afterwards, interestingly enough.
Once the herd has recognized you as human, it tends to take you in.

Being absurdly over-the-top like that doesn't make it 'realistic', it makes it impossible to believe. That is clearly the product of an addled mind, with serious misconceptions about reality.

People are cruel, sure, but not nearly so many, and not usually anywhere nearly so severely.

Stabbing Yukari hard enough to draw blood would have incited a world of hurt on that girl, physical or not.

Please step outside for a few moments, breathe in some fresh air, and take a minute or two to watch the people around you.

Observe the lack of stab wounds.

If you notice stab wounds, please contact the local authorities.

You reach down to give Misaka a gentle pat on the head, making her distressed frown curl up into a sleepy smile at the contact. Fine. Your arms dealer - and surrogate little sister - is fine. There's no need to worry. Wendy and Sayaka checked her out, and now you did too. There's no need to check any further. She's fine, and she'll probably be pretty eager to find out what happened to her warehouse when she finally wakes up. You'll be here for that at least.

It's with a sigh, then, that you make your way back to your desk, planting your ass wearily down on your high-backed leather chair and nudging yourself closer to your work surface. You give the tower of paperwork one of your patented glares - and when it fails to catch on fire, you sigh again, and lift the entire thing out of your IN tray, to place in front of you. If you're doing this - diving headfirst once more into dildodom - then you're doing it all the way. No excuses. No half-assing it.

You sort out the paperwork, seperating them into similar piles. It takes you half an hour to go through them one by one - and at the very end of it, you are left with five piles in all, and one gilded, gold-embroidered envelope.

The first three piles are typical boring Officio paperwork - equipment requisition, receipts for major purchases, and notifications of recruits graduating from basic training. From what you can tell, and from what you remember from Mami's coaching, you don't really need to do anything with them other than stamp them with your official stamp, to signify that you've looked them through and verified them.

The fourth pile is a set of seven printouts depicting seven Magical Girls' profiles - all Eversors, and all in the same training squad. Apparently they've been marked for discipline and censure, as they've been found to have let in some unauthorized personnel into their squad quarters after curfew. Said unauthorized personnel were in fact older high school boys. Alcohol is believed to be involved - another infraction to add to their already growing list of infractions, and pretty much pushed things over to the brink that it had to be brought to your attention. For you to handle personally.

The fifth pile is...well, a sobering pile. Black envelopes - the kind of envelope no parent should ever receive.

Inside a black envelope, the grieving parent would find: a signed and notarized death certificate of their young daughter, with certain key areas carefully obscured by black ink; a copy of the deceased Magical Girl's insurance policy that the bereaved stood to gain quite a bit from; a bank card containing the deceased's gross earnings from her time of contract to her time of death; and finally, a signed letter from the Warmaster, a letter that would speak well of the departed, about how the Officio would dearly miss such an irreplaceable member of its payroll.

It would also come with a few pithy sayings in an attempt to allay the grieving recipients' souls, along with a nice travel package and a free college scholarship (applicable only when younger siblings are registered as co-dependents).

Twenty-four black envelopes. One for each of the girls that died in Wendy's church.

You needed to sign the letters, apparently. The 'personalized' message were already written in - each one different, and carefully fabricated to sound genuinely sympathetic - all while subtly warning the recipient to grieve in silence.

No need to make a fuss. No need to kick up a racket. Just take the money and grieve. Time heals all wounds, so get to healing.

One of the cold realities of being a Magical Girl this day and age, you think, picking up your pen. ...Idly, you wonder if Oriko's doing the same, right now. Preparing messages to send to the families of the girls she sent to die.

You shake your head again. No, don't think about that right now. Just...focus. Sooner you can get through this the better.

The gilded envelope, of course, is predictably from the Second. No doubt asking you to let go of Kyoko again.

What do you do first?

[]The first three piles. Might as well get through them first.
[]The disciplinary action pile. Might as well start this with a healthy dose of Eversor bullying.

Physical violence, as far as I can tell, is viewed not only as threat to the involved parties, but to the populace as a whole- it goes from a sort of 'not my problem' mindset to a 'potential threat detected, countermeasures deployed' sort of mindset.

No, I don't think it would be effective. The way that the girls died had nothing to do with not following regulations or protocol, or even doing anything wrong.
The way that they died and the lesson you are trying to teach are in no way related, and does not serve to actually teach a lesson except that death can come at any time, so you might as well live it up.
That's the exact opposite of what we want them to learn.

I think the idea behind the complaint is that while generally speaking you need to screw up somehow in order to die as a meguca, in this case that did not happen. Which also means that in this case there is no "don't be like this"-lesson in the punishment, since the dead did not screw up and were just accidental victims.

Still, I don't think its all that big of a deal. Assuming the girls are not total sociopaths, seeing grieving families will likely be a nasty punishment anyway. Its just not as fitting a punishment as it might first seem once you think it through.

The control is subtle, and not quite full possession, but given time, it might be that it could become a permanent bond.

It's likely she's using Oriko's hatred of Chiaki as a bridge to control her. Which is why Kirika is potentially such a powerful counter, because it puts what Ahriman wants at odds with what Oriko wants.

You pull out your empty metal ashtray from one of your desk drawers and plant it on the desk surface - and it's as you light up a cigarette that you start with the black envelopes. Taking your time not only to sign your name, but also to read through each envelope's contents.

No, you can't bring their daughters back, or sweeten the deal they're already getting - you doubt the money really makes that much of a difference anyway, when you've lost someone like that - but at least you're doing your best to respect their passing.

By taking each envelope as seriously as they're supposed to be - no mere pieces of paperwork to sign and then hand over to someone else, but as the last boon a Magical Girl can grant their families after they've gone.

By the time you've finished signing and re-sealing the last Black Envelope, the better part of an hour's gone past, and your ashtray is sporting ten spent cigarette butts swimming in black ash.

It's also around the tenth Black Envelope that Misaka slowly clambered out of bed, smacking her lips and rubbing her still-closed eyes - before trundling over to you and climbing up onto your chair.

You could only blink as she curled up on your lap, like some sort of oversized bipedal cat - never once opening her eyes fully, nor giving any evidence that she was at any point fully awake or aware of what was happening. The black leather boss chair is certainly big enough to accommodate you, sure, but...

Well, she did sneeze from the cigarette smoke you've been inhaling, so you had to kill the one you were smoking and cease for the rest of the duration. Grinding out a half-spent one amongst its burned-out brethren, before continuing on your quest to defeat paperwork.

I WILL PT YOU ALL UNTIL YOU FUCKING DIE
UNTIL YOUR ASSHOLES ARE SUCKING BUTTERMILK

>>33493108

It's here, then, as you put your pen down and absentmindedly run your fingers through Misaka's hair - giving the pile of Black Envelopes a wary glance - that an idea suddenly hits you. An idea that'd take care of the Black Envelopes AND discipline a bunch of Eversors that had the smart idea to let some unauthorized personnel walk in.

Your first instinct is to call Sayaka up to bring the Eversors in for censure, but you remember that she woudln't be in until after lunch - self-training and meditation, she'd said. That would leave Kyoko. Officio comms placed her at one of the Eversor training halls, apparently taking care of newbie training.

"Yo, Murderface! What's up?" Kyoko greets you from your laptop's screen, all smiles and cheer as usual - that is, until she turns back towards her trainees, all of whom had been tasked to run laps around the large, expansive training hall. All of whom looked just about ready to just drop, tears streaking down their faces besides sweat.

"DID I TELL YOU FUCKERS TO SLOW DOWN?!" Your best friend roars. "NO CRYING! NO BLUBBERING! KEEP RUNNING! THIS IS PT! I'LL PT YOU ALL UNTIL YOU FUCKING DIE!"

Even from here, you can feel the fear coming from the trainees. No, not fear - sheer, sphincter-clenching terror. "FUCKING PT YOU ALL UNTIL YOUR ASSHOLES ARE SUCKING BUTTERMILK!"

A moment more, and the red-haired Eversor turns back to you, grinning as she wipes her own brow clean of sweat. "Sorry about that! Sayaka-chan wanted me to take over for today, and she didn't want me to be soft on 'em! Anyway, yeah, what's up?"

[]I think you can go easy with them a bit. They're just trainees still, after all.

Magical Juggernaut Heather Crunch versus Patient Gardener Dahlia Marigold

...So this is it, huh?

I was expecting something more GRAND and MAJESTIC for the Seventh. Like the Taj Mahal.

Not some Chinese monastery. It's not even that big. And it's certainly not that fancy, either. Nice decor, though.

I am even FURTHER let down with the almost total silence of this place. I do NOT enjoy silence. And it speaks volumes about a TOTAL LACK of kung fu fighting. Truly, TRULY disappointing.

BUT... All is not yet lost! For this humblest of sanctuaries can yet redeem itself! By assisting ME, Heather Crunch, in... In...

...I don't know what it is, but I have the UTMOST CONFIDENCE that they will know what it is I must be assisted with! A confidence expressed with my cocksure stride through the main entrance, my posture one of LIMITLESS CHARISMA as I enter the foyer! My SMILE, as I come face to face with the Spiritual Liege, BLINDING in its-

"Who you?" she snaps, -snaps-, at me. "What you doing here?"

I pound my fist to my chest and speak clearly, "I am Heather Crunch, Eversor Rank Leader of the Sixth Officio, and I have come seeking guidance!"

"Go away! You two hour early!" Hah! Like that's a good enough reason to delay!

"I am being PUNCTUAL! It is a VERY GOOD QUALITY for someone like me to exhibit!" THE CRUNCH TRAIN IS NEVER LATE!

She covers her ears. "Aiyah!" she shrieks, "Shut up, noisy girl, you give Xiaomei headache! You sit outside and wait!" She points back the way I came. BUT I CANNOT GO BACK, ONLY FORWARD!

"JUSTICE DOES NOT WAIT FOR-"

"Outside! Now!" she cuts me off. My voice is louder, yet hers manages to rise above it somehow!

"But-"

"You not listen! It one of many problems you have! Go outside and sit!"

But I must put my foot down! I cannot wait any longer! "I seek training RIGHT N-"

"Enough! This your training! Sit outside!"

...You should have said so in the first place!

I take my leave and seat myself on the polished wooden floor. If sitting is all that it takes, then HEATHER CRUNCH WILL SIT! Still as a statue, quiet as the TINIEST MOUSE!

...It doesn't feel like a challenge though. It's too easy. I could be -doing things- while sitting. Important things such as even MORE training! Or making AMENDS to those who I have WRONGED! And yet I can do NONE OF THESE THINGS SITTING DOWN! It feels so wasteful!

I stare intently at my reflection in the polished wooden floor, thinking deeply. Wondering what I should devote myself to doing during this ordeal...

Aha, I have it now! I shall compose an -anthem-, an anthem to ME! To honor my GREATNESS for when I have completed these trials and been born anew!

I can see it now... A sweeping orchestra. The opening replete with violins and trombones. Trumpeters blow their horns as the pace picks up. Drummers march and cymbals clash! THUNDER RUMBLES AND THE GROUND ITSELF SHAKES!

"SAVE US HEATHER CRUUUUUUNCH, hmm hmm hmm hmm hmmmmmmmmmmmmmmm!" The lyrics need some work, but it's a start. So next would be-

"Aiyaaaaah! Stupid girl not know when to shut mouth!"

I know it's not that great without the instruments, but that is unnecessarily harsh. I must explain myself clearly to the Spiritual Liege, and I do so, stating, "I haven't finished it yet, BUT WHEN I DO IT WILL BE GLOR-"

"Xiaomei not care!" she interrupts. Why does she keep doing that? "You go outside, work with Dahlia! Put stupid girl like you to use!" The girl extends a finger to the east, to an unremarkable door. I suppose that means this person is outside, then.

"YES, MA'AM!" I call out, saluting sharply! Then I turn on my heel and MARCH outside the way I was showed, EAGER to learn what this Dahlia person would teach!

"You do everything she say!" she calls after me, then yells, "And be nice or Xiaomei make you so sorry!"

The smell of flowers ASSAULTS my nostrils as I step outside. A field of flowers fills my far-seeing faculties with fancy fragrances. Somebody, somewhere, has TOILED LABORIOUSLY to create such a splendor.

But it -still- pales in comparison to ME!

"So yo'uh the one givin' Plum-Blossom a hahd tahme," a voice nearby drawls slowly. Walking out from behind a row of plants is a woman in a sundress and a straw hat. Even for one such as myself, it takes a moment to put together what she's saying.

"Are you Dahlia?" is my cautious inquiry.

"Ah'd prefuh ef yew cawlled meh Miss Marehgold," she says back, a folded parasol in her hand. I believe she just asked me to call her Miss Marigold.

I stand tall and bellow -proudly-, "I am Heather Crunch, Eversor Rank Leader of the Sixth Officio! It is -nice- to meet you, Miss Marigold!"

And Miss Marigold is examining me, scrutinizing me like a fine work of art! "Hmm..." she muses, eyes bright, "Ah think Ah see what needs tah beh duhne."

...Oh! Impressive! I am -awestruck-, for I did NOT expect to find the answers I sought on the first day! "Amazing..."

"But befo'ah that," she says, holding up a hand to my hat, "Ah can't haylp but notice the flowahs in yo'ah hat."

Haha! She likes the hat! "It is a VERY nice hat, is it not?" I boast.

"Mmhmm..."

...She's not looking at the hat, is she? As though her voice came from far away, Miss Marigold tells me, "Roses symbahlize beauty. Deep pink ones lahke these mean 'appreciation' and 'gratitude'." She looks back to me, smiling, "Es the'uh somethin' yo'uh grateful foh, Miss Crunch?"

They just came with the costume... But she looks like she wants a response, so I proclaim, "I am grateful for this chance to redeem myself, to become a better person and make RIGHT what I have wronged!"

Miss Marigold keeps smiling even as she says, "Is that all? How disappointin', Miss Crunch."

[3/8]

"Disappointin'?!" Have I already failed?

She shakes her head, speaking reassuringly, "Yew shouldn't worreh about it. Shall weh get stahted?"

Without waiting for reply, she turns about and heads away. I quickly follow behind, deeper and deeper into the maze of plants.

I think I saw some of them move.

"Yo'uh task foh the dhey es to pull weeds," Miss Marigold's voice -snaps- me out of my reverie, and I dutifully listen to her instructions. "They'ah resiliehnt thangs, so yew need to te'ah they'um out bah the root."

I grin widely and salute smartly, and -then- I reply loudly, “Understood! I will –not- let you down!”

"Good, good." She sounds pleased. "Ah’ll beh back come evenh'nin to evalhuate yo'ah progress." With the task given, Miss Marigold leaves me by myself.

And thusly, THIS is how Heather Crunch works towards her redemption! Kneeling in the muck and getting her hands dirty! The sun blazing overhead! The tenacious weeds hiding their roots deep underground to escape the HANDS OF JUSTICE! HA! I wouldn’t have it any other way!

As the lady informed me, a PLAGUE of invasive weeds invaded this Eden. Perhaps the task was simply too arduous for someone of her delicate sensibilities. Perhaps it is fate – fate that I, Heather Crunch, restore this field to its pristine glory! Though the earth tries to swallow me, and dirties my wondrous garments, I will not relent! I grasp the offending plants near the base and RIP them out of the ground. I HURL them behind me, into an open space. It grows and swells into a pile, as I DIG OUT the most stubborn weeds by the roots. I am the EPITOME of CAUTION as I DUTIFULLY AVOID harming Miss Marigold’s plants.

My hands are grimy and disgusting. And yet it is FINE! It is absolutely fine for me, for I can already –feel- myself becoming a better person. Better than yesterday, better than I was a minute ago, better and better every second, ALWAYS STRIVING FORWARD! NOTHING STOPS THE CR-

I barely felt anything while my face was pressed into the mud. And in spite of how much I struggled, I could not pull myself up! I try to wrench the hand off of me, and yet it WILL NOT BUDGE! WHO could feasibly keep Heather Crunch down?!

"Ah must apolahgize fo'ah mah rudeness," comes Dahlia's drawling voice, "but Ah needed yew to stop tearin' up mah sunflowahs, and yew didn't seem to he'ah meh shoutin'."

Miss Marigold pulls me back up - she's got a really strong grip - and after wiping the dirt from my eyes, I survey the damages. I did not realize it until it was pointed out, but these are -not- dandelions I was pulling. The is a rather conspicuous amount of upturned soil in this sunflower patch I was just in. How mortifying! And here I was so -proud- of myself earlier.

I try to apologize, and yet, "I did not intend to do that," is the best I can give.

Miss Marigold believes me, reassuring me, "Ah'm sure yew didn't. We'll try agaihn tomorra'."

Thank you. "Tha... That would be nice, yes." That was not a thank you. Say thank you! SAY THANK YOU!

"He'ah, please allow me to show yew the way out." I can't tell if she's offering to show me out of here, or demanding it. I'd rather not dwell on it, so I nod along for now.

She's quiet the whole way back, and I don't really have anything to say. Not during the walk. Not when we return to the temple. Not when she waves me off.

The whole day feels -wasted- upon me. I have FAILED at improving myself, and I have NOT done any good. This has been a decidedly UNGLORIOUS day in my life, and it is starting to bother me. I need to do something to clear my head.

I think I'll run around town. Perhaps -there- I can find somebody to assist. Or perhaps some time out of the stifling sanctuary environment will help me clear my head. Yeah, I'll be able to focus better after that.

It is as I enter the nearby town that a CHILL runs down my spine.

How... How odd. And foreboding. It feels as though I am being followed. And -yet-, when I turn to look around, I see absolutely nothing there. Either things are really starting to get to me, or somebody is REEEALLY good at stalking me. And that I am being stalked by somebody.

I start jogging away, trying not to look suspicious, to see if the feeling persists. One block, two, three... It's still there. Even in the middle of this almost empty street, with little more than a few shops and a white van, I still feel as though I am being pursued. I hear no engines over the relative quietness, only my own heart thumping at a nameless dread.

...Waaaaait, that's an unmarked van. This is exceedingly suspicious-

The back doors of said van FLING open as a pair of people pop out! Pink-haired twins in china dresses, arms outstretched and beckoning me into the dark interior of the vehicle.

"Heyyyy, Mighty Heroine Heather Crunch!" teases one of them in a cheerful voice that sets me on edge, "there's candy in our van!"

...What? I try not to show any confusion on my face, as I expected her to say something more sinister for... I don't know why.

The other girl, a demure looking one, adds, "It would be lovely if you'd join us." Both of them gesturing towards the van. It's rather obvious that they want me to get inside, but to what ends?

I'm getting a feeling of intense bad vibes from this. Something horrible likely awaits if I step inside. Something terrible. Something scarring.

Something that cannot be allowed to go unchecked. I couldn't live with myself if I chickened out here and somebody else suffered for it. Heather Crunch is NOT going to sit idly by when evil sits in plain sight!

And I must shamefully admit to myself, I'm rather excited!

"Haha!" I give my best smile as I laugh some confidence back into myself. "Know today that -you-" I gesticulate towards the both of them as I clamber inside, "have bitten off FAR MORE than you can chew!"

One of them has the -gall- to giggle, to which I make a show of gritting my teeth! Grrrr! She's the one that climbs in after me and shuts the doors, trapping me in the lightless interior. It is shortly afterwards that the engine revs to life, followed by a sensation of movement as the vehicle starts moving.

Yes, bring me to your secret base. Your wicked schemes will not avail you today! Not while Heather Crunch is here to stop you!

-dink-

"Oh, poo."

There's the familiar sensation of something sharp being shoved into my arm, and then being -repelled- by my UNBREAKABLE RESOLVE. I GLARE accusingly at the direction of the offender, whose dim outline shows an easily recognizable implement in her hands, minus the tip.

"Did you just try to jab me with a syringe?" I query ANGRILY.

"Is it too late to say no?" she asks in return. Interesting.

"...Not really," I reassure her, wagging my finger in her grinning face, "but it would be EXCEEDINGLY SUSPICIOUS if you did."

That didn't sound natural, though. Best to change the subject.

"So, WHERE is the promised candy?" I ask, as though it were exceedingly important. The grinning girl in the china dress pulls out a small capsule from somewhere and holds it up for me to see. I can almost make out what look like a skull and crossbones on its surprisingly large surface.

"It's in this pill right here~," she chimes.

I fold my arms and make a show of pouting. "I don't like pills," I say firmly.

"It's science candy," is her response as she conceals the skull with her fingers.

"VERY WELL!" I yell, giving the appearance of appeasement as I hold out my hand, "Give it here!" I don't even look at it as I pop it into my mouth.

The fiendish girl titters, "Gosh, I didn't think it'd be so easy," while rifling through a sack for what are undoubtedly terrible implements. Yes. Let them think that I am going along with it. That they have the upper hand. That I am not READY for them!

>> ☐ Attarou 07/18/14(Fri)15:19:42 No.33493604

I discretely spit the offending thing into my hand, and conceal it in a pocket.

They are in for a VERY rude awakening! It's only a matter of time before the Crunch Train plows RIGHT through them!

Thanks to Deculture for letting me write
Thanks to Cooldown for letting me use some of her characters and coming up with Heather trying to compose her own anthem and being sent to work with Miss Marigold. And accent consulting on Miss Marigold. And the unmarked van/china dresses part. That was also her idea.

This was mentioned a couple of times:
"Dildoes can teach Chiaki how to Gun Kata really well, and maxing out your affinity with her gets you a neat surprise."

So, what do we need to actually do in order to learn Gun Kata and max our affinity? Are we well on our way to becoming dildoish enough, or do we need to do a few more threads of paperwork?

For Braids, you get better Shield control (along with the vehicles you store in your Shield). Murderface is a bit of a spoiler, but let's say it's going to involve controlling the bad side effects of the procedure and Golden Weapon usage.

I think Dildoes is the one with the knowledge to operate vehicles. Or atleast Dildoes was the one who knew how to fly the MiG.

Braids has telekinesis, (so she can control vehicles and such remotely, such as when she levitated the MiG in mid-air, allowing it to launch off without a runway).

Most of a story is the actual writing. Deculture could send me all his notes and my MGNQ would be absolute garbage. If attarou wrote it and it's enjoyable (which it is, in my opinion) then he can claim it as his no problem. Since this is mostly about the Heather Crunch capslock train anyway, it's not really accurate to imply he didn't contribute the lion's share of the work into this piece.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE FALL OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 07/19/14(Sat)10:19:48 No.33512323

You tell your red-haired best friend about why you called her up. Specifically, about the Eversor squad you're meant to discipline. Does she know anything about them, why they're marked for censure?

"Aw, you're on paperwork duty again, huh? Man, that's rough. I literally can't think of anything more boring than paperwork." Kyoko shoots you a sympathetic look here, enough that you start to actually feel even more miserable for yourself. "Dunno why you don't just have Mami do it all for you, really. Or maybe Midorin, I bet she'd be more than happy to get all of that nasty stuff handled for ya!"

...You'll think about it, sure, but for now it's on your plate and you're dealing with it. Anyway, about that squad...?

"Ya try and help the watch-wearing dildo take the watch off but she's the one buyin' more rolexes. I don't get it." Kyoko mumbles underneath her breath, rolling her eyes, before grinning at you again as you frown at her. "Anyway, yeah, that's Heartcatch Squad. Fresh contracts that got out of basic two weeks ago, and now they're one week into the Eversor program." It's here that the red-haired Eversor takes a swig from a water bottle. "Nothin' really strange about 'em, just that Sayaka thought they were one of her more promisin' squads out of the lot until they screwed up."

>> ☐ Deculture 07/19/14(Sat)10:22:03 No.33512341

'Thought'?

"Yeah." Kyoko nods. "I mean, well, ya know how Sayaka-chan is, right? Get her mad once an' she'll think you can't do anything right in your life, forever?" She shakes her head. "Heartcatch Squad really pissed her off when they snuck in some dudes into their squad quarters. That's like, ten Officio rule violations right there, probably fifteen if you're gonna be anal about it. We also found alcohol on the guys, too, along with condoms and junk food and stuff like that." Another shake of the head, this time followed by a grimace. "Gotta tell ya, if I hadn't been there when Sayaka found them...well, you'd probably have seven more Black Envelopes to fill out, I bet."

That's...well, that's a bit extreme, isn't it? Surely Sayaka isn't that much of a hardass? These are still newbies, but--

"Well, maybe NOT to that extent, but it'd have been really bad." Kyoko frowns. "Sayaka-chan's the kind of person who really takes this thing seriously, yeah? She's not doin' this because it's fun for her or something, but because she wants all the Eversors that come from the Ninth to be, like, world-class. Top of their game. Not just over here, but any other Officio. Better'n the Sixth, the Eighth, the Second...probably even the First, but I think that's crazy. Don't tell her I said that, though."

Kyoko furtively looks around, as if expecting a blue-haired demon to pop out of nowhere, before smiling back at you sheepishly. "Anyway, I think what really got her this time was that they did this literally AFTER she praised Heartcatch Squad among all the other training squads."

...Ouch.

We are not Kharn. So what Kharn would have done is neither here nor there. While I would value Kyoko's opinion on the matter, I don't think we could stop her from giving it if we tried.

As Murderface we are no stranger to alcohol and the breaking of rules.

Of course, the difference is that we didn't actually get caught, and these suckers got caught pretty.

Then again, I cannot imagine a GIRLS ONLY organization without massive amounts of gossip/

For punishment, I've got a few ideas.

Free time/Leave indefinitely suspended. Their soul gems are to be confiscated and bodies kept in cold storage when not training or on duty.
If they do not immediately submit themselves to their given escorts after an assignment, their pay will be docked per paycheck for every half-hour they are unaccounted for. If one is missing, they will all suffer the one's punishment.
They will have the chance to appeal for a lighter punishment on two violations, which shall be reviewed by their rank leader. If insufficient justification and/or supporting evidence is presented (Trying to weasel out of further punishment) their appeal will be denied and punishment may be increased.
Their punishment will last for 4 weeks, but may be lessened or extended on the word of their rank leader based on their behavior, though the final say will go to the Warmaster.

Hnh. Well, Sayaka basically bitching herself to an early grave aside, what would Kyoko do if she was in your shoes? What kind of punishment would she hand out to Heartcatch Squad?

"Eh? What would I do?" Kyoko blinks, pointing at herself. She frowns in contemplation here, brow furrowing as she crosses her arms over her sports bra-clad chest.

"Well...community service, for a start? Pickin' up garbage around the town, an' then helping with Housekeeping in the Officio. Give 'em a week, maybe two. After that, another week of cafeteria duty washin' dishes and assistin' the cooks. Then suspend leave rights for two weeks."

That's how she'd punish them, then?

"It's how I'd do it, yeah. I mean, yeah, what they did was really stupid, but then again..." Kyoko shrugs. "It's their first offense, an' they ARE still newbies, Murderface. Everyone's done something stupid while still gettin' used to the costume an' the contract. I've done stuff, Kharn's done a LOT of stuff...I bet Sayaka-chan's done stuff too, although she always clams up whenever I try and ask." She nods again, opening her one eye, staring right at you. "Anyway, yeah, I think they should just get stuck with some dirty grunt duty, just to make sure it really sinks in that what they did was wrong, but nothing...permanent, you know? Everyone deserves a second chance to clean up and do things right, is what I'm saying."

...Yeah. Maybe.

What about Kharn? What would your predecessor have done?

"Kharn?" Kyoko blinks again. "Uh, well, I don't pretend to know what she's completely about, but..." The red-haired Eversor reaches up to scratch the back of her head.

Alright. That's...yeah, that's enough. You can probably imagine the rest. You don't need to know more.

"Yeah, that's...Kharn was really something else." Kyoko shakes her head, smiling in relief. "We're really glad you're not turning out exactly like her, ya know!"

Is that right?

Well. Now you know what they would've done, at least.

Is there anything else you want to ask? While you have no doubt Kyoko would talk to you until sundown, you can see she's also itching to get back to training.

I could see it being bad for morale when it becomes common knowledge that as far as the Warmaster is concerned, letting their parents and loved ones know they died is such a chore that its used as punishment duty and done by those that screw up their jobs badly enough to deserve punishment.

We already had Sayaka previously complain about the fact that we don't remember the dead (even if its not really our fault).

Is it really wise to basically let everyone know that if they die in the line of duty, their parents will be informed of their deaths by the first rulebreaker the Warmaster manages to find, rather than having tha matter be treated with dignity and respect.

Indeed, making mortuary duty a punishment only implies that it's something that is brushed off on those who can't do their normal jobs without screwing up. Telling loved ones that their daughters are dead is a duty reserved for those with the proper emotional and professional training, who can offer a shoulder to lean on or punch on if need be. It is NOT a job for fuck-ups, and is NOT to be used as a punishment.

Please, let's drop this line of discussion and get back to more normal forms of punishment like kneecapping, or having Mami tell them she's disappointed in them.

As opposed to just sending the envelopes via mail? You think making girls who messed up deliver those as a character-building-exercise is more offending than getting envelope that your son/daughter died?

For fucks sake, anon, being the one who came up with that punishment idea in the last thread, I didn't see it as much as punishment as more of brush with mortality. Something that usually makes people think whatever they want it or not and I think more than physical punishment or speech by Chiaki that would be rather out of character, showing them how they might end up and making them re-evaluate their own opinions about who they are now is the better way.

The reason why we're handing out this mission to them is to drive home to possible consequences when regulations are flouted. One of the reasons why they're getting this is because they're a new squad for whom the need for security has yet to sink in. That and they appear to be a promising squad.

There is a connection that they are magical girls, you fucktard. It is to remind them that being meguca is serious business.s Yes it can fucking get you any time. Yes, if the girls who died in the church were better magical girls maybe they would have avoided or survived what happened.

That doesn't make what you just said any less fucking retarded and far-fetched.

That they're handing out the church shit is unnecessary information. All that matters is that they see what will happen if they don't take their new lease on life as serious as the fucking grave.

The point is, if they don't cut the shit, follow the rules, and become the best magical girl they can, that 'might get killed' becomes a 'Write out your own black letter.'

Basically, timelines and universes died because of Madoka, so her "karmic influence" or whatever quickly began to grow in signifigance as a result.

Because of Homura fucking with the universe, Madoka basically became the center of the universe or somesuch craziness.

I'll admit I mixed some things up, but please try to understand where I'm coming from.

How about this: show them the letters? Or maybe take them to that "wall of dead girls" we have in HQ? It would show them that many people have died for far less than what they did, and wouldn't involve grieving families.

Well, just one thing more before you'll let her go, then. Since you can see how she's dying to run her trainees into the ground.

"Hah!" Kyoko guffaws, before looking back at the gasping, wheezing trainees limping through their laps. "Naw, it just looks that way, but this is actually the easy part of the Eversor program."

'Easy'?

"Yeah! See, when you're still freshly contracted, your body's still adjusting to being a Magical Girl and stuff. Sure, you can hit harder and run faster, but since you've been used to your body's limitations for your entire life, your brain thinks that you're at your limit - even when you're really not. So you get wheezy and exhausted and sweat a whole lot because your brain is tellin' you that you gotta slow down or you'll die. "

She gestures towards the tableau behind her. "Part of the Eversor program's to train that impulse outta you, to get through that mental barrier so you can fight longer and fight harder and do all kinds of crazy stuff."

Huh. That's...well. That still sounds pretty brutal, though, you note as one of the trainees suddenly totter off the track, one hand clamped over the mouth - probably rushing off-camera to throw up.

"Well, I guess it sorta is? But it's really basic stuff, so it's not really all that hard. Just takes a bit of willpower." A sticky, splashing sound, and Kyoko turns to the side, where the trainee had staggered off to. "There, see?! That's why we make you bring your own fucking buckets! Sharing is unhygienic and super GROSS!"

...Right. Well, about what you wanted to ask her about...

"Yeah? What is it, Murderface?"

And it's here that you share your idea of punishment with the Eversor. About how you aim to have Heartcatch Squad deliver the Black Envelopes personally, to the families of the departed. The families of the girls that the Prophet had murdered.

Kyoko is speechless for a moment, and her voice is quiet when she speaks. "...Whoa. That's...well, yeah, that's pretty cold-blooded, Murderface." She pauses again, looking at you directly, as if contemplating something. "I think no one's ever done that before. As punishment, anyway. Usually it's a volunteer kinda thing, or Mami does it herself." She nods here. "Yeah, I think...I think that'd work. It's a harsh kinda thing, but I think something that sobering is pretty good, too? They're gonna have to deal with it eventually. It's a part of being a Magical Girl."

She thinks it's a good idea, then?

"I wouldn't say it's a good idea? I mean, just seeing one of those things sends a chill up my spine, ya know?" Kyoko shakes her head, shivering. "But it's something that...well, something Malal would've come up with, Murderface, is what I'm saying."

...Yeah?

"Yeah. Definitely."
You glance back down at the sleeping arms dealer curled up on your lap, brushing her hair away from her eyes - and it's here that you finish the call, thanking Kyoko for her input. She can get back to torturing newbies once she sends Heartcatch Squad up to your office.

"AW, don't say it like that!" Your best friend laughs. "Right, I'll send them over right this second! See you later, Murderface!" She turns her back on the screen, voice rising into another roar. "HEARTCATCH SQUAD! FRONT! AND! CENTE--"

A tap of your laptop's keyboard and the call disconnects, leaving your office silent once more. Well, except for Misaka snoring, that is.

It doesn't take long at all for voices to suddenly be audible behind your office door. Worried, hesitant voices propped up with uncertain bravado. You hear one of them murmur something about how you used to be blind drunk, and how you'd be sympathetic to them at least.

Well. Being Warmaster doesn't exactly extinguish your past reputation, does it?

You tell them to hold on for a moment as you stand up carefully from your chair - gathering up Misaka in your arms as you do so. This of course nets you a rather querulous 'Of course, Warmaster' and more hushed chatter behind your door - things you ignore as you carry Misaka to your own personal quarters, lying her down onto the oversized bed that Kharn may have done a lot of punishing and censuring in her time.

It's after drawing up the covers around your sleeping arms dealer and giving her a final pat on the head that you take your place once more behind your desk.

A freshly-lit cigarette between your lips as you pull the stack of Black Envelopes in front of you, along with Heartcatch Squad's printouts. Placing both piles side by side, to make it appear that you've been working on them the entire time (and you have).

Taking a long, slow drag from your cigarette - making them wait just a bit longer, until they're teetering at the sphincter-clenching, clammy-handed edge of terror and impatience - and it's here that you finally call out to them. Telling them to come in, and to close the door behind them.

They do so. Seven girls, with varying heights and hair colors - it looks like a fucking rainbow here - files into your office, each one wearing the black jogging pants and training jacket with the sewn-on emblem of the IX Officio Assassinorum.

All of them looking relieved at being given a reprieve from Kyoko's brutal training session - while at the same time looking absolutely wretched at being thrown to the wolves, so to speak. Their leader apparently is the pink-haired one of the group, Hanasaki Tsubomi. Yeah. You have her profile right here. Hand-to-hand specialist, same as Kumatora.

They're ALL hand-to-hand specialists? Huh. Figure that.

You return the salute after making a show of inspecting their salutes critically. You hear one of them - the shortest of the seven, with long bright blue hair - murmur something underneath her breath. The rolling of her eyes quick enough that anyone not looking would've missed it.

Heh. This almost feels nostalgic.

What do you do now?

[]Begin by telling them about your impeccable sense of hearing, and then ask about their version of the events that got them here.
[]Get right into their punishment. Tell them that they fucked up, and what they have to do to fix that situation.

Gotta save the silence-til-they-crack for the big cases. This is bad, but we're already about to mollywop them with this punishment.

Maybe add a casual after-the-fact response to the "blind drunk" and the eyeroll AFTER you've dismissed them, to let them know they could have had it so much worse if they hadn't caught us on a good day.

Pretty sure there are original Madoka MUGENs as well as Grief Syndrome ones, and it would be pretty awesome to have a few of the MGNQ peoples in there like Kharn and Chiaki or some alternates of the others, like Gun-sword Bitch Sayaka or Berserk Kiraka.

Black has always been good on me. Not sure why everyone thinks that, but it's what I was given constantly since nobody else would wear it. It's just something that I've gotten used to, and if it fits me then it works fine. The problem is being in southern California during...
No, it doesn't even need to be spring or summer. It's hot year round, which is partly why I'm second-thinking this "date". It's not even as much of a date as it is walking around downtown with somebody else; the only problem is that this peculiar "somebody else" has been quite fond of me ever since I got into this magical girl thing.
But I'd best not start getting on the track on not keeping my word. I know where that leads people.
No long hair to brush, no fancy shoes or clothing to wear, no makeup to spend fruitless hours upon and I've got all my belongings in my bag. Much quicker than the stereotype we're usually given, though I think I'm breaking a lot of them already. One last look at the empty, barren room to confirm that everything is put away and fine, and I'm out the door.

I heard from her of the incident last night; Gina found a witch barrier in the slums and asked her for help. They got it down together but Gina was noticeably... shaken from the whole ordeal. I'm worried about her as much as she is, but I've also been with Gina enough to know she can get through this on her own. I can tell she's stronger than she thinks she is; she constantly shrugs off big accomplishments as foolish endeavors and dangerous risks she took, but never acknowledges her own power.

"Ah, Sami~! You're here!" I'm immediately flanked from starboard by a large woman and her chest, and there's nothing I can do to resist it.

"I did say i would come..." She giggles and ruffles my hair, hate it when she does that, Gina does it at least with some dignity.

"But it's always so tense until I see you keeping to your word! I was almost expecting you to stay home and be like 'oh, i forgot about today' or 'sorry, i'm feeling a bit sick today'." She's grabbing my shoulders tightly at this point, probably imagining me pulling something along those lines right now and trying to get away.

"If I did that you would probably just raid my house." Any resistance I put up to push myself away from her leads to nothing, so I just change the subject. "So, where are we going first?"

"So eager to start are you~?" Now she begins acting like a child; nearly hopping on her feet as she takes my hands and begins walking. "Then we're going this way!"

"Is Gina doing alright?" I wanted to contact her myself in the morning but I remembered that she's usually one to sleep in. Usually wakes up at around one in the afternoon, strange girl.

"She's been better, but this isn't her worst either. She'll be fine so don't worry about her." The head patting is completely unnecessary. "It's so nice that she has a friend like you around~."

Hmm? "I thought -we- were her friends."

"Oh? I saw myself more like a tutor and mentor for Gina than anything else. If she sees me as a friend then that's fine, so long as I get a few gifts every now and then~." She gleefully chimes this while getting uncomfortably close to me.

"Hey, the closer you get to me, the more people are going to stare." Doesn't even help that people are looking at us in the first place, and not just -her-.

"Oh, they can stare all they want, so long as nobody lays a hair on my Sami~."

Brilliant.

"Ah, we're here!"

"Didn't have any better ideas I assume?" I question Izzy after we sit down at a table at this... lunch place. They don't even serve full-on meals, just some sandwiches, soup and tea. They don't even offer grilled cheese sandwiches or anything unhealthy. I don't think this would be too great of a place to bring someone for a date.

"I personally think you're starting to run a bit dry on your offensive remarks..." Ah, a bit of her more serious side showed itself. But just as quickly she's back to her happy state. "But~, I decided on this because I didn't want to show off for my first date. That can come later~."

First... date?

"So you plan on dragging me out more often in the future?"

"Whenever possible!" Izzy chimes happily as she squeezes... me a bit to... closely...

God damn it this is just like the classic anime thing where-

"Ah- hey!" I finally manage to wriggle free after lightly jabbing her sides, though her reaction was more, laughter? May be ticklish...

"Ah, haha! Don't, save this for later!" Watching this full-grown woman lose herself over my actions...

Maybe I should stop. She'll get me for this later.

"Here, aaaaaahn~."

"It's soup, I don't think you can do it like that. Plus it's really hot, I can't stand anything liquidity and scaldingly hot like coffee and hot tea."

Of course, she doesn't listen to me and continues on her attempt to feed me -her- food. She got a regular broccoli soup while I opted for a sandwich, and it's led to a situation with her holding out a spoon to me across the table while I'm already biting down on a sandwich. She should get the point right now, if she was any normal person. But of course, this is -her-.

"Come on Sami, don't leave me hanging~." At this point I'm finding it impressive that she can hold her arm out steady for so long without spilling a drop. Vindicare training? I don't even know anymore.

"I'm not taking one drop of your soup until you taste it yourself. It's a waste of food." I can hear her groan in disappointment as I continue to eat my sandwich, but I eventually hear her beginning to drink her soup. Or is it eating her soup? It's technically food, right?

"Okay, I took a sip! Aaaaaaahhn~"

A long time ago I came to the conclusion that I was, indeed cute and decided to expand upon it. Now, I'm beginning to regret ever doing that, being held in her arms on a bench.

"That doesn't help, especially when you specifically take me to an empty park in the middle of the city. I'm this close to leaving you, and I'm sure most people my age with a brain would have ran away when they connected the dots."

"Oh, then why haven't you ran away yet, hmm~?"

You can answer that yourself with your arms and chest locking my head in place like a child.

I can't fault Izzy to a point, though. She did contract herself after one of her closest friends died. She couldn't protect her or something like that. I didn't care for specifics when I heard about it, but I know that she has me now as that special thing. As much as I don't really-

I could feel Izzy immediately tense up, then let me go from her grasp. We both rise from the bench quickly to face another girl with a gang of men behind her. Nothing really flashy about her, though the clothes she wore had this "bad girl" feel about her. Not good situation right now.

"I don't think it would be wise for you to approach any further." Izzy speaks calmly, but I can tell she's not only irritated by the interruption but also doing her best to be threatening.

"Oh, please. Two flirty sparkies like you ain't my time. I can go back where I was for all that shit." Her tone shows she's up to something, and with everything the guys behind her have, I can feel my senses itching to lunge out and fight. But, as I've been taught by Gina, going second has its advantages. "Just came here to make a little point to ya. And ya." She states by pointing to us both.

"And that'd be?" I speak before Izzy can. I'm far less intimidating than her, but the two of us together should send a stronger message.

"You can't win what you and your little group of friends are getting into. The UAA is always gonna come out of top, no matter how hard you sparkies fight back. Hope ya took your history class to learn that!"

"I don't know what conflict you're talking about." Izzy hisses at them. She's switched now; I can see it in her face. "But I will do whatever it takes to defend my friends!"

"Oh, so words aren't enough? Okay then." She turns around and walks away, the mob parting itself for her. "Show them what I mean. I'm done here."

They ran. Once the order was given they ran blindly to us, holding swords, bats, knives, batons and all sorts of weapons. The lucky ones were immediately killed with the first round of Izzy's projectiles.

"Go Sami!"

Then it was my turn. It took less than a second to transform, and the next moment my ribbons flew out to the closest targets. Razor sharp edges parry away any threatening advances and cur through their skin. Blood flies and stains my dress but I manage to see though the crowd, and there's a lot more coming.

"There's more coming!" I warn Izzy as she readies more knives and builds up her power. Her... projectiles, as I can't tell if they're even knives anymore, pierce right through the clothes and flesh of everyone that comes in its path, then bends its direction once nobody was left in its path.

It clicks again within me, that instinct trained into Eversors. Or maybe it's just me, but as my vision fades into combat, my legs, arms and ribbons knowing where to move, I know this battle has been won.

Yeah why is art of Wendy always lewd, seemingly no matter who is drawing it? I feel like she is one of the more tragic and serious characters.

I would very much enjoy seeing something more fitting for her, preferably with a lot of blood.

We're both nearly out of breath as the dust settles. In the end more came than we were expecting. But considering how they fought us, they weren't trained to be fighting magical girls. I have a few nicks and scratches as does Izzy but in the end it turned out a lot better than it could have been.

"Call Gina, she should be at HQ." I keep a lookout of the surrounding area. There's no telling if this was her true assault or just a fluke to hit us harder later."If this 'conflict' is coming, the officio would be talking about it." I hear Izzy working with the phone and beginning to call her.

"Gina, this is Izzy. You alright? We were just attacked by some people from the UAA and-" Izzys expression freezes as she listens on the other side.

"What is it?" They're well gone by now so I let my guard down. Izzy nods and replies with a "Take care then" before ending the call. "I think I know now why this is happening." She turns to me with the news.

"Wendy Cooldown is dead."

Gotta love finding MGNQ references in places you don't expect them.
"Ugh, yes," said Emma. "How did that magical girl noir thing go, earlier?"

"It was fine," said Ayane. "I slept through part of it, actually."

Emma swallowed a mouthful of popcorn half-chewed. That— what. "…Oh, okay," she said as casually as possible. "What'd you miss?"

"Not sure," said Ayane. She reached over to get more popcorn. "I was really confused when Chiaki— the main character — ended up shooting this one guy from the beginning of the vid."

"Did you ever figure it out?"

"Oh, well, as it turns out, he was the baddie's agent all along. Bit of a shock actually, he was quite the gentleman up till then."

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE FALL OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 07/25/14(Fri)09:39:16 No.33646939

You decide to keep quiet for now. You've got them at attention, with their eyes all aimed at you - and normally, at this point, you'd be feeling antsy enough to duck, or turn away, or even just leave the room. But not now. It almost feels natural, to be stared at with such intensity.

...Maybe it's the hat. Maybe it's the greatcoat. Maybe it's the fucking desk, the Office, the rank. Maybe it's all of those, all at once.

One of them coughs, before clearing their throat, a polite hint to get on with it. The purple-haired one with the stern gaze and the long, flowing costume, if your hearing serves you correctly. You make it a point to ignore the hint - and her - completely.

Heh. They're even watching your every move, now. From how you pluck your spent cigarette from your lips and use it to light a fresh one, before grinding it out on your rapidly-filling ashtray. You're positive some of them are even eyeballing you right this very moment - that spite-filled look of mocking, challenging disinterest that any figure of authority quickly learns to recognize. You've been a master at it, at least whenever you were sober enough to stare straight.

It's only when you lean forward on your desk, both elbows planted on the polished teak and glare at them from above your tented fingers that one of them finally cracks. It's the pink-haired one. Hanasaki Tsubomi. Seemingly very near tears, she raises a hand.

"War...Warmaster? I...I apologize if I'm speaking out of turn, but I--um, we, Heartcatch Squad..." She briefly glances at her squadmates, as if looking for support - and finding none, absolutely none, she swallows hard instead before turning back to you. "I...I speak for my entire squad when I say that...that we know what we did wrong, and we apologize for it, and we promise not to do it again, and--"

"Who died and made you Squad Captain?" A nasty little voice snaps out, cutting the snowballing apology off before it could gather more 'ands'. "You're not speaking for ME, Hanasaki. Fucking get over yourself."

The rest of the squad visibly cringe at this, moreso than Tsubomi does. Each of them - with the exception of the purple-haired one who cleared her throat earlier - inches slowly away from the source of the voice, namely the blue-haired girl standing just next to Tsubomi. ...Kurumi Erika, from what her profile says. Also an Eversor.

"In fact, I'm not apologizing." There it was. That self-assured, supremely self-confident tone of someone who absolutely believes that she had all the facts, and all of them are in her favor. Someone who who was so absolutely certain of what she was saying, and what she was fighting for, that she'd end her sentences with a bite to the jugular just to make the point stick. You've heard this kind of voice before, from a certain strong-spirited Eversor with blue hair.

You made her your Equerry.

"Rank Leader Sayaka should just fucking give us a break. We got the top spot in the trials, even with SOME of us not pulling our own weights." Erika breaks stance here, crossing her arms over her chest and cocking her head back. "What was the harm, anyway? It was just one little party! And your boyfriend was REALLY happy to see you again, wasn't he, Hanasaki? Was he STILL talking about coolling off for a few weeks? No? Thought so."

She then makes a noise - a self-assured, self-approving 'hmph' that told everyone within earshot that to prove her wrong was to tear down the walls of logic and common sense.

"Please, Erika-chan, we shouldn't--" Tsubomi also breaks stance as well, holding up both hands for calm as she turns towards the short blue ball of hate now staring daggers at you. "The Warmaster, she--"

"She's not even RATIFIED yet!" Erika sneers. "You'd know if if you listened to the other captains talk and chat, Hanasaki! And besides, everyone knows Miss Mami's supposed to be the REAL Warmaster - but the Incubator rigged the votes somehow, and WE have to make do with her!"

It's here that the yellow-haired one - a tall, skinny number wearing an equally-sunny costume, in complete contrast to the serious expression on her face - steps towards her blue-haired squad mate. "...Erika, you're calling the Warmaster a fraud in her own office." Her refined, polite voice completely at odds with her words. "You are putting us in a world of SHIT, and it's going to be worse if you don't fucking shut up right this moment--"

"WHY DON'T YOU SHUT YOUR PIEHOLE, MYOUDOIN?!" Erika's scream fills your office now, and you glance towards the heavy door leading to your quarters - hoping that the wood's thick enough to block the sound out and keep Misaka undisturbed. "IF YOU DIDN'T FUCKING TRIP ON YOUR COSTUME AND BREAK YOUR ANKLE LIKE A, A DILDO, WE'D HAVE BROKEN THE OFFICIO RECORD!"

"She didn't trip," The purple-haired of them now speaks. "She fell after trying to help me up. Erika, we've been over this--"

"FUCK YOU, TSUKIKAGE! I knew you were going to be fucking trouble, too! Get out of my FACE!"

It's also here that you note, as the four squabble loudly and nastily, that the three remaining members of Heartcatch Squad aren't exactly jumping in to join their squadmates, merely staring ahead with neutral expressions firmly set on their faces. One of them in particular, her hair cut in a severe bobcut that reminds you of your past hairstyle - simply sighs as she catches you staring at them, before shrugging.

How do you react?

This was escalated to the Warmaster because the Rank Leader didn't trust her judgement in this case so now it's our job.

If you guys really, really, absolutely must refuse to shoot her, then I suggest calling in Sayaka and ordering Erika confined to one week (or more) of Silent Room solitary confinement.

Because this is insubordination and if we let this slide, it sends the message that it's fine to disparage and undermine the authority of the Warmaster which is something that should not be allowed.

You take a deep pull from your cigarette - a slow and deliberate inhalation of the relaxing, nicotine-tainted smoke that never failed to calm your nerves.

"This is why we're in here, Kurumi! You have no respect! NO RESPECT AT ALL! This is the head of the Officio you're talking trash with here, not just Miss Kyoko--"

"Respect isn't given, it's fucking EARNED, MYOUDOUIN! I don't give a shit if she's got the hat and the coat, they mean completely shit! Figures you'd start brown-nosing even before we get our official designations, why don't you suck out her shit while you're up her ass already?!"

You hold your breath in, savoring the taste, savoring the slightly-chilly sensation of filling your lungs with the chemically-enriched air.

"Erika-chan, please, listen! Miss Sayaka's already mad enough at us as it is, even if you don't care about the Warmaster, just think about her, at least! We don't want her to hear about--"

"I'M standing up for all of us! Miss Sayaka will hear about ME standing up for everyone here, even when the rest of you sorry fucks won't even see just how much bullshit this IS! And I expected BETTER from you, Hanasaki, I TRUSTED you to--"

And it's here, as you exhale, that you draw your Golden Desert Eagle from its holster and fire a single snap-shot.

And it's here, as you exhale, that you draw your Golden Desert Eagle from its holster and fire a single snap-shot.

The effect, hilariously enough, is delayed. Even as the arguing group heard Erika shriek at the same time they saw her collapse facefirst onto the floor, her left knee exploding in a neat little shower of gore and splintered bone - they take a few seconds to actually acknowledge the fact that one of them, ONE of them is screaming her head off while bleeding all over the carpet. Tears of pain and outrage pouring from her wide, stunned eyes as she grabs the bleeding stump of her thigh with both hands, crying and swearing and pleading for help. It takes them another few seconds to jolt themselves out of their shock, crouching down to help their fallen comrade, getting blood all over their costumes as a result.

You note again that the three other Eversors - the ones who had been quiet this entire exchange - simply stand stock-still at this. Keeping at attention, even when you've just kneecapped their most vocal squadmate. The one with the bob cut didn't even flinch when a bit of Erika's blood ended up on her cheek.

...Heh. Well. At least they're not ALL dildoes.

You drop the Golden Desert Eagle on your desk, and it lands with a solid, deafening thump on the teak. This makes the entire group flinch again, as if mistaking it for another gunshot. The ones crowding around Erika glance up towards you, their eyes wide and staring, unbelieving at what you've just done. Tsubomi herself is positively crying now, but valiantly trying not to sob - simply letting her tears run copiously down her cheeks.

You drop the Golden Desert Eagle on your desk, and it lands with a solid, deafening thump on the teak. This makes the entire group flinch again, as if mistaking it for another gunshot. The ones crowding around Erika glance up towards you, their eyes wide and staring, unbelieving at what you've just done. Tsubomi herself is positively crying now, but valiantly trying not to sob - simply letting her tears run copiously down her cheeks.

"Myoudouin?" You murmur in the stunned silence, with only Erika's sobbing and swearing the only other sound in your room.

"Y-yes, Warmaster?"

"Take Kurumi to sick bay. Get the Venenum to put a new leg on her. Then report back here, on the double."

The blonde glances at her bloodstained colleagues, then at Erika, before turning back to nod at you. "A-at once, Warmaster."

And commendably enough, despite the obvious shock still leadening her movements, Itsuki gets Erika out of your office quickly - with all that's left of this particular event a fresh stain of blood on your office carpet. Heartcatch Squad, sans two members, slowly re-forms its previously orderly line, albeit with two of its members now sporting bloodstains on their costumes as well.

+ Nicely done, + States a cold voice in your head.

+I...that seemed a bit much, but she was pretty...mean...+ Says another, this one a bit more hesitant.

So, as a little side project I'm going to be drawing idol cards. Noir cards? Anyway, here's the lineup:

01 Malal
02 Kharn
03 [vote]
04 Pinky
05 GirlA
06 [vote]
07 Kirika
08 [vote]
09 [vote]
10 TinyPete

11 [vote]
12 Enyo
13 [vote]
14 Enishi
15 [vote]
16 Cave Fish
17 Yuma 18 [vote]
19 [vote]
20 [secret]

The list has been stacked to give side characters a chance.
We'll vote for the first slot after Kharn is done (votes will always be done after writeups so the thread isn't shit up with waifu wars).

I'll be streaming so you can watch the cards get drawn during the threads:
twitch[x]tv/elbowlick

We're starting with Malal today!

Me again, I wanted to make sure my vote got in, but to elaborate, making each of them talk helps give the impression that we're listening, but at the same time makes each of them feel very uncomfortable, both of which are exactly what we want to create the impression that disciplinary HEARINGS are a punishment of their own (to discourage people from assuming they can get us on their side), but that if you do wind up in one you'll get a fair shake at explaining what you did.

We're very fortunate that these people clearly fucked up, though, because it means we don't have to worry so much about the politics of punishing them - that's going to be clearly the Right Thing in the eyes of the office, so it's just a matter of making sure the punishment is fitting and that our behavior in the hearing cultivates the reputation we want.

It's when Myoudouin returns - gasping for breath as she closes the door behind her, looking as if she'd run the entire way back to your office - that you start. Making it a point to act as if you've done nothing out of the ordinary, despite the fact that shooting the blue-haired Eversor in mid-sentence had felt so, so good. The cathartic release of pent-up stress and frustration making your toes curl in your heels.

"Now, can anyone tell me, in their own words..." You start to say, here, keeping your voice low and calm, even as Tsubomi herself flinches again at your voice. "...what was it that you guys did that got you into this...world of shit?" You nod at the bloodstained Myoundouin Itsuki as you borrow her own colorful turn of phrase - the blonde hesitantly nodding back in return. "Take your time," you remind them after a moment. "I know how these things go."

It's Tsubomi herself who offers the explanation, after an exchange of brief, furtive glances with the rest of the squad. Even Bob Cut herself gave the pink-haired, teary-eyed Eversor an encouraging smirk, which surprises you again. ...This is a newbie? Really? Someone like her would've immediately made Squad Captain, at least. Not this nervous pink-haired dildo.

Anyway. After a few false starts where she all but dissolved into stuttering apologies over and over again, Tsubomi manages to fill you in on their side of the story. Their version basically matched up to Kyoko's well enough, just with a bit more detail, in that it was indeed Erika who smuggled the boys in, apparently through an unsecured kitchen staff entrance at the back of the building and some stolen proximity cards from some of the mundane everyday employees.

There were four unauthorized young men inside the Officio Headquarters, all in all, and they spent quite a while inside the squad's communal quarters before they were found out. Tsubomi herself stressed - with nearly all of the squad blushing crimson red - that NOTHING untoward happened, just...a bit of drinking. No hanky panky, definitely. ...Well, maybe a bit of hanky here, some panky there. But definitely not both at the same time, she assured you. Twice, in fact.

"Miss S-Sayaka discovered us, just as we were sending them off to leave," The pink-haired girl stutters. "It...we weren't really up to no good, I swear we weren't, and..." She pauses to glance at her comrades again. "I, um...please, Warmaster, Erika-chan didn't mean any harm, really. She's strong-headed, but she just...I believe she just wanted to reward us for a job well done." Another awkward pause, and Tsubomi bows her head. "That's...that's all, I think, Warmaster. Thank you. ...Sorry."

Itsuki sighs. "For heaven's sake, Hanasaki, stop DEFENDING her. We all tried to convince her not to do it, but she just went ahead, not listening like always. I know she's your best friend and everything, but--"

Tsubomi flinches as if struck. "N-no! No, I'm not defending her, I'm just telling the truth!" She whirls back towards you, her voluminous ponytail whipping around. "Warmaster, I swear--"

You tap your Desert Eagle with one hand, and both of them sink back into fearful, obedient silence.

Hah. So, that's how it is, then.

How do you respond?

If we're content with the info they've given, it's time to make sure they understand what they did wrong and why it was wrong, and then determine their punishment. We also need to remember to have a proper lecture for Erika, since she's no longer here for this one.

If these girls must frolic with outsiders, they should do it outside of the Officio. If they can't bother to do that, they already have a fairly good male impersonator among them to settle for.

Yeah, we should ask Sayaka why Hanasaki is in charge. She might have simply overlooked Tsukikage or there's simply battlefield dynamics that we aren't seeing here.

That aside, they're a squad of rookies. One mistake is no reason to remove Hanasaki from the lead, but rather a reason for her to improve herself. If she cannot cope with being leader. then we should consider replacing her.

It was a stupid mistake, yes, but we should keep some perspective before stepping into this, I think.

It's not about them being incapable. It's about having respect for what a Black Envelope represents.

So much respect, we wholly expect them to take the meaning right to heart.

Our constant threat of death, that we are fragile despite our powers and training, that we can still die...it's why we have rules. These kids need to learn that.

You tap your Golden Desert Eagle with the tips of your fingers, slowly enough and deliberately enough to draw the entire Squad's eyes to its lustrous sheen. You wait for a moment, before pulling your hand back and resting it on your other one as you lean forward on your desk. Just enough for them to see that you're about to speak, and what you're about to say is something that they should be listening to very carefully.

"Do you understand why this is unacceptable?" You say quietly, conversationally, making an effort to remove any menace from your voice as much as you're able. Snarling or growling here would be overkill, even you know that much. "Will she?"

Silence. Stark silence. Not even a protest from Tsubomi, even though she looks like she has something to say. You take this as a sign of capitulation, and you proceed.

"I don't care if you want to suck dicks, do it on your own time, off the Officio grounds." The squad visibly flinches at this, cheeks reddening even further. "The security protocols are in place to protect you and your fellows from harm, especially in our base of operations."

You pause for a moment to take one last puff from your cigarette, before plucking it from your lips and grinding it out on your ashtray. "By doing this, you put your squad and the rest of the Officio at risk. All for your own personal pleasure." You shake your head, letting out a small smoke-tinted sigh. "The official punishment for this kind of thing is a bullet through the Soul Gem, no questions asked. We don't take security liabilities in this Officio lightly. I don't take them lightly."

Letting the veiled threat hang over their heads, you push the pile of Black Envelopes towards Heartcatch Squad.

"On account of this being your first infraction, however, and the fact that you're all green enough to actually start a bitchfight in front of a superior officer..." You look up to meet Tsubomi's outraged stare, and Itsuki's horrified one.

"..I'll be assigning your squad its first mission instead."

You light another cigarette, before gesturing to the envelopes themselves.

"You will ensure the proper delivery of these letters to their designated recipients - in a manner befitting a member of this Officio Assassinorum. And hopefully before I forget that Sayaka's your Rank Leader." Taking a deep breath - burning your current stick down to nearly halfway its length - you give them a small smile, a quick quirking up of the corners of your lips. "Am I making myself clear?"

Silence again, but one more stunned than wary. As if they'd been bracing for the other shoe to drop - expecting the worst with gritted teeth and clenched sphincters - before suddenly being told that there would be no rainfall of heavy, spiked footwear in their near future. Just a brief pelting of socks.

You repeat your question again, and it's here that Heartcatch Squad replies its assent in practiced unison. Bob Cut doing so with a small, relieved smile on her face.

"Do I need to elaborate what I'm going to do the next time anything like this happens?"

Another collective reply, this time to the negative.

Good. They seem to be getting it, you note, at the same time that your stomach rumbles quietly. Reminding you that you haven't actually eaten anything yet, with Midori's packed breakfast left untouched.

What do you do now?

Magical Juggernaut Heather Crunch versus The Nakajima Sisters

"Trial number one hundred and twenty seven," drones a dull voice in the background. "Diamond-tipped drill against Heather Crunch." A huge, wicked drill ROARS to life and approaches my wrist, my glorious costume already having been SHREDDED and SCORCHED in that area.

"And away we gooo!" shouts the cheerful girl as she brings the sinister implement in closer and closer. It makes contact with my unblemished skin, the bit STABBING against my muscles. The FRICTION and HEAT grow intense, but I barely even -feel- it!

From the looks of it, this place was an old warehouse before these two got to it, and they made sure it -looked- that way on the outside. Since we arrived, they have restrained me in heavy chains, with the winches bound into the foundation. Attached to my legs and wrists are tripwires, which are linked to explosive charges. There are weapons trained on my position, my -entire- torso -covered- in red beads! And beneath my feet is a tank filled with sharks that shoot LASERS from their mouths! I must give them credit for pulling all of that off so quickly before I could react.

After they bound me, the chipper one told me something about doing a few experiments. Something about testing how invincible I actually am. As the apparatus smokes from its fruitless endeavor, I'd say they have their answer. Though considering the various broken weapons scattered around, including a cement block that UTTERLY FAILED TO CRACK THE CROWN OF CRUNCH, they should have figured it out by now.

"Result is no damage, superficial or otherwise," speaks the demure one, writing something on a clipboard.

"Alrighty, Crunchy," quips the happy one, skipping towards me - stop looking at her legs, Crunch! "This has been reeeal informative, but now I need to inject some science into you." She has another syringe produced now, an eerie green liquid inside. "So if you could just keep your eyes open wide, that'd be swell~."

"And yet you have learned NOTHING!" I growl as she brings the syringe near my eyeball. "Otherwise you would RELEASE me, and relinquish your villainous ways!"

"But it's so much fun, isn't it?" is her VILE response. "Well, this might not be fun for you in a second-"

I turn my head away from the needle, muttering, "You'll taste justice from my Eversword soon enough."

"Eversword?" she titters, and I hear the sound of weapons priming at my disobedience. "Heehee, wh-"

"AAAAAALLLLLLLLL THE TIIIIIIIIMMMME!" I SHOUT from the very DEPTHS OF MY SOUL, YANKING the restraints out as the world turns red. The explosions that engulf my body would blow a LESSER person to smithereens. The volume of bullets blasting at me would shred a LESSER person. The shark lasers would scorch a LESSER person alive. Death would claim a LESSER person a thousand times over by now.

HEATHER CRUNCH IS NO LESSER PERSON!

I encase the closest creature in tape and tug it towards me. While the water surrounding me muffles the outside world, I can still see red dots trained on my movements. Waiting, LURKING outside to rain ordnance down upon my being as soon as my hat leaves the waters.

Though they come at me crazed and shooting, the sharks scatter and run as soon as I start THRASHING them with the own kin. My makeshift club is soon too badly beaten and battered to be of any further use to me. NOW I can make my triumphant return. A HUGE mass of sticky silver strips fly up to the ceiling far above, but napalm immediately incinerates them. As I suspected. Thus, I must change tactics. The walls of the tank are too solid to climb out of, so that option is out. IF I WASN'T SO AMAZING, THAT IS!

I CLAW my way up, fingers and boots DIGGING into the wall and displacing the normally solid material. Gunfire pelts against me, but it fails utterly to even SLOW me, much less STOP my ascent! And soon, SOON I am FREE again!

Now, STRIKE A POSE!

...And change back into costume in an EXPLOSION OF LIGHT!

"Quick, Jade!" shouts the smiling girl from a ways back, "Use our Dream Combination Technique!" Something dings across the back of my head, and I turn to find the quiet girl - the one called "Jade", apparently - holding a dented folding chair.

"...It didn't work," she responds dully.

"She really IS invincible!" exclaims the villainous girl. "We'll have to go with the Rib Breaker Combo!"

The Jade one grapples me from behind as the amber-eyed assailant RUSHES me from the front! Fingers clawed, she attacks my ribcage! "Tickle tickle tickle tickle~!" I remove 'Jade' from my person by unhooking her arms, and then GRAB the nefarious girl by the wrists before she can escape!

"Ow ow ow ow, stop it, you're hurting meee!" she groans, slipping out of my HANDS OF JUSTICE with her WILY, SLIPPERY WICKEDNESS! "Need the Doomsday Drop done on this one, Jade!

A cinderblock CRUMBLES to uselessness after it breaks over my head, and a firebomb -explodes- over my chest immediately afterwards. And YET, even wreathed in flame, I stand stalwart and unbreakable!

"I am Heather Crunch, Eversor Rank Leader of the Sixth Officio," I cry out, whipping my cape around to smother the flames that dare ATTEMPT to burn brighter than I! "And YOU," I point to the sprightly one, "will YIELD to me, fiend!"

She has the NERVE to POUT and GRUMBLE at me, of all things, "And here I thought we were having fun."

"You tried to kidnap and drug me!" I snarl. And she shows no signs of ending these shenanigans. There's nothing for it.

I WILL the colossal red blade of mine into my right hand, swinging it while I point at her again with my left. "Enough games!" I declare. "Now we fight for REAL!"

"Sister," the jade-eyed girl warns sagely, falling back, "she looks serious. Perhaps you should take over."

The gleeful girl ponders the words of her doppelganger, and cheerily chirps, "Okey dokey, Crunchy, fun time's over now~."

A black, hooded cape appears from thin air in her hands and ENGULFS her briefly. When it flows back, she has CHANGED, CHANGED into her magical girl costume to fight this fight seriousl-

Wait, that's an apron, isn't it? And lacy stockings? Detached sleeves? And the cut that dress is DESPICABLY LOW AND DISTRACTING!

It is part of the plan, I'm sure. It's why I was unable to react to the incoming projectile until it was too late. Clouds of smoke ERUPT from the ground, COMPLETELY obscuring my vision. I stand vigilant, waiting for her to make the first strike.

"Heeere comes Amber!" calls my adversary from behind me. A FOOLISH MOVE, giving away your position like that. Fun, BUT FOOLISH IN A REAL BATTLE! I swivel around and stand my ground, ready to block whatever comes from-

"Cometfall!"

Something slams into my back and launches me off the ground. I hadn't visualized my weapon as 'heavy' at the start of battle, so unfocused was I. I picture it now, and land on my feet, cracking the ground beneath from the impact. She's faster than I thought, but I'm sure the voice came from over-

"Fall From Grace!"

I spin around towards the source of the sound, and yet a pair of feet COLLIDES with my back again. BUT YOU WILL NOT DERAIL THE CRUNCH TRAIN THIS TIME! I do not budge an inch from the sneak attack, and spin around to strike her with-

"Bloody Sunday!"

"Nnngh!" She attacks from ABOVE this time, DRIVING a shaft of light into my shoulder blade. Of COURSE it didn't hurt, or penetrate, but it... Tingles very unpleasantly. And the area where it hit has a scorch mark.

"Thousand Needles!"

HOW DOES SHE KEEP GETTING BEHIND ME? She SLASHES me across the back, and when I try to slash back, there is nothing there. Something STABS me in the ribs, and then strikes my leg! Attacks come from EVERY ANGLE, and all I see are glimpses of a sword-like beam shaped suspiciously like a katana.

Why'd it have to be katanas? I NEVER win against people with katanas!

"TEN THOUSAND NEEDLES!"

The attacks INCREASE in SPEED and INTENSITY, coming from EVERYWHERE at ONCE. Not good! My movements start to feel sluggish. Everywhere I swipe, I hit NOTHING at all!

Come on, Crunch. Think! What would Kharn do in this situation?

...Well, she'd make a gesture and take both of the girls to bed with a bucket of-

NOT HELPFUL! QUIET, EVIL VOICE IN MY HEAD!

Enough games! I came here to turn over a new leaf! And if that means defeating a lightning-fast wielder of my weapon-y nemesis, THEN HEATHER CRUNCH WILL CUT THROUGH THAT BLADE WITH HER EVERSWORD!

"As much fun as this is," I bellow aloud, even as the attacks keep coming, "I'm afraid you've been CAUGHT ON TAPE! HA!"

Like a blossoming flower, my great and binding sticky tape POURS FORTH from my sleeves in a TORRENT of ribbons! It FILLS the air around me on both sides, then front, then above and below, even as I have an ALL-ENCOMPASSING network of sticky tape. Even if I cannot see the attacks coming, I can make it so that they CANNOT EVER REACH ME! YES, SUCH INGENUITY IS POSSIBLE FOR HEATHER CRUNCH!

And already, I sense movement over...

"Jaaaaade! Stop the cheer routine and get the chainsaw, now!"

THERE!

Swiftly grabbing hold of the relevant strands, I tug with MONSTROUS FORCE! There is a yelp of surprise from my KATANA-USING ATTACKER before a figure stumbles into my arms! I got her now! She confirms it by screaming, "Kyaaaa~! Jade, help, I'm being ravished!"

What the, I'm not- ARGH, AGAIN she slips away! "Stop doing that!" I shout after my rival!

"Make me~!" she jeers infuriatingly. STILL she is able to elude my grasp, and yet a ray of hope shines through the darkness! Literally! The smoke is thinning, and I can see again! And with her still struggling against the bindings, I break into a full run towards her, letting out a primal ROAR OF BATTLE! My limbs feel heavy and weak, BUT THERE IS NO STOPPING THE CRUNCH TRAIN!

"Son of a submariner, she's still going," my foe murmurs in hushed awe as she clutches the sword, its beam humming and flickering.

"Amber," says the other girl, worry creeping into her voice, "perhaps we should-"

"Get behind the blast shield, Jade!" 'Amber' interrupts, flipping a series of switches on her blade. "I'm going all out!"

"HA! Now THAT'S what I like to hear!" I switch to a two-handed grip to oblige her, willing the Eversword to be dense and heavy. "Don't hold back!"

"Go easy on me, okay~?" my opponent teases, her blade humming loudly as it grows. Erupting through the ceiling, its edges jagged like lightning, its HEAT palpable. It is almost BLINDING to look upon.

She's grinning at me. I'm grinning at her. In this moment, right here, there is no good or evil, no right or wrong. Only two worthy opponents facing each other down on the field of battle. Loving every second of it.

But the moment must pass! She swings the tremendous blade, cutting through the roof like it's not even there. "ANARCHY IN THE GALAXY!" she cries out.

I bring my sword up to block as the surging, scorching energy CRASHES into it, sending up SHOWERS of sparks! Either the intensity is that great, I am that weakened, or both, but the heat actually -HURTS-, and she FORCES me into a crouch! I cannot win like this!

I put my sword's weight into pushing the searing beam of death back, drawing on my innermost reserves to repel it! The arc is thrown back only for an instant, but that's all the opening I need. I think BIG and HEAVY, and my blade EXTENDS, taking out the far wall! Again I beat the beam back, and again the Eversword grows larger, until it DWARFS her blade!

CHECKMATE!

"MINE'S BIGGER!" I yell, as I put EVERYTHING into a single attack, my bright red blade BURNING with INTENSITY AND FIRE!

"KATANA-CLEAVING SWORD!"

The lightning arc SHATTERS in a THUNDEROUS EXPLOSION! It FIZZLES OUT in the face of MY OVERPOWERING POWER!

...The Eversword flakes away like flower petals in the wind. I'm breathing heavily. I've broken into a sweat. The fringes of my coat are charred. Spots dance in my vision. And my hands are shaking. 'Amber' doesn't seem to have it much better, and is flat on her back taking big gulps of air.

That was... Fun? Fulfilling? Whatever it was, I feel serene at the moment. But I'm not done here yet.

I stride over to where my opponent has fallen to claim my prize. -This- particular piece is going in a special part of my collection, framed and mounted on the wall!

...Stop gawking at her chest heaving and check her hands for that weap-

"...What happened to your hands?!" I exclaim in shock! Her hands are -charred-! Some spots even expose the bone!

I offer a hand, and she giggles before grasping it. I help her back onto her feet - she winces a couple times - and I smile a winner's winning smile right back.

It's here that the other girl reappears. "Sister," she intones, "perhaps now we should explain to Miss Crunch why we're here before any further misunderstandings occur."

"Aww, you're such a party pooper, Jade," 'Amber' murmurs, lips curling into a pout.

Looking me in the eyes and throwing up a salute, she explains, "Well, Crunchy, we're here on behalf of the Eighth to keep an eye on you!"

"Heehee... I wanted to test your invincible body~," she remarks, "and holy crackers, the rumors were true!"

That's RIGHT! They kidnapped and experimented on me! "Rrrrregardless of your intentions," I proclaim, "I MUST take you in for your transgressions!"

"So you're going to ravish me after all~?" Amber inquires, batting her eyelids-

"What?! NO!" I exclaim LOUDLY AND TRUTHFULLY! "I will do NO SUCH THING, FOUL TEMPTRESS!"

"You're blushiiiing!" SHE TAUNTS ME!

"Here you are, then! One dish of Very Berry Strawberry..."

"...one Triple Chocolate Fudge..."

"Thank you," replies Jade as the server hands her a cone saturated in chocolate.

"...and one Strawberry Rocky Road Flambé in a waffle bowl."

I grunt in acknowledgement at my order as the server leaves us be. The ice cream's still burning. Normally that wouldn't stop me, but...

...How did they rope me into PAYING for this? The loser is supposed to do what the -winner- says.

I look at the both of them. Amber Nakajima. Jade Nakajima. Sisters. The former from the Eighth, the latter from the Seventh. They introduced themselves as such after much questioning.

"Crunchyyyy," whines Amber, frowning at me and showing her bandaged hands, "I can't hold my spoooooon! And Jade has her hands full!"

I GLARE and GLOWER at her. She just pouts harder, and I have to turn away. When I said Heather Crunch burns hotter and brighter than any star, I did NOT mean like this. Her giggling only makes it WORSE!

This... Why?! Why am I losing to my emotions HERE? Is this her power, WEAKENING my resolve? Is this part of my penance? Having to deal with Amber's UNWANTED advances? Advances from this BEGUILING SIREN that tries to TEMPT me?

...Actually, perhaps there is something I can do after all. Yes! I can set her down the path of righteousness!

"Only you can do it, Crunchy!" Amber pleads, eyes sparkling, lip trembling, "Please help me, oh great hero~!"

HAHA! So THIS is how I redeem myself! By finally, TRULY helping somebody in a meaningful way! If that is what it takes, if I must SUFFER through this THOROUGHLY UNDESIRED AFFECTION, then...

I GRASP the spoon TIGHTLY, SCOOPING UP the pink-red frozen dessert, and bring it closer, CLOSER toward her mouth!

"HERE COMES THE CRUNCH TRAIN!" I BELLOW, voice ECHOING through the ICE CREAM PARLOR as I SLIDE it past her lips! "CHOO CHOO!"

Alright! With the writeup done, I'll put the flashback voting decision now, hopefully everyone's still here!

Anyway, as everyone knows, I try to put in flashbacks every now and then so that players can experience some of the events that Murderface either forgot or didn't exactly experience, as well as break up the monotony of the arc a bit (which happens a lot, because of my horrible pacing).

And since I've already made the round of the characters that can get flashbacks, we're back to Mami again!

So, I'm letting everyone pick this time what kind of flashback we get!

The choices are:

[]Fifty Shades of Yellow
[]My Tactical Dreadnought Neighbor, Tiny Pete

Please pick carefully! I'll allow twenty minutes for the votes! Please also note that one of the choices (you know which one) may be a bit...spicy, so please be forewarned!

I would like it better if you forced a character on us, like this I will surely regret not choosing the other, no matter what.

weighing the two, I would have to pick Mami because it just seems like the best one to get some story bits.

and it's "a bit...spicy." I would be lying if I said that that didn't play a part.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE FALL OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 07/26/14(Sat)10:05:21 No.33671926

"Then get out," You finally let the snarl that you've been holding back out as you dismiss them. "Don't let this drunk, alcoholic bitch detain you."

The entire Heartcatch Squad freezes at this, their collective relief gone as they tense and straighten their backs once more in stunned fear - with one of them, Itsuki Myoundouin, tensing and straightening just a bit more. Her face completely pale underneath her bright yellow hair twisted into energetic twintails.

Hah. Well. You were expecting Erika to have said that particular jibe about you, but there you go. You'll have to take note of it.

They offer a united salute an awkward moment later, and you return it without so much as a glance towards them, your attention now focused on something more important than the fuckups of a newbie Eversor Squad: your breakfast. It's only as the last of them - Bob Cut herself - closes the door to your office behind her that you let out a sigh of your own, before shaking your head in frank distaste at what had to happen.

...You'll have to talk to Kyuubey about doing something with the unsecured kitchen entrance, too. Geh, is this the life of a watch-wearing dildo? Finish one task, only to find two more sprouting up from the last one? It's like a fucking dildo hydra, and for one terrifying moment you imagine yourself being chained to your desk for days at a time, unable to pull free, as your mounting backlog of paperwork and tasks multiply with every batch you finish.

Is...is it ever going to get to that point? Is this the future you'll end up with? Just years upon years of being a watch-wearing dildo, never to see the light of day ever again?

Just as you feel the chill of a ghastly future rake its fingernails down your back, it's here that you chuckle and shake your head.

No, of course not. Never.

You'd eat your own gun first, with your Soul Gem firmly trapped between the gun barrel and the roof of your mouth.

Running around to fix the absolutely catastrophic fuckups of your past selves is going to be a fucking cakewalk compared to this skull-crushing monotony.

You unlatch the plastic lids off of the packed breakfast that Midori had made for you. It's...not pancakes, but rather a typical Japanese rice and viand set, artfully and daintily arranged to create a picture. And it's...well, you and her, in the small, squat caricatures that anime and manga depict the protagonists in whenever it's time for comic relief. Holding hands and smiling in mid-step, while an omelette sun and vegetable flowers (with seaweed paper leaves) flourish around you.

...Wait. Wait a second. There's a third figure at the side of the little diorama scene, one with a frowning face hiding inside a fried salmon-skin trashcan. Someone with caramelized onion braids, and narrowed peppercorn eyes.

Wendy? Is that Wendy? Midori made your breakfast with a sneaky Wendy in it?

You fail to stop yourself from chuckling here, before shaking your head and snapping your chopsticks apart.

Hnh. You eally have to talk to her about what she did back in the meeting, earlier.

It's not like you didn't enjoy it, but...well. Doing that in front of Wendy, not just your ex but a representative of another organization, well--

+ She was simply drawing the line in the sand. Don't fault her for that, reward her boldness instead. + A cold voice pipes up as you chew.

+ I...I think it was a bit much, too, but it was really romantic as well... + A hesitant voice stutters as you shove the carrots, untouched, into one corner of your container.

+ ESTABLISHING. DOMINATION. IS. TOP. PRIORITY. + A rough voice growls as you clamp onto a particularly well-done piece of salmon and deposit it into your half-open mouth.

...Hnh. Well, at least you don't have to worry about the three stooges disapproving or anything. You shake your head at this, before continuing to eat in silence, all while throwing dirty glances at your remaining piles of paperwork. Hoping they'd disappear after every bite, and simply frowning when they fail to do so.

Halfway through your lunch, the door to your quarters creaks open - and you blink to see a half-asleep Misaka pushing against the heavy wooden slab with one hand, the other clutching a pillow by the corner and dragging it behind her. "Big...Big Sister Murderface...?" She slurs your name here, rubbing her bleary eyes with a fist. "What are you doing in Warehouse...? Misaka did not know you were coming over, says...says Misaka..."

Before you can reply, she totters forward, both hands reaching out for you, leaving the pillow discarded and alone. You turn in your seat, your chair swiveling - and you manage to catch the sleep-addled weapons dealer just as she trips. Her frame predictably light, but also very warm.

"Waha, Big Sister Murderface, smells like blood and gunpowder, Misaka's favorite scent..." You hear Misaka take a deep sniff, her face buried in your stomach. "Smells like hoooome...!"

What do you do?

[]Tuck her back into bed. She obviously still needs to sleep.
[]Gently wake her up and explain what happened. Might as well do it now rather than later.

Placing your chopsticks back onto your half-finished breakfast box, it's here that you carefully Misaka up into your arms and onto your lap - your young arms dealer sleepily giggling at this before burying her face once more into another part of you, this time your shoulder. ...Almost kind of like a cat, which is probably an accurate descriptor for kids, from your very limited experience of them.

You wonder briefly if you've ever behaved like this as a kid - and it takes you just as quickly to dismiss that possibility. By all rights, you were probably one of those annoying brats that cried and raged and screamed whenever she didn't get her way. The sort they use video footage of for condom commercials.

...Yeah, that sounds just like you, actually. You'd be surprised otherwise.

It's here that you begin the delicate process of waking her up - patting your arms dealer gently on the back as she begins to snore again. She stirs a moment later, an irritated grumbling noise rising from her throat, along with some irritated-sounding Russian. Swear words, by the sound of them.

"...Misaka? This is, er, Big...Sister Murderface," You murmur stiltingly, feeling...well, really awkward about calling yourself that. It doesn't really sound right. Or normal. "Do you know where we are right now?"

"Nnh?" Misaka relinquishes her grip on your costume to rub her eyes again, before peering at you. "Big...Big Sister Murderface? What are..." Her words stumble back into sleepy, slurring Russian again, in that half-drunken way that children sleep-talk. It takes her a few more paragraphs to loop back into Japanese. "...Misaka...Misaka and Big

A moment more, and she finally opens her eyes, squinting as she looks around at your office. "Wait...wait, this is not Misaka's Warehouse...! N-no scent of gunpowder, no Tiny Pete patrolling outside..." She whirls towards you, suddenly and completely awake, her round brown eyes wide and staring. "Did...did Big Sister Murderface finally become a criminal and kidnap Misaka, Misaka asks with alarm?!"

...What? You blink at her, before shaking your head. What? No, you just--her warehouse-

"Big Sister Murderface didn't hurt Tiny Pete, did you?! Because Tiny Pete really likes Big Sister Murderface! Tiny Pete always saying how it is such an honor to serve with Big Sister Murderface, have to shut down his vocal chip just to get sleep, and--" your arms dealer continues to excitedly bounce up and down, clearly eager to see you but also really hyper in the way kids just fresh out of bed tend to be.

"But really, if Big Sister Murderface wanted Misaka to stay with her, Big Sister Murderface only needed to ask! There was no need to kidnap Misaka, Misaka lectures with admonition--"

You clear your throat, before placing both of your hands on your arms dealer's narrow shoulders. Gently willing her to silence as you stare at her directly. Her eager, morning-fresh grin receding into a smile as she looks back at you expectantly.

How do you tell Misaka what Oriko did to her warehouse?

You let out a sigh, before putting her back down onto the floor, letting her stand. She blinks up at you, tilting her head to the side, still smiling but now curious as to what you're about to say. As if expecting you to...well, you don't know, but probably something a damn sight better than telling her just what Oriko did to her warehouse.

You take a deep breath, and it's here that you do tell her what happened. As blunt as you could put it, without any codewords or cushioning or anything - exactly how you'd like bad news to be delivered to you personally.

Misaka has, after all, proven herself wiser beyond her years multiple times in the past, not even counting the times you half-remember - and you know she's smart enough that her IQ probably goes into the triple digits, the ones with a 2 in front of them.

She's a kid, sure enough - but even you know that she'd appreciate you not treating her like one.

Misaka takes the news...well, better than anyone hearing about how their house and life possessions have been blown up, so to speak. While her eyes welled up with tears when you told her how her warehouse was attacked by rogue Magical Girls, she also flushed with spiteful pride as you recounted how Tiny Pete fought off not only just those rogue MGs, but also three lava golems taller than he was. On his own.

As you begin to get into how you took down a Callidus skulking inside her warehouse, it's here that Misaka raises a hand to stop you in your storytime tracks. Her shoulders trembling, she looks back up at you with eyes glistening wet with tears - but her expression is one of determination rather than anguish.

"Misaka needs to fix Tiny Pete," she says, her voice just as tremulous as the rest of her, but no less firm. Brooking no argument. "Big Sister Murderface, please take Misaka to Tiny Pete. Only Misaka knows how to repair Tiny Pete, a-and...somebody else might get it wrong!"

Not exactly. Deculture said it actually allows a link between a soulgem and Tiny Pete. So its not so much that we "wear" Tiny Pete like a combat suit, but rather that Tiny Pete actually becomes our body (sort of), with our soulgem powering it.

The benefits of that could be great (especially if we can still use golden weapons like the gauntlets), so we should perhaps mention that and start working towards that.

We already knew that Mami is a hypocrite.

Problem is that someone has to spell it out to Chiaki(and maybe Sayaka and Misaka) with big, yellow neon lights drizzled with maple syrup.

That's not likely to be it Dildo's has already shown that she is aware of the short comings of the rest of the main cast and holds them in low regard. There's no reason for Mami to be any different. Especially considering how much Mami fucks everything up for Homura.

They could still start trying to subtly point things out without doing anything that would outright piss Chiaki off.

Dildoes for example has already shown a skill at diplomacy. Its not a choice between doing nothing, and saying "MAMI IS A TRAITOR!!".

Pointing out this particular hypocrisy without outright condemning Mami would have been a chink in the brainwashing, without fully attacking Mami.

You glance at the still-undone paperwork on your desk, then at your arms dealer - before nodding. ...Yeah, sure. You'll take Misaka to where Tiny Pete's being fixed. It's the least you could do, really.

"E-eh? Really?" Misaka's eyes grow wide in disbelief, as if she'd been expecting you to refuse. "B-but, ah, Misaka sees that Big Sister Murderface has paperwork to do, still?" She gestures towards your paperwork-laden desk with one arm. "Um, maybe Misaka can just go find Tiny Pete on her own? Misaka...Misaka doesn't want to disturb Big Sister Murderface when she's working..."

Even if you're not someone particularly given to smiling, your facial features nonetheless pull themselves into an approximation of a genuine one, completely on their own accord - and it's here that you pat her on the head with a hand. No, you tell her. You'll take her there yourself. You don't mind, and your work'll still be here when you get back after.

Misaka cheers at this, loud and happy, and throws her arms around you again, hugging you around your waist. "Yay! Big Sister Murderface is the best!"

...Hah. Well, at least someone thinks so.

You don't leave right away, of course. Misaka had just woken up, after all, and you're not just going to let your arms dealer go carousing about in your headquarters without having breakfast. So only after cajoling her into finishing the rest of Midori's packed breakfast with you - pleading with her for every bite she grudgingly took - you finally leave your Office for Tiny Pete, which you've been told is being repaired in one of the basement floors, specifically the one where they take care of this kind of thing.

Walking side-by-side along the corridors with Misaka, your arms dealer cheerfully holding your hand, you couldn't help but notice the staff (and quite a few Magical Girls) smiling and giggling as the both of you walk past. You try to ignore this, though. It's probably the fucking hat again. Or maybe it's the greatcoat? You're not sure.

"Misaka had a really good dream earlier, Misaka announces," Your arms dealer suddenly pipes up, still all smiles, all traces of her being teary-eyed from earlier all but gone. "Misaka dreamt Big Sister Murderface took Misaka to the amusement park! Ahaha, it was really fun!"

...Ah. That dream Wendy gave her. Well, it sounds like it certainly helped. You'll have to thank her personally for that--

"But it got a bit weird at some places, though..." Misaka frowns here, before looking up at you. "Big Sister Murderface wouldn't stop touching pigtail girl's butt! Even after Misaka told Big Sister Murderface to behave!" She tugs at your hand, before squeezing your fingers as if to try and inflict pain. "Please listen to Misaka more, Big Sister Murderface! Do not touch butts like that!"

Hah, what.

Couple of thoughts.

First, Misaka needs new accomodations Even if her warehous is partially standing, it's ben clearly been compromised. We need to get her a place, ASAp. As for now, we should get her a key to our office, and let her use this bedroom here. As much as I want to take her home, I think she'd prefer to stay here so shcan work on Tiny Pete. It should be mostly sanitized of Kharn, so this room should be ok.
Speaking of whom, we should really call her and Souji, and let them know about this thing with Misaka. Also, we can tell Kharn that we found the giant golden stick that used to be up Ahriman's ass, and see if she remembers any details about it. Also, we need to see if her box of panties has arrived

You shake your head here. Well, you're...you're not going to deny that there have been some ass-grabbing related incidents in the past that you were involved in, but in your defense, they were...well, you weren't yourself during those times. Yes. Temporary ass insanity, that kind of thing. Any court would acquit you, even if apparently your own dream version wouldn't even take a fucking break on it.

You manage another smile down at Misaka - one that hopefully wouldn't scare her for how unnaturally it feels on your face - before asking her about the 'pigtail girl'. Namely, did she have a name? What was she like? Was she nice to Misaka at all?

"Yepperoni, Misaka confirms in a trendy way!" Your arms dealer grins up at you. "Pigtail Girl was really nice! Ah, she didn't really give a name, she just said she was a friend of Big Sister Murderface! She had, uh..." She points towards her chest. "Checkers...? Like in chess, just one strip here! A-and she gives really soft hugs, Misaka remembers!"

"Mm! Really soft and warm! But, Big Sister Murderface always interrupted her by touching her butt! It got to a point that Pigtail Girl got mad, but instead of hitting Big Sister Murderface she just looked really sad all of a sudden." She looks up at you, giving your hand a squeeze. "And then, and then, she told Misaka that she'll be back to get snacks, while Big Sister Murderface and Misaka go to the roller coaster!"

Ah. Must be when she finally got up to take Misaka out of the burning warehouse, then.

Your arms dealer goes on to elaborate on what happened in the rest of her dream, even as the both of you squeeze into a particularly crowded elevator for the basement level - and you hear how your dream self seemed diligent enough at least to take her to every ride she could, while being the perfect Big Sister. You couldn't help but feel a little bit jealous, even, and by the time she finishes, Misaka's face is positively flushed with happiness - glowing, almost.

...Misaka really likes the Amusement park, huh? You ask her as the both of you alight on your chosen floor, the both of you striding through another corridor. Would she like it if you took her to one for real, then?

It's at this point that Misaka's eyes go wide once more - and you feel her grab your hand with both of hers this time, in an almost crushing grip that kids suddenly develop when they're either VERY ANGRY or VERY EXCITED. "Y-yes! Yes, Misaka would! Misaka would really like it, and, and, definitely Misaka wants to go with Big Sister Murderface!"

There's a moment of hesitation here, before she speaks again. "A-and maybe...maybe Misaka will look the other way if Big Sister Murderface wants to touch butts again...but only MAYBE!"

Well. You're put on the spot, now. It seems that Misaka is expecting you to take her to the Amusement park someday.

What do you do?

If Misaki contracts then it means Souji is going to defect to QBs enemies and give all info about WN and GW research in revenge.

And Kharn might well follow considering she is retired, in-love and pregnant with Soujis kid. Even in the absolute best scenario (Kharn kills Souji) happens, QB will lose an incredibly valuable researcher, and Misaka will hate QB forever.

Long story short, contracting Misaka would be a very VERY bad deal for QB.

130 cm is just over the limit (usually 4ft or 122cm) so it looks like the rides themselves won't be death flags. Unless there's a ride called the Death Flag.

On one hand, she could fly off the coaster and die horribly. And knowing Decu and our patented Good Ideas, she'd go flying as punishment for doing something stupid.
On the other, she'd be angry for a few minutes if we didn't let her ride it.

Easy choice.

You look down at the beaming, expectant face of your arms dealer. It's...it's hard to say no to a face like that, especially when the faces you're used to looking at are black-eyed ones with mouthfuls of sharp teeth and brains full of bloody-minded insanity. So yes, even if you're...loathe to make another promise - you'll take her to the amusement park. For real this time.

Of course, you add as Misaka hugs you again, loudly and cheerfully celebrating your breakthrough at being a Good Big Sister Murderface - once your schedule frees up.

The young russian arms dealer stops celebrating here, blinking up at you as what you've just said sinks in - before nodding and grinning again. "Misaka understands! Big Sister Murderface is very important and very busy after all, ahahaha! Misaka is already happy that Big Sister Murderface even made a promise! That means Big Sister Murderface will definitely HAVE to take Misaka, and it also means that Big Sister Murderface won't ever forget!"

...Yeah. Yeah, of course.

Your journal's out of your Inventory and open on your palm with a flick of your wrist, and you quickly scribble in your latest promise - not in a fresh page, but in the FRONT page. Making sure to underline and circle and pepper the entire thing with fucking exclamation marks at the end.

'TAKE MISAKA TO AMUSEMENT PARK AFTER ORIKO IS TAKEN CARE OF.'

'DONTFORGET!!!!'

'SERIOUSLY!!!!'

"Updated my journal," you murmur hastily, shoving your journal back into your Inventory. All while Misaka quizzically smiles at you, no doubt wondering just what her Big Sister Murderface had just been doing, but deciding to just keep quiet about it for reasons.

The rest of the journey to Tiny Pete is made in cheerful silence after that, with Misaka energetically skipping along with every step that you couldn't help but bounce up on the balls of your feet in sympathy. Which is already fucking hard to do with heels, but that's what being a Big Sister is for you, you guess.

It's just fortunate that the floor you're on isn't as populated as the others, so no one has to see their Warmaster half-skipping their way to a repair bay side by side with what looks like a middle schooler in a lab coat.

A few more corridors, and you finally get to Tiny Pete's repair bay - which is apparently just like what you imagined it to be, a sort of huge garage-slash-workshop with robotic arms and tools and shit.

There's quite a few people in this particular one, mundane staff by the looks of them, but the sort paid to know which bits fit together, along with a few Magical Girls clearly overseeing the work while getting their hands dirty in the process, too.

There's a strange sense of order in the chaos - the robotic tools whirring and moving as they're controlled by a member of the staff, while others consult blueprints or do...mechanical stuff on this or that, it's all very technical.

And in the middle of it is none other than your armored comrade and robot buddy Tiny Pete, the mighty warrior propped up onto his feet via a large metal rack while the mundane staff work slowly and carefully in machining his half-melted, half-fused armor off.

"TINY PETE!" Misaka shrieks at the sight of her automaton, in the same voice that any child would cry out for their cherished pet, or even parent - and she rushes forward, nearly stumbling over herself a couple of times but managing to keep upright out of sheer urgency. It's here that one of the Magical Girls working on Tiny Pete breaks away from him and steps forward to meet Misaka, her arms outstretched in order to block her progress.

You recognize her immediately - Rea Ashford, your Vindicare Rank Leader. Huh, so she does this kind of thing too? That's...well, that's a surprise.

"Let Misaka through! Misaka will repair Tiny Pete! You're all doing it wrong!" Misaka struggles to push past Rea, the latter doing a commendable job of keeping your arms dealer out even if...well, they're very nearly the same height, with Rea ending up the taller by a handful of inches. Holy shit, Rea's that short?

"Repairs are progressing normally," Rea Ashford says in her curious monotone. "No technical incompetence or visual deception is occuring. Please leave the area--"

"NO! Tiny Pete is Misaka's! Misaka should be the one to repair Tiny Pete!" Misaka blurts out, pushing against the slight frame of your Vindicare Rank Leader - and despite her size, she's proving to be immoveable. "G-geh! Big Sister! Big Sister Murderface, please...!"

"Warmaster in the vicinity!" Rea immediately turns to bark at the group working on Tiny Pete - and they, just as quickly, stop to stand at attention. The Magical Girls in the pack saluting, perfectly in time with Rea.

You quickly return the salute, and the group turns back to resume its work. Rea on the other hand stands her ground, even moving from side to side as Misaka attempts to sidestep her.

"Warmaster, we are currently doing repairs on the unit Tiny Pete as you requested." The petite Rank Leader intones politely, almost mechanically, not even missing a beat as Misaka tugs on her ponytail. "We have also been told that a representative of the Fourth Officio is already en route to assist. ETA in an hour, maximum."

"The Fourth?!" Misaka's eyes go wide here, and she renews her struggle to get past Rea. "Misaka...doesn't want anybody from the Fourth to touch Tiny Pete! Let Misaka through!"

Huh? What about the Fourth? You blink down at Misaka. Aren't they supposed to be the best at fixing stuff like Tiny Pete?

"Misaka can do it on her own! Do not need the Fourth's help!" Your arms dealer growls now, clearly adamant at getting her hands on her creation. "Big Sister Murderface! Please tell her to get out of Misaka's way!"

What do you do?

[]Tell Rea to let Misaka help and supervise Tiny Pete's repairs.

PROSE MAGICA

Prose Magica: The Ballad of the Seventeenth Part 19

"Mornin', Sunshine!"

"Good morning, Holly," Odette said, just barely getting the words out before a long yawn. "How are things?"

"Same old, same old. You?"

Odette tapped a few keys on her laptop as she settled into her seat at the makeshift desk inside of Sleepy Sue. The Vanus' chipper voice rang out through the computer's speakers, the two quickly establishing a morning routine over the past couple days. The Eversor took a sip of tea from her travel mug, shrugged, and began to mull through her emails.

"Can't complain," she replied. "Soft bed. Breakfast waiting for me when I get up. I could get used to this kind of life."

"Well aren't you lucky. I heard about the thing with Therese yesterday. Everything alright?"

Odette gave a half-hearted shrug, not looking the slightest bit bothered. "She said she'll think about it. Couldn't really ask for anything more," she said. "You finish that report on the- the thingy?"

"Blessed Lady? Sure did," Holly replied. "Thirty pages. Sent a copy to you, Foobs and Terry. You want the short version before you head in?"

"That'd be lovely. I missed having a secretary."

"Check yourself, shorty," the Vanus grumbled. "A few other Officios are big on the Blessed Lady thing, but it never really caught on here. Promises some kind of magical girl heaven, basically. Accept it's, y'know, like a normal religion. Or cult or whatever. Different groups, different beliefs, some are more violent than others."

"Well that's a new one. Think we'll have more problems like this?"

A burst of static came through the speakers as the Vanus gave an exasperated breath. "Most likely, but I have no idea what we're supposed to do. There's no playbook for this. Do we just let things run their course or do we try and nip it in the bud?"

>> ☐ archivalfag 07/26/14(Sat)15:45:41 No.33677297

"Not that it's my decision, but I'm gonna say that going full inquisition is a bad idea," Odette said. She clicked a few times, bringing up the Vanus' report. "How about those hooks Vance was using? There was definitely something wrong with them."

"I know. Not part of her kit, for sure," Holly replied. "I caught a few scattered mentions of mysterious golden weapons, but nothing concrete. Best I can say is we get them analyzed then lock 'em up until we know where they came from. Vance definitely knows something, so we'll probably get someone back in with her. Y'know. Once the walls start to close in on her a little more."

"'Someone'?"

"Hey, I thought you wanted a vacation. You're free to keep poking at her if you want."

Odette chuckled, tilting her head from side to side as she thought the idea over. "I'll get back to you on it. You want me to take a look at those hooks later?"

"If you wouldn't mind. I'd rather not pass them onto a hapless lab tech if something bad happens," Holly replied. "Just don't spend too much time around them. Look for any kind of markings and leave them. Maybe you'll find a clue or something."

"Understood. Any leads on that Daedalus character?"

"Jack shit. I've got a reference to someone going by 'the Architect' and that's it. I assume they're related, but we'll probably have to smack Vance around some more and track her down the old fashioned way."

"I always liked honest detective work."

"'Honest.'"

"Honest by magical girl standards," the Eversor laughed. "Remember who our neighbours are, now."

"Point. That'll be all then?" Holly asked.

"For now, yeah. Guess I'll talk to you in a little bit."

"Later, O," the Vanus said. There was a brief pause as she hesitated to close the call. "And just remember what I said. Don't spend too much time with those things. There's something funny going on here and I don't like it."

"I'll be fine, Holly," Odette groaned, rolling her eyes. "I've been doing this for seven years. I know how to play safe around bad hoodoo."

"Same to you," the little Eversor replied. "Stay out of trouble."

***

"You're panicking too much, Therese."

"I'm not PANICKING, I just," he Warmaster paused, biting her lip, "I don't know what to do!"

The Warmaster of the Seventeenth paced behind her desk, her hands fidgeting and her eyes constantly glancing about. Dark circles hung under her eyes - a sign of the sleep that hadn't come to her that night. Tyler Argente leaned against a far wall, idly browsing the book shelves along the edges of the room.

The waters of Therese's mind hadn't been calm since the previous day. She hadn't counted on Odette being so eager; so hasty to right her wrongs. She should have known, though. It was a virtue that had been taught to every girl in the Officio since its earliest days. No one walked away from a mistake without trying to fix it, and Odette had taken the lessons of the first Warmaster to heart more than any other.

"Right, and that's what we call 'panicking'," Tyler replied. "You always get too emotional like this. You just need to sit down, take a few deep breaths and think about this rationally. Okay? I don't even see what the big deal is. She asked you to be Equerry, yeah? What's the problem there?"

"You don't UNDERSTAND, Ty. This- God, you don't get it!"

"Then fill me in, huh?"

>> ☐ archivalfag 07/26/14(Sat)15:48:09 No.33677375

"Its," Therese stopped, pinching her brow as she fell into her leather chair. A deep breath, count to ten, just like her therapist had said. "Alright, listen. Everything we're about to talk about doesn't leave this room, okay?"

Tyler glanced up at the security camera in the corner of the room - the security camera that had been promptly switched off as soon as she entered the room. "Okay. Just talk to me. I'm your friend. What's wrong?"

"I don't know what's wrong with me, alright?" The Warmaster inhaled through her nostrils and exhaled through her mouth, trying her best to calm down. "I used to think - when I first got this job - I was just filling in until Odette got better, y'know? I hold down the fort for a few months, she comes back, we go back to the good old days. I had no problem with that."

"And now?"

"And now, I don't know. When she was gone, it felt like she wasn't coming back," Therese explained. "It started feeling like this was for real, you know? Like I was really, seriously the Warmaster. I wasn't just some temp and I didn't have to make sure everything I did would be fine with her. I didn't have her shadow hovering over me. Then she came back and..."

"She came back and..?"

The Warmaster leaned over her desk, running a hand through her rusty, auburn hair. She didn't quite know how to phrase it. No - that wasn't true. She knew exactly how to phrase it, she simply didn't know how to make it sound like anything more than a frantic teenage girl's trifles.

"She came back and," Therese murmurred, feeling a pain in the back of her throat, "she came back and everything else came back with her. I don't want to spend my entire career in her shadow, Ty. I don't- I don't want to just be known as Odette's replacement. I got to feel what it was like - what it was REALLY like - to be Warmaster and now I just..."

>> ☐ archivalfag 07/26/14(Sat)15:49:16 No.33677404

Tyler shook her head and slowly stepped around the Warmaster's desk. She put her hands on Therese's shoulders, giving a tender squeeze as the Eversor's body quivered. "Then listen to me, because I want to be very clear," Tyler said as softly as she could, "turn her down."

"But-"

"Shut up and listen, Terry," her aide said, her grip on the Warmaster's shoulder tightening. "I'm not saying this because I'm her competition. I'm saying this because I'm your friend. I don't care if you don't pick me, just don't pick HER. She nearly ran this Officio into the ground then suddenly she begs forgiveness and that's all it takes? No. A few days of right don't make up for two years of wrong. You understand what I'm getting at?"

"I guess," Therese mumbled. "I don't know. I think I should talk about this with someone else. I-"

"Then do that," the Vindicare replied as she slowly let go of her superior. "Your inauguration is in two weeks. You don't HAVE TO pick someone by then. Hell, Brighton never had an Equerry at all. Just don't freak out and take your time to think about this. It's a big decision and you have enough to worry about as it is."

The Warmaster nodded and slowly sat up straight. She looked at her aide, a gentle, grateful smile finding its way to her face. "Thanks, Ty," she said, to which the Vindicare nodded in return. "I've got some things to finish up here, then... I think I'll take the rest of the day off and unwind a little."

"You sure could use it," said Tyler, as she found her way to the door. "I'll leave you to your work. Call me if you need anything, alright?"

"Will do," Therese answered. "And thanks... For always being here for me."

no, because he's been openly used:

She probably wants to keep his internal operations obfustucated. Which makes sense, we've seen MG's with power suits already, and Tiny Pete is on a whole other level.

Last thing we need is chinese knockoffs of Pete pootling around.

The Vindicare gave one last smile - tinged by a moment's hesitation - before she stepped out of the office. The Warmaster stretched, cracking her knuckles as she switched her computer monitor on. After a few clicks, emails by the dozen filled the screen, filled with every variety of report and request imaginable. Finances, squad activities, inter-Officio relations - she had grown used to it all by now. She had learned which ones could be skimmed for details and which warranted careful reading. Or at least, she was sure she knew the difference.

It was at the very top of the list that she found something that piqued her interest. Bright, bold red text reading 'URGENT' prefaced the title of a report compiled by Logises Holly and Molly Corbin. She had heard the words 'Blessed Lady' hear and there over the past few months, along with the occassional brochure slipped into her paperwork, but had never paid it much mind. And yet, what started as vague disinterest in the report slowly but surely turned to fascination as she read on.

***

"Odette Brighton. Clearance level violet."

Purple doors hissed as they slid open on the far side of the bank of multi-coloured elevators. Odette gave the security camera a slight nod as she stepped in, then poked one of the indigo buttons inside. The doors klunked before the lift shuddered as it began its descent.

The former Warmaster had exactly one minute and thirty-nine seconds worth of alone time in the elevator as it dropped. There wasn't exactly a whole lot to think about, all told. She was curious about the golden hooks, worried about the sudden entrance of a new faction from stage left, but... that was someone else's problem now. She wasn't Warmaster anymore. Her assignment was almost over and - had she felt less obligation to the Officio - she could forget all about it after turning her report in. Knowing that the option was there gave her a certain feeling of freedom that she hadn't paid attention to before.

So when is that flashback about Mami going to start anyway?

Her thoughts were cut off as the elevator door rumbled open, revealing yet another sterile white hallway, this time with perfectly symmetrical rows of thick metal doors on either side. Not a single soul was present in the hall as the Eversor stepped out. The hall was monitored by a single security camera at the far end of the hall, along with all manner of invisible sensors that Odette had memorized. With the press of a button, the twin Vanus could flood the entire hallway with lake water, drowning anyone unfortunate enough to have tried to break into the Seventeenth's maximum security vaults, as rare as that was.

"They're in vault two," the Vanus said over the PA. "You don't come out in ten minutes, I'm sending someone in to get you. Capisce?"

"Christ, Holly," Odette replied as she punched her security code into the second door's keypad. "What are you so afraid of?"

"You read the report."

Tumblers clunked and klanked as the heavy steel door unlocked. After a moment, the gears went silent and the door squealled open. Immediately, Odette was hit by an odour that was growing uncomfortably familiar. Sickly sweet decadence. Flowers at a funeral.

The tiny Eversor coughed and quietly swore to herself, involuntarily taking a couple steps back. She forced herself to enter the room, the door shutting itself after her. Not a single camera or speaker decorated the interior of the perfectly cubical vault, only a single stainless steel table bolted to the floor in the centre of the room. A musty dufflebag sat on the table - no doubt the closest thing available after the hooks had been pried from Odette's hands.

I love Yuma. ~~The flashback made her so much better, and she was already pretty good.~~

Odette unzipped it slowly, cautiously peering into the bag. The hooks glinted as she folded the bag down around them, looking almost as if they had never been used.

"They're calling."

The Eversor looked them over with her one eye, not having worked up the nerve to actually touch them. There were two hooks, each one as long as her forearm and connected by a heavy chain. Her eye itched. She was astounded at just how clean they were, both looking dazzling and luxurious - gaudy, even.

"They want you."

Odette reached out, her pale hands shaking. The chain jangled as she picked up the first hook. She tested its weight, tossing it lightly in her hand. It felt strangely comfortable to hold. The weight was perfect - heavy enough to do serious damage when thrown, but light enough to make throwing easy. She could hear her heart beating like a wardrum in her ears.

"You want them."

Odette set the hook down, then ran the chain through her hands. She noticed, as she did, that each link of the chain was embossed with an XII. The percussion in her ears was speeding up. She could hear a distant crackling, popping sound, but paid it no mind. Something felt wrong about the hooks, something dark and predatory waiting just beneath the surface.

"Take them."

She forced herself to tear her eye away from the hooks, suddenly bringing her nose-to-nose with a horribly familiar figure. Ice-flecked white hair. Pale, blotchy blue-tinged skin. Eyes of the purest cobalt blue she had ever seen. Claws of ice and frozen blood.

Odette froze, staring herself in the face. She suddenly realized where the crackling sound had come from: Rime coated every surface of the room.

"Oh," the ghost gasped, feigning surprise, "you finally noticed."

Odette felt a sickening sensation in the pit of her stomach. Her hand smacked down on the table as she tried to keep herself upright. The room was spinning and the pounding in her ears was deafening.

"How many of your friends have died?" The figure asked. "How long can you keep this up? Pretending that nothing is wrong. That you're perfectly fine." A single icy talon found its way under Odette's chin. "You're broken, Odette Brighton. You've been broken for a long time. Your own incubator tried to have you put down like a rabid dog..."

The former Warmaster slapped the frozen claw away. Mustering every ounce of strength she had left, she shoved the dufflebag off the table, and the hooks with it. Everything seemed to meld together after that.

Her demon vanished as the door to the vault screeched as it was pulled open. Red light filtered in from the hallway. When Fredrica Volk found her old mentor, she was sitting on the ground, eye wide in shock.

The Rank Leader called her name. "Odette," she screamed, "ODETTE." She snapped her fingers in front of the one-eyed girls face, then slapped her when she recieved no response.

Odette blinked as she slowly came to her senses. She looked at the boyish, black-haired Eversor as if she'd seen a ghost. "Freddy," she muttered, her eye glancing around wildly. "What happened? Has... Has it been ten minutes?"

Fredrica blinked, shaking her head in disbelief. "Odette," she said, "you've been in here for half an hour. Holly saw ice coming through the door and called me."

The smaller Eversor looked down for a moment, then back at the Rank Leader. "I need to see Fubey."

"So in conclusion: We go after Daedalus, and you bury hooks in concrete and dump them in the fucking lake."

The incubator of the Seventeenth sat atop his desk, staring at Odette with his constantly expressionless face. The Eversor had delivered her report, then set about explaining her encounter with the golden hooks - leaving out the part about the frozen ghost that had accompanied her. The incubator - to his credit - had sat quietly through the entire account, only speaking up to ask short, simple questions. Fubey nodded slowly as she finished speaking, taking a moment to process everything.

"I see," he said. "You are certain that there is no value in keeping them?"

"One hundred percent."

He nodded again, his gaze shifting as he thought. "Very well. I will make arrangements for their disposal. In the mean time, Miss Corbin has informed me that you wish to take some time off. Is this so?"

"I- Yeah," she replied, feeling a twinge of guilt. "Just a week, maybe two. I don't know. I need some time to get things sorted out."

"You have my permission, then," Fubey stated. "No longer than a month, but do take your time, if you feel it necessary. You are a valuable asset to this Officio, Odette. Your physical and mental health is important. I look forward to seeing you, ah, 'back in action', as they say."

"Thanks, Fooby," the Eversor smiled, patting his head. "We done here?"

The incubator hesitated for moment, before nodding again. "I believe so. You are dismissed."

>> ☐ archivalfag 07/26/14(Sat)15:56:12 No.33677557

Odette turned to leave, but stopped as a thought ran across her mind. She couldn't help but remember what the ghost in her nightmares had said. The form she had found in Fennel's apartment. She didn't want to mention it, but it wasn't something that could be left alone. Her hand clenched into a fist as she turned back around.

"Was there something else?" The incubator asked, his head cocking to the side."

Every part of her screamed at her to drop it and leave, but her mind was already set. "Fubey," she started, gulping, "what - exactly - is the Ymir Protocol?"

And that's all for chapter 19! I hope you enjoyed it!

Sorry this one took so long, there was a bit of a roadblock that took me a while to get past. Hopefully things will speed up from here on. Hopefully...

Same here; it really surprised me. Then again, it opened up a whole new side to Yuma AND Malal.

~~Also I'm almost certain that everything would have gone to shit no matter WHAT we chose to do, given how the past turned out. Like, if we left Girl A alone but went to see Kharn, there were probably a trillion ways to create about the same level of SUFFERING and HEALING that we got.~~

~~Hell, I'm convinced we got the better end of the deal; Yuma ended up being directly responsible for Girl A's fucked up transition into Murderface, but that's probably better than somehow becoming COMPLETELY responsible for Kharn turning into a horrendous monstrosity (rather than partially responsible from not having checked up on her).~~

THE FALL OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 08/01/14(Fri)09:35:40 No.33816105

You blink down at the small, panicking Russian arms dealer. What's gotten into her? You thought the Fourth was the best people to get a hold of when dealing with...well, complex stuff like Tiny Pete. It's not like you called in a car mechanic or something to fix the crippled giant. Why is she so antsy all of a sudden?

"Big Sister Murderface...wouldn't understand!" Misaka grunts as she continues to push against Rea's immobile form - and while the Vindicare Squad Leader remains coldly impassive throughout, you can tell she's already sweating at the effort to keep the insistent Russian back.

"Tiny Pete is Misaka's best friend, given to Misaka by Big Sister Murderface! Misaka....Misaka won't let the Fourth take Tiny Pete away!"

Why would the Fourth take Tiny Pete? He's not theirs to take! You tell her this, placing a placating hand on Misaka's shoulder. Besides, you found him fair and square in your Shield. It's not like you stole Tiny Pete from them, right?

...Right?

>>33816105

Misaka stops here, looking back up at you with uncertainty flickering in her gaze - before nodding, a look of determined conviction set on her face. "O-of course! Tiny Pete is property of Misaka and Big Sister Murderface! Fair and square!"

She turns back to Rea, this time baring her teeth. "If you do not get out of Misaka's way, Misaka will start biting! ONE! TWO--"

You finally nod at Rea before your young arms dealer could finish her ominous countdown - and the short Vindicare Rank Leader steps aside with a sigh, allowing the Russian to pass. Misaka lets out a whoop in triumph as she whips past Rea, nearly tripping over her own feet in her rush. And even before she can reach Tiny Pete - the armored giant held up by the heavy-duty scaffolding built around him - the russian is already shouting instructions and rattling off lists at the repair crew, some of them immediately breaking away and moving towards the multitudes of tool racks up on the walls, while others begin their work upon Tiny Pete in earnest.

Hnh. Well. You can probably leave Misaka here, she'll be at safe and happy working on repairing your armored giant buddy, at least. No need to worry about Oriko's flunkies getting at her here.

"I was hoping for an opportunity to study the construct myself," Rea suddenly says beside you, her deadpan monotone not exactly coming across with the wistfulness of her pout. "I suppose that's off the table, now. Pity." She shrugs her narrow shoulders, the blocky blue gun holstered at her side clinking with her movement.

How do you react?

You look down at your pouting Vindicare Rank Leader, fighting back the strangest compulsion to reach over and pat her head. Which you know isn't going to be received well at all, considering that Rea Ashford is just a couple of years younger than you. Just a lot shorter.

If...if she wants to study Tiny Pete, then why doesn't she just ask Misaka for permission? Trade notes, or blueprints, or something like that. That kind of stuff's allowed, isn't it? Even among people who are obviously rad enough to make things like Tiny Pete?

Rea nods as she turns back towards the tableau surrounding the armored giant, with Misaka energetically supervising the removal of Tiny Pete's corroded armor plating. "It's allowed. Professional courtesy exists, especially here. And I have tried, Warmaster - many times. On the phone, email, even going so far as to visit her warehouse to try to appeal to her personally." She shakes her head, her own ponytail swaying from side to side with the movement. "Denied on all attempts. Which is understandable, considering that I would do exactly the same if I were in her place."

...Exactly the same?

Rea nods again, looking up at you once more. "Wouldn't you be protective of something you built with your own two hands, Warmaster? Or at least, gave life to?"

Well, you haven't really done anything like that. ...But sure, you kinda get it. Like how a parent's protective of their kid, right? Own flesh and blood, that sort of thing?

"In a way." Your Vindicare rank leader nods one final time, before turning to leave. "My duties are done here. I'll be in my own office, Warmaster, if you need me."

As you glance towards Rea's departing back, a thought hits you.

Maybe you could...?

[]Offer to ask Misaka for permission in Rea's stead. If she's just studying Tiny Pete, then it should be alright.
[]Let her go, and say goodbye to Misaka before leaving as well. You've still got stuff to do, places to be.

Threadly reminder that Mami set us up to be killed by Kirlia by warning her we were coming, is judged an untrustworthy danger by whoever left our recordings, has lied to us and gotten our equerry and best friend to do the same, has an army a magical girls ready to kill or die for her, is rated a massive threat by our axe, controls what paperwork crosses our desk, and supplies enough of our food supply that she is potentially drugging us into trusting her irrationally (and she's feeding QB the same stuff).

Christ, we apologized to her after she confessed to tipping off Kirlia. And she's not naive enough to think that bitch would do anything other than stab us. And we refer to her as "our blonde victory goddess". Whatever she's spiked our damn whiskey and pancakes with is some good shit.

You blink at Rea's retreating back, then at Misaka - before stepping forward and then grabbing the departing Vindicare Rank Leader's hand, in an attempt to stop her from leaving.

It works - well, not as if it wasn't easy to do, with the short blonde feeling just a bit more noodlier than you, her small frame stiffening as you grasp her even smaller gloved hand in yours.

Rea tries to pull away, once, twice - halfhearted attempts to get free that she quickly gives up on the third, instead looking up at you with another pout. This one of seemingly dismayed surprise.

"Warmaster?" She starts to ask, looking down at your hand and then back up to your face again. A certain something shining in her eyes behind her glasses.

It's here that you offer to intercede in her behalf. If she's just going to study Tiny Pete, then it should be alright, isn't it? You'll ask Misaka for her. You don't know if they've got some sort of rivalry or competition going on, but if you're the one asking, then Misaka may be a bit more amenable to Rea studying the Terminator.

"I...I'm not sure, Warmaster." Despite her expression remaining completely the same as it had always been, you could easily discern that she's somewhat embarrassed by your offer. This of course is helped by her cheeks tinting a faint pink. "...It would be an immense favor, but I do not wish to impose--"

You cut off her quiet protests by pulling her along with you as you walk back towards Misaka. ...Christ, are all Vindicares supposed to be this noodly? It feels like you're dragging along a small child, instead of a professional Magical Girl that specializes in long-range assassinations. She even feels lighter than your arms dealer, for fuck's sake.

"Big Sister Murderface?" Misaka blinks up at you as you approach her. "Ah, Misaka will be okay here, do not worry! Much work has to be done with Tiny Pete, and Misaka promises not to venture out without escort, if Big Sister Murderface was worried about that! Misaka--" She stops as she realizes just who you're holding by the hand, now. Her cheerful expression turning into one of supreme distaste. "EH?! Big Sister Murderface...!"

You quickly explain the situation, before things get too out of hand. By the time you finish, the frown hasn't quite removed itself from Misaka's face, her arms crossed over her chest. Rea, meanwhile, seems to be getting comfortable with you holding her hand - in fact, she's holding yours now, instead of you grasping her fingers.

"W-well, Misaka will allow study of Tiny Pete, but..." Misaka narrows her eyes at Rea, before looking back up at you again. "...but only because Big Sister Murderface asked! That is only reason!" It's here that she moves forward, pulling your hand free from Rea's grip, before prodding the Vindicare Rank Leader on the chest with a finger. "And Misaka will check your notes personally after, okay?! Is non-negotiable!"

"Understood." Rea nods. "That will not be a problem."

"Nnn...and Big Sister Murderface owes Misaka another favor! Big Sister Murderface better not forget!" Misaka points up at you, before moving back into the throng of repair staff, throwing herself back into Tiny Pete's repairs. Rea makes to follow her into the organized chaos, a notepad and pen already in her hands. She turns back to you, still blushing - and it's here that she nods in thanks before finally stepping into the crowd.

[+ 100 Rea Points!]

Well. You've settled that, at least.

It's frustrating that the only thing we've called her out on (telling us Wendy was dead) is her most defensible action.

Diary entry 7, unlocked under "TOMOE":

>You love her, don't you? It's alright. Everyone loves her. She makes sure of it. There's nobody in the magical girl business more connected than Tomoe Mami - she's got friends in every Officio. >More than that, she has people that would kill for her, maybe even die for her for nothing more than a smile and a pat on the head. Not just rank and file, either - Warmasters have fallen in love with Tomoe Mami. Special forces. Cannibals and murderers, heroes and psychopaths. If Mami died, the entire magical world would grieve, and then it would hunt.
>You're one of them. There's no shame in it. She's a mother figure for a lot of people, and a lover for a lot of others. Someone that always knows what carrot to use and when, and how to use the stick after she pulls the ribbons out.
>I don't trust her. Nobody should command that much power. But if you're on her side - no, of course you're on her side. If she's on your side, and you know that for certain, she's probably the most valuable asset you could have. Just be careful. Watch your back. Don't let her smile fool you. She's a killer, just like any other magical girl that's been around for as long as she has.
>Maybe worse.

Sounds like an army, or at least a personal faction to me.

Consider this: Decu has always referred to Chiaki's paranoia and how "you can't be too careful" whenever we choose the full shadowruns option after, for example, we hear a strange noise through a door and we pull out our pistol. It isn't so out of character for us to be paranoid about people we regularly interact with. We should be wondering whether they've been taken over by someone else's soul gem or are aliens wearing their skin.

On a completely meta level, I'm slightly irritated about it, because if Mami does betray us "the clues were there all along, and you were such numbskulls you didn't see it until she started gloating and twirling her moustache", when the fact of the matter is that we haven;t really had a chance to try to pre-empt or subvert such a betrayal. I just don't want to get into that all-too-common situation where the viewer/player knows that a betrayal is going to happen, but the MC doesn't have a clue.

You make your way back to your own office, leaving behind a happily-busy arms dealer and an even happier Vindicare Rank Leader. It's to note here that before you left, Tiny Pete himself raised a half-melted fist in your direction, making a few of the repair staff scatter in surprise - and you returned the gesture with one of your own.

What a guy, that Tiny Pete. If only he'd been around a handful of years earlier - you could've ridden him to school, like a big spiky pal.

Wistful memories of times you don't even remember aside, you heave a sigh as you plant your ass back into your seat, behind your desk. The paperwork that you'd left annoyingly still there. Completely and insultingly devoid of the common decency of destroying itself before you got back.

Another sigh - and another cigarette lit and stuck between your lips - and you dive headfirst into the remaining piles of paperwork, taking care to read each one before signing the required line and crunching your stamp down on top of it. It's as dry and as boring as you thought it'd be - if not more. It takes you the better part of the morning to go through them all, and by the time you've signed the last line and stamped the last stamp on the last document that you couldn't help but slump forward on your desk. Feeling as if you've just sparred ten rounds in a handicap match against Kharn and Sayaka. ...Yes, that sounds like an outrageous exagerration, but that's how you feel.

The gilded envelope with the pressed golden leaf and the logo of the Second, predictably enough, is an exact copy of the one you had to deal with previously. Same message to Sakura Kyoko, with the same privately-written note addressed to you, the Warmaster of the Ninth.

The same veiled appeal to one's sense of gratitude, wrapped up in an amiable request for help.

...Well, you already have the response to that. You pull the lowermost drawer on your desk, and drop the gilded letter there before pushing the drawer close with a heeled foot. Normally you'd have shredded it, but...well, maybe you're not that stupid as to deliberately piss another Officio off that's only asking for help. Maybe just piss them off slightly.

You glance towards the wall clock. Just an hour before lunch. ...How time flies when you're dying a slow, pointless death on your desk.

Just as you make to get out of your chair to stretch - feeling various parts of your frame ache at having to sit still for so long - it's here that someone knocks on your office door. Second time for the day, that.

"Warmaster?" It's Mami, her voice warm, immediately recognizable, and immediately making the pain in your back and joints disappear. "There's someone here to see you personally. Can we come in?"

She needs to ask? You find yourself smiling again, before calling out to the affirmative. Making sure to hide your full ashtray in another empty desk drawer and arranging your finished paperwork in neater, more organized piles.

The door to your office opens smoothly, and there, in front of Mami, clutching what appears to be a manila folder in her hand and looking as if she'd rather be anywhere BUT in your office right now - is Wendy Cooldown.

...Well. This is a surprise.

"Sorry for our intrusion, Chiaki-san," Mami sheepishly apologizes as she gently pushes Wendy into your office with one hand, while carefully closing the door behind her with her other. "I really didn't want to interrupt you while you were busy, but we had planned to breach this topic during the meeting earlier, until, well..." She shrugs, helplessly.

Until Oriko decided to be a dildo about things, yeah. You were there.

"...Yes, that. Wendy, go ahead and sit down right there, one of the chairs in front of Chiaki-san's desk." Wendy's sullenly silent as always, and while you were expecting her to snap at something, she merely obeys Mami to the letter - stopping briefly at a certain spot, glancing down at the carpet, before slowly stepping around it. Avoiding that same spot, which you remember is where Erika had started bleeding after you'd shot her kneecap out.

"How are you handling the paperwork, by the way?" Mami smiles at you as she herself sits down on the other chair placed in front of your desk - as you sit down on yours behind the massive piece of mahogany power furniture. "I increased the amount to about ten percent of the paperwork we need to deal with every day. I thought Chiaki-san would be able to handle that much quite easily, at least."

How do you respond?

We could here people talking quietly in the lobby, so it's probably not soundproofed.
Also, Kharn wouldn't care if people heard. More likely she thought of the screaming as a lions roaring for dominance.

Who is Warmaster of you body?

IIRC, before making the contract, QB said something to the effect of 'even if you don't contract, I can make your problems go away', and Yuma (correctly) assumes he meant killing her parents, and asks him not to do that.

It was no trouble. It is important to ask yourself questions you can answer honestly about what you like or are interested in.

It broadens your horizons as a person and helps you look at the world in different ways. And it is not uncommon to desire such domination be held over you nor is it wrong to find individuals of perceived power to be sexually exciting.

Good luck in your endeavors and rejoice in your "fear boner" or however you viewthe excitement . And I hope one day you meet someone who is interested in you and can inspire such in you and you can explore these feelings safely.

Or unsafely as your preference may run

The paperwork's manageable, you lie through your teeth. It just takes a bit of getting used to, that's all.

...Oh, and you're done with your current share, by the way. You emphasize this by tapping one of your orderly piles in front of you, the uppermost sheet still wet with the ink from your stamp pad. Forcing yourself not to tear off great handfuls of your own hair from your own scalp, as Mami's earlier statement about the paperwork finally sinks in.

Ten percent? JUST TEN PERCENT? This is what ten percent of the total paperwork load that the Officio has to deal with every FUCKING DAY?

Christ. What the hell did you get yourself into?

"Oh?" Mami blinks at you, before surveying your desk surface - and she claps both hands together as she realizes that you're indeed telling the truth. "A-ah! That's wonderful, Chiaki-san! You've finished your workload in much less time than I'd predicted! By quite a large margin, in fact!" She smiles beautifully at you as she showers you with praise, and you can't help but feel your cheeks heat up at this treatment. "Well done, Warmaster! Although..." The blonde blinks at the piles again. "...What happened to the Black Envelopes? I was going to collect them to have them sent off by logistics--"

It's fine, you tell her. You have it handled. She shouldn't worry about them.

"Really?" Mami seems amused here, and nods. "Very well, Warmaster. I trust your judgment."

"Yeah. Well done. " Wendy grumbles, turning away, still clutching the manila folder on her lap.

You clear your throat here, after an awkward moment of silence between all three of you. Well. Uh. It's...what's all this about, then? You nod at Mami, and then at Wendy, in turn. Something that wasn't brought up during the meeting at the hotel? What is it?

"Wendy will tell you herself, Chiaki-san." Mami smiles again, before turning to Wendy and nodding. Wendy returns the gesture, before standing up stiffly and then placing the manila folder onto your desk.

You pull it towards you and open it just as Wendy begins to speak. When she does, it's with a curiously-polite tone, but still...well, ostensibly Wendy. Sounding formal and tired and wretched and angry, all at the same time.

"...High Priestess wants me to work with you directly. It's...not a transfer, exactly. Our official situation is complicated. Think of it as a mercenary contract." You glance down at the printout inside the folder and yes, it's pretty much just that.

"Me and a couple of my subordinates - Jade Nakajima and Yulia Bloodysunday - as acting members of the Ninth for the time being. Somebody to do your paperwork while you fuck Greenie on the couch, plus help with the Prognostications. ...You in?"

"Again, this was supposed to be breached during the meeting itself, and it was going so well." Mami shakes her head. "But yes, that's what this is all about, Chiaki-san. The decision is yours, and I know you'll make the right decision." No smile this time, simply a nod, one that fully implied that she did trust you THAT much.

How do you react?

[]Ask Wendy what she thinks about working underneath you first.
[]Accept the contract.

Yeah honestly that was the only thing the /tg/ hivemind ever did that was Objectively Wrong, and consequently it was the only thing that ever got me to have any strong feelings about events in the quest (which I've otherwise only been following out of love of spectacle).

Seriously, we need to have more legitimate temptation-based fuckups, but it's damn hard to make those happen since "more information about the quest" is just about the only thing the players can be tempted with that ALSO tempts characters.

We've got plenty of non-canon lewds after all.

Magical Scribe Eleanor Slam versus Magical Swashbuckler Kai Cress

I can't reach my alarm clock for some reason. It's blaring its annoying beep but I can't shut it off. Opening my sleepy eyes to the glare of the morning sun, I turn to see the obvious problem: I don't have a right arm.

Damn. This is going to take some getting used to, isn't it?

So I have to get out of bed to turn it off. Was hoping to use the snooze alarm, but since I'm up already, I should get ready. Jael's nice, but she told me on day one that she won't forgive me for being late. Feels weird, getting lectured by somebody younger than me. She did give me a toaster, though. Between her and the stuff from the gift basket, I should be set for a couple weeks. For instance, the bag of bread that I'm spinning open was supposedly something the Warmaster herself baked. It makes good toast, in any case. I'll have to splurge on some jelly packets before I use it all up.

Drop one piece in the slot, drop one piece in the other slot, and push the tab down... It's heating up, but it'll take a few minutes, and I'd rather not just stand around and wait. I'll try out that new shampoo I got yesterday. Supposed to smell like flowers and be good for curly hair, instead of smelling like flower-scented turds and making it feel stiff. I don't normally care about that sort of thing, but since I have to interact with people now, I'm supposed to look presentable. And also smile more.

Reluctantly removing my comfy pajamas - well, more like struggling out of them one-handed - I step into the shower and turn on the water. FUCK IT'S COLD COLD COLD FUCK! All grogginess gone, I squirt the shampoo on my head and work it into a lather as the water starts to warm up. Smells like lilacs. It's pretty nice.

That should be enough lathering, so I let the water rinse it off, and finish showering. While struggling with the hairdryer, I step on the footstool and inspect myself in the mirror.

...I'm frowning again.

For fuck's sake, cheer up, Eleanor. Nobody wants to see you pouting all day. And things aren't so bad right now. You've healed up, and you're not a traumatized, sobbing wreck like you thought you'd be.

So why am I still so unhappy?

Looking out into my room, I see a golden fist resting on the table. The 'most magnificent robot arm' Fuckface arranged to have made for me.

That might be part of it.

It's better than being armless, though. My hair's drying and I'm done showering, so now I can put it in. I pick it up, still surprised by how light the thing is, and slot it into place. Whatever's inside it starts to purr quietly as I regain feeling on my right side. Flexing the thing and making fists with it... Yeah, it works fine. I just wish it wasn't so gaudy and bulky.

Toast's been done for a while. I change back into costume and pluck the slightly warm bread from the toaster. Still have half an hour before I have to be at Sundry Offerings, so I can take my time with-

-knock knock knock-

Somebody at the door this early? I continue scarfing down breakfast - it's good toast - and make my way to the door. A little hop onto and over the bed puts me in position to turn the knob. Delicately, though, because the Second had me crushing walnuts to test the prosthetic's abilities.

I don't know what I expected, but I was somehow still surprised when the person knocking turned out to be a pirate.

...Okay, Fuckface looked like a pirate, but this lady looked even more pirate-y. She's got a long, buttoned-up red coat that flares open over her stomach, with those big poofy things on the shoulders, and a belt with a skull buckle on it. She's got skull cufflinks on her cuffs, and a bunch of rings on her fingers. There's a skull-and-crossbones bandana on her head on top of silver hair. Eyes are kinda orange, and her teeth are sharp. She puts me in the mind of a shark...

I just now realize I've been gawking at her with toast in my mouth.

She said working with us, not being tied at the hip, Christ.

I think Chiaki's relationship with Midori is the best thing since sliced bread but we can't turn down legitimately good deals or things that make catching oriko easier down on the basis of "muh Midori"

On the other hand, Having the church investigate independently has it's own merits as well...

While I'm pulling the food out and murmuring an apology, the lady is grinning at me. I feel like I'm being sized up for a meal.

She's the first one to speak, and asks, "Be ye Eleanor Abbot Slam?" She even talks kinda like one... Oh, right, she asked me a question.

"Y-yes," I respond, "that's me."

"Arr!" exclaims the pirate lady, pointing at me with a claw-like finger, "Warmaster Russ extends congratulations on your leg healin' up."

Oh. Is that it? "...Thanks?" I murmur.

"Moreover," she continues, evidently not finished, "she insists that ye report for Eversor examinations, right now!"

Seriously? I ask her just to make sure, "Right now?"

"Aye, right now!" the lady affirms. She stops pointing and instead offers her hand. Like she's going to drag me around like a kid. "Are ye comin' or not?"

"U-um..."

I'm a little torn. On the one hand, the sooner I do this and get this over with, the sooner I can leave this place and join back up with Checkers and company. On the other hand, I don't really feel like I'm ready. I haven't really done anything to prepare at all. I'm not sure I'm even mentally prepared.

Pirate lady isn't too keen on waiting, it seems. She's scowling and snarling at me now, "I don't tolerate fools who can't make up their minds! If ye can't decide in the next five seconds, I'm goin' t' eat ye alive!"

And I believe her. She really looks like she could do that if she wanted. In fact, she looks like she -wants- to do it. I'm reminded of the witch that nearly bit my head off, and it makes me shiver.

But then she's grinning again, cheerily telling me, "That was a joke, lass! A joke!" She leans in to whisper conspiratorially, "But if we dally too long, 'Her Highness' will give us both an earful." I don't know who that is, but... I don't want to get yelled at.

"So," the lady asks once again, "be ye ready?"

No, no I'm not ready. But I don't really have any choice, do I? So I tell her, sounding every bit defeated, "...Yes ma'am, I'll go now."

"Don't call me ma'am!" she replies, gripping me by the hand and leading me out. "Th' name's Kai Cress, Actin' Eversor Rank Leader, and leader of Squad Krakenmaw! But ye can call me Roger."

I'm only half paying attention at this point. Right now, a feeling of dread distracts me, and I'm trying not to look at her tail. I think it's a tail. It's coming out of the space below her dress like a tail. But it has a face on it. And teeth. And... Guns. A bunch of guns. And it's covered in tattoos. And it's very big. Really hard not to stare. Especially when it's staring right back.

...Huh? Wait a second.

"Why Roger?"

"Because I'm a right jolly person, I am!" cheers Kai, her laugh sounding like a motorboat running.

...Okay, so... She talks like someone who only vaguely knows how to sound like a pirate, she might possibly be a cannibal, her tail is looking at me like I'm food, and she makes bad jokes.

I still don't dislike her as much as Fuckface. Fuckface wrecked Checkers' visit and made me lose my arm. Fuckface can go eat dirt.

I hope she doesn't mind if I eat while we're walking, though. I'm not doing any kind of examination on an empty stomach, and nobody can make me.

...That's some good toast right there. Definitely getting some jelly in the future.

"So," I start talking between bites, "what does this Eversor examination... What do I have to do?"

"Ye have to best another Eversor in battle!" Kai jovially declares. Crazy bitch seems way too happy about it. "The both of ye will fight until one of ye surrenders or is no longer able to continue."

"Won't I be at a disadvantage?" I ask. "I don't have a weapon, and I haven't really... Trained or prepared for this. At all."

"A weapon will be provided for ye!" is her idea of reassurance, as is, "And worry not, your opponent is still a rookie."

"Although," she murmurs, her smile fading to a frown as she claws at her chin thoughtfully, "she -was- selected after she paid for the privilege."

They paid to fight me?

"...Who'd want to fight me, though?" I ask, finishing the last of the bread. I think we're at our destination, because Kai/Scary Pirate Lady is pushing open a set of double doors in front of me.

Inside is a room that... Well I think it's really... It looks...

It looks like a tornado ran through it, with claws. Every surface has deep gouges in it. The whole place looks well-worn and... Kinda freaks me the fuck out. It feels like a gymnasium, only even more soul-crushing. And there are racks and racks of weapons lining the walls. I really, really hope that those are rust stains on some of them.

There's a couple figures in here besides us. They're a ways away, so I can't really see them very well, even with the lighting. I make to move closer, but Kai stops me by keeping a firm grip on my arm. I look at her, confused.

"For safety's sake," she states, holding up a little transparent box with a cushion inside, "I'll be needin' to hold on to your soul gem."

I kinda have my doubts about this sort of thing. "Is that really allowed?" I venture.

Kai actually looks serious when she's speaking this time, "Ye can say no, but we won't be held responsible if ye die here."

...Well it's not like I have a lot to lose. I gingerly put my soul gem onto the cushion, and Kai smiles again. She's giving me a cocky, two-finger salute. I awkwardly attempt to return the gesture, somehow not braining myself with my metal arm.

"Are you quite finished?" a cold, business-like voice intones, echoing through the hall. "I don't know about you all, but I have a schedule to keep."

I stumble towards the weapon rack, and my nose fills with the smell of blood. There's dried blood everywhere, on the weapons, on the floor, some of it even got onto the ceiling. The dizzying array of armaments is... Making me dizzy just looking at it. Some of them are gleaming really wickedly, and I think I saw one of them move.

...I don't like the look of any of them. I'll just go without.

It's as I advance upon my opponent and... Whoever the other person is... That the feeling of dread from before returns. It doesn't seem to be from the business-like person muttering about 'proctoring for a couple meatheads'. Her tattoos are kind of scary, but that's not what's bothering me. So that must mean...

"...Oh fuck me..."

Hopping around and unfurling her wings is Milly Schulz. Fucking butterfly girl is my opponent. I can't fucking do this. I can't-

"Miss Slam, please proceed to the arena. Now." The businesswoman orders, and I find myself involuntarily moving forward. Scary Pirate Lady is pushing me towards the mat that Milly is dancing on.

"Ye have a history, I gather?" Kai inquires.

I nod quickly, and whimper, "She broke my shin..."

Kai makes that weird laugh again. Sort of a 'rerererere' sound. It's unnerving.

Far, far too soon, I'm standing across from butterfly psycho. She stops jumping and points at me with one of her spiked maces.

"If it isn't the little barbarian that destroyed my beloved garden," she sneers, her face ugly with contempt. "Come to beg for forgiveness?"

Well this is news to me. I love apologizing for everything and not getting hurt! "Can I really do that?" I ask hopefully.

The wicked grin on her face only grows wider. "Naturally! Give up and agree to be my personal attendant for the rest of your life, and I'll let you live!"

"Of course," she adds dismissively, "that is after I beat some respect into you." Bitch sure does love to talk. Fuckface actually has real competition for being the person I dislike the most at this moment. The air around her crackles with lightning, making her look all the more intimidating. This was a bad idea after all.

"Goodness knows you need to learn manners from somewhere, considering your worthless upbringing and whorish friends obviously taught you nothing."

"...the fuck did you just say?" I snarl.

"Aww, did I hurt your feelings?" the fucking cunt jeers, making her face look very punchable.

"You take that back, you prissy bitch!" I yell back. I think... Yes, she's actually the person I hate the most right now.

This stupid bitch. This stupid goddamn bitch is taunting me, leaning down and practically spitting on my face.

"Are you going to cry about it like a child?"

I want to cry. I want to go back to my room and cry about all of this ridiculousness. About how much shit I have to put up with. About these awful people I run into.

But as my vision goes red, and something clicks in my mind, there's something I want to do even more.

Business woman calls out from nearby, "Alright, enough trash talk you two. You ready?" I'd forgotten about her.

Fuckwad piss-drinker over there nods. I make an affirmative noise. Crazy pirate is cheering some distance away.

"Three, two, one, fight." The countdown comes quickly, and it takes a second for me, and my enemy, to realize it.

That pompous asshole charges at me, screaming, "I'll make a scarf from your entrails, you little shitstain!"

I make a fist, and it wraps around something. A pen, taller than I am. One with ink dripping from its nib onto the mat. The nib is sharp; sharp and pointed like a spear. I bring it up and hold it with both hands, pointing it at my opposition.

I know on some level that I'm going to feel awful about this later. I'm going to regret it. I'm going to almost cry about it, wishing I hadn't done it. I'm going to hate myself for doing it. And then I'm going to ring up Checkers and ask her what I'm supposed to do.

I might even be in way over my head, fighting against her. I could get my ass kicked.

But right now, in this space, what I want to do more than anything else is to beat Milly Schulz into the ground. What happens after that happens after I make her eat her words.

Mixed, because I do feel bad about Wendy getting so much PRESENCE from Decu (which we've talked about at length now, and will hopefully subside somewhat) and I feel bad that the people that dislike her are forced to deal with her so much. But we all have characters we dislike that show up on screen.

Vocal naysayers, eh. That's just gonna happen, and a lot of the complaints are legitimate with how she's been handled in some ways.

They were designed as B-cups originally, they got exaggerated through art, and we're trying to rein it back in. Maullar's bondage maid Wendy has about the right figure, I think. I may be biased.

The funny thing is I think this is actually wrong.

And while she has several life times worth of memories, they're locked and the three stooges aren't giving her access. While she could be, theoretically, mentally older than the rest of the cast, she doesn't have access to this and acts, well... Pretty much like what you expect someone of her indeterminate age to act

To be fair, how could Chiaki see such a betrayal coming when she would actively ignore any signs of Mami being less than perfect in her eyes?

She's been established to be blindly loyal to the queen of pancakes, so it's not like it'd be OOC for her to fall for a betrayal that we can see.

In addition to what I just said, dramatic irony exists for a reason. Tragedies can't happen without that.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE FALL OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 08/08/14(Fri)10:04:49 No.33981759

...Before anything else, what does Wendy think about about working for you?

Wendy shrugs. "...Doesn't matter to me what you do. We'll be working with each other for the Prophet shit anyway." She turns towards Mami, then back at you, before continuing. "Prima'd - Priestess would like to work with you and the Ninth in the future and she wants me to get a feel for how you run." She nods here, as if to herself. "...Be nice to have that Church shit on someone else's shoulders for a bit, though," she adds after another pause.

Huh. Well, that's true enough.

You lean back on your chair, careful not to show the surprise on your face as you stare at Wendy, then back at Mami.

This...well, you weren't expecting this. You thought it'd be just working together with the Church to bring Oriko down, but them actually sending key members to work with you directly? And not just anyone, but Wendy Cooldown yourself. Someone that you'd been involved with, long ago, before the amnesia attacks started. Back when you only answered to a name coined by a former Warmaster who made a game out of fucking other magical girls and collecting their skulls for her throne.

As soon as Wendy made her pitch - its delivery sullen and monotonic in her usual way - you found yourself poised to refuse. She was a part of your past. The past that you'd much rather forget about, even though life still sent reminders screaming your way, in the form of crazy magical girls hell-bent on seeing you dead.

The person she fell in love with was a different person, a person who drank away her problems as much as she shot them to death. Someone who never really cared about anyone but herself, and even then, seemed obsessed only about where the next bottle of whisky was, how many painkillers left in the tamper-proof canister before she had to steal more, and just how many Magical Girls she could brutally kill with only half a magazine left in her oversized handcannon of choice at the time.

There was also Midori. You made a choice, then. Even when Wendy started appearing in your dreams, alive and vital even though you thought at the time that she was indeed dead - you even made her a promise to do things right this time - you chose Midori. The green-haired Callidus that threw herself into hell just to save you. Sure, in your defense, you didn't really know if Wendy was actually alive, or simply a figment of your tormented imagination - but you still chose.

Anyone in your place would refuse. Keep the relationship professional. Work on bringing Oriko in for all the sins she'd committed, and then part ways amicably. Move on with your being a watch-wearing dildo and her doing...well, whatever cultists do, really. Go knock on doors and ask people if they had a bit of time to know about the Blessed Lady, shit like that. All you had to do was turn her down.

>>33981776

And yet...

Here was someone who loved you at your worst. At your most despicable worst. You're not going to pretend you remember everything from those bad old days, but you can infer reasonably, at least, from everything that carried over from then to now. Sayaka's hatred of you, while simmering down to a prickly rapport, is one of those clues. A constant, if massively-weakened unwillingness for all but the most basic of hygiene - and yes, you still remember wearing your costume for days, even weeks at a time until you are literally forced into a shower and made to retransform for a fresh one. Your vices, many as they are. Kyoko's eagerness to check if she'd angered you at any way, as if considering her friendship with you a frail, easily-broken one.

And of course, your immediate and snap-reflex for murder. For violence. Not an eagerness for fighting, or pugilism, or testing out your skills against others in combat - but murder. The violent taking of others' lives. Something that you had long before Pinky pressed the Golden Desert Eagle in your hand.

Here was someone who saw all that and still loved you. Just like Mami did. Just like Midori did.

Did Wendy deserve being turned away after all that? She even helped you rescue Misaka - and that was after Midori did that thing during the meeting. She acted professionally enough that she set aside all of that to focus on what's important. ...You doubt you'd have done the same, actually, if you were in her place, watch-wearing dildoness be damned.

Maybe this would try and help things, you decide, between the both of you. You're not banking on this completely healing your relationship, or even bringing it back - but if it at least helps her get over you by being colleagues, at least, then that'd be fine. Maybe even friends, although that's probably wishful thinking on your part.

Taking your official watch-wearing dildo pen, you sign your name on the dotted line on the contract. You stamp your official watch-wearing dildo stamp on the contract itself a moment later, before closing the folder on the entire thing and holding it out to Wendy.

"...You're in?" Wendy's eyes widens by the slightest bit as she takes the contract from you. "Really? This isn't you just fucking around?"

...What? No. Of course not. She can check your signature, that's official, that is. It's got the stamp and date and everything, too.

She does so, and after a moment, she nods. The miniscule change in her facial expression eradicated completely, reverting back to its previous emotionless impassivity. Mami on the other hand is smiling her small, knowing smile, but nothing else other than that.

""Cool," is what your ex says after a moment's pause. She glances at the blonde at her side, nods once more, and then looks back at you before speaking again. "...Ground rules. Don't fuck me over, don't have me cleaning floors or someshit. I've been doing this way too long for that bullshit."

"Jade's with me - personally with me. She's in the contract to keep this tidy. I'd also like to keep Bloodysunday working primarily under me. Former Eighth, think it'd be more comfortable for both of us. You're free to use her however you want, just don't yank her out from under me without letting me know first."

...A lot of ground rules, huh. You turn to Mami, who merely shrugs with another smile, this one a bit guilty and apologetic, but also encouraging at the same time. As if to say 'just go along with it'.

"I'd also like to get some idea beforehand of where you want to assign me. ...And your own ground rules, too, shit I have to remember. I don't want you pointing a gun to my head because I used the wrong set of chopsticks or something." Wendy finishes as you turn back towards her. "Warmaster." She adds, your title almost an afterthought.

"Wendy-san is like that, Chiaki-san. Efficient, if she can be a bit blunt about it sometimes." Mami cuts in here, after politely giggling into the back of her hand. "Um, anyway, Warmaster? We do have ground rules for Wendy-san, right? And do you have any idea at the moment for where you're going to assign her?"

Seems like you have to come up with some ground rules for Wendy on the spot, here. Assignment can probably be later, maybe after you've talked to Mami about it.

How close are Wendy and Pinky anyway? Do we need to worry about Pinky learning anything/everything that Wendy learns about us?

The three stooges are the obvious thing we are currently keeping from Pinky which we have to worry about, but even just in general, is this going to be an issue?

I believe Pinky brought Wendy back after she died from the golden mask thing? Not much info on that. Dunno if this means Wendy would be closer to her or more suspicious, due to knowing what her cultists are like, how powerful she is, dying because of her in the first place, and possibly having a vague idea of her goals.

a)We know that Pinky wants to eat soul gems, because she asked us to give them some (we refused).

b)Later, she was eating soulgems and said Wendy had given them to her.

c)We know that Wendy apparently died, and yet has somehow returned to life, which generally requires intervention from a divine level entity.

Not saying we should act like its a totally confirmed fact, but acting as though Pinky is totally untrustworthy is just as stupid as trusting Pinky blindly.

IC, Chiaki has EVERY REASON to be fucking suspicious that Wendy did indeed give Pinky those gems to eat as payment for being brought back.

She might be sympathetic, but that does not change the fact that this is NOT meta knowledge and that Chiaki SHOULD be wary.

We played from her POV and saw her thoughts, which were loyal to Chiaki, so I don't know how she could she could really be a traitor or somesuch.

Though I guess there are options. Midori could be dead and the current one an imposter. Or we could fuck up our relationship and poison her against us in the future. Or something.

Truthfully though, I think the green is more likely to be a warning about Yuma, the friendly neighborhood mind rapists.

I'm trying to remember, anon, but this was like a year ago. We got back from Siberia and Midori was in sickbay. We talked to Kyubey, fell asleep in the office, then visited Midori again... Not sure if same day or after. Then there was housewarming and that means one day maybe two at this point. Then was Ruri which I seem to recall was two nights, but might have been more in narration. Then there was Malal flashback and the date, and that was one more night. Uh... Then... Big Shell? That was a single day? Not sure how long it took to get back. Then we came back and sexed up Midori (or Midori sexed up Chiaki) and that same night we had to rush off to rescue Misaka. This is literally only hours after that and what has happened over the course of a year is maybe... Five days? Seven?

There are only two ground rules that you're going to give her - and it's the ones you have for yourself. Number 1 - don't fuck it up. Number 2 - remember Number 1. Other than that, she's welcome aboard the Ninth Officio Assassinorum. Along with the rest of her group, of course. Jade and...BloodySunday, is it? Yeah.

Wendy nods in return, and it's here that a small smile curls the corners of her lips. "Cool," she says again, and despite the fact that her voice hadn't changed one iota from its usual sullen tones, for some reason you couldn't help but think that she was pleased by your answer.

...Maybe this is going to work out after all.

Yeah. Maybe. You hope so.

[+50 Wendy Points!]

"...Anything else?" Wendy asks as she glances at Mami, then back at you. "Just that I have to get this to the High Priestess immediately, and I've got plans for lunch." She adds a moment later, as if to explain her rush.

Mami shakes her head. "I don't have anything for Wendy-san at the moment, Warmaster. Well, maybe brief her a bit about Officio policy and sign the usual papers, but nothing that can't be held back for later. Unless you'd like to decide who she's being assigned to right now?"

How do you respond?

[]State that when the Prophet's dealt with, the Staff effectively becomes the Ninth's property. This is non-negotiable.
[]Ask Wendy to leave your office for a moment, confer with Mami in private for Wendy's assignment.
[]Leave the decision for later. If it's important, then you don't want to keep the High Priestess waiting, whoever she is.
[]Assign Wendy to Mami.

[]Assign Wendy to Midori.

Oh, so having Mami do things that will passively hurt Chiaki is fine? Mami has always been covertly sabotaging our actions, from straight up lying to us about Wendy being dead to "acting" cold to us when she almost got us killed by ratting us off to Kirika. She is the greatest threat possible to the players and needs to go as soon as possible.

It's the price we pay for MGNQ's pacing. Fortunately, the whole "Sayaka warms up to us over the course of a week after hating us for a year" bit isn't something that really hits you while you read it. It only makes you go "huh?" if you sit down and think about it.

[X]Leave the decision for later. If it's important, then you don't want to keep the High Priestess waiting, whoever she is.

I'm voting we assign her to Mami, later on, but diplomacy is important. We don't want to assign her to ourself because we have history and don't want to send any mixed messages, plus we have a bad habit of letting our emotional attachments take priority in dangerous situations - which makes having people we care about around us a liability. We've already got plenty of them. Meanwhile, assigning her to Midori is a recipe for a sitcom - I wouldn't expect them to get along, and while I'd be happy to see them become friends, I'm not going to try and stage it by a work assignment that could backfire.

Really, we need to sit both of them down together and talk about how frustrating our amnesia is, how angry we are that we spent so long broken, and how both of them helped us at different points.

Midori needs to apologize to Wendy for the kiss, it was unprofessional and only hurt her feelings...

Also, we need to sit down with our Equerry and remind her of a Hypothetical conversation we had just a few days before the meeting in the hotel.

But thats a moot point since the personal issue makes it so utterly insane the point that Chiaki should be fired for even considering it.

Wendy should be assigned to someone of senior rank with no emotional conflict.

For the other options meta-wise I don't trust Mami and don't see why she needs to work with Wendy, I can't imagine Sayaka and Wendy ever getting along, and assigning them to our self is the 2nd best option but would send the wrong message to Midori.

I'm inclined to agree. As I've gathered it, it boils down to 2 main things:

1) Wendy has been getting an increasing amount of screentime. The fact that decu himself has declared her his waifu, and the fact that Wendy Cooldown (the person) is a prominent member of the MGNQ community and is one of decu's close friends, can cause some paranoid players the impression that Wendy (the person) is trying to shoehorn "her" character into the story.

2) Wendy's character is, arguably, of a different tone than Chiaki and the rest of MGNQ. I've heard Wendy be described as being "grimderp" and "edgy".

1) I would argue that Midori fits within the tone of the quest. Yes, she does tend to come off as a moeblob "shempai~" type of girl, but I'd say that, given how much MGNQ draws off of anime and similar Japanese pop culture, plus some of the other anime-isms we've seen in the quest, Midori fits alright into MGNQ's tone.

2) I think there's also a great deal more to Midori than we've seen so far--if Midori seems like a 2D moeblob living onahole, it's probably because we haven't had the opportunity to see Midori post-Siberia in a context that wasn't her just her fawning over Chiaki or them fucking. Remember what she did in Siberia, as Chiaki keeps bringing up? Or the kiss that just happened that caused that shitstorm? Or her insisting on going with you to Sayaka's "training session"? Or the character she's based off of?

I can definitely see why people are irritated with Midori and why they're bored with her, but I think the best of Midori is simply yet t ocome.

High off the feeling of literally slapping sense into Kharn, Midori was motivated to ignore her specialty as a squishy Callidus and, after a crude insult, charge at the warlord with an army of highly-lethal dudes from a good distance away. Naturally, she didn't get far, and her bear friend gave up her chance to get revived just so Midori could live instead.

That was more likely Homucifer messing with the timestop that time.

Pinky promised us 2 free timestops, so maybe Pinkys absence allowed Homucifer to mess things up.

Or maybe Pinky is actually in trouble. Homucifer is a divine level creature similar to her afterall, and one of the few that could threaten her, and everything suggests Homucifer is getting more active.

I got the others from the girls who really, really like me." It's here that she grins, a secret, almost sly grin. "Better watch out, Homura-chan, or they might just steal me away! Actually, question:

How much do we want writeup characters showing up in the main quest? I know the official policy is "you 100% do NOT need to read writeups at all to fully enjoy and vote for the main quest", but we also see events from writeups affecting things in the main quest.

Is this something that should continue, or something that should cease?

You nod at Wendy. Yeah, there is something else. When the Prophet's dealt with, the Golden Weapon in Oriko's possession effectively becomes the Ninth's property. This is non-negotiable, and you stress the term enough that you feel yourself becoming more of a watch-wearing dildo just by saying it.

As for her assignment, that can wait till later. You'll let her know about it as soon as you can, and in advance, once you've figured out where she'll be needed the most. You don't want to hold her back for too long, anyway, considering that it seems to be very important that she get to the High Priestess.

"...Yeah. Alright." Wendy nods a moment later, and you can see her grip the folder containing the contract just a bit more tightly. As if letting go would make it disappear somehow. "I'll make sure the High Priestess gets that, too." Stepping back, she rips off a textbook salute - a perfectly executed one, as if she'd been practicing it. Mami must've taught her how specifically for this occasion. "If I may be excused, Warmaster?"

You return the salute, and your ex immediately leaves your office - but not without nodding at Mami as she rushes past. As the door closes firmly behind her, it's here that you let out the breath you've been holding - and surprisingly, you see the blonde also relax as well, her shoulders drooping just the slightest bit. A somewhat-exhausted smile on her lips.

"I'm not going to say that I was expecting this to not go as well as it did, Chiaki-san," She holds up a finger before you could speak. "...Because I wasn't. I will say, however, that having you both in the same room together...well, it makes the atmosphere tense, even if it shouldn't be. Does that make any sense?"

You close your mouth to consider it. ...Really? Was it really tense? You didn't really get any of that. But you do know how that feels, at least. Kharn had something similar, you remember. She can make any room feel like a torture chamber, with everyone inside waiting for the thumbscrews to come out.

"Well, of course you wouldn't, but...hmm. Well, nevermind." Mami shakes her head, her curls bouncing at the motion. "I'm glad you made the decision you wanted, Chiaki-san. I know you've been doing your best with everything, and anyone else in your position probably would've been so tired of everything that they'd just hand it off to someone else - but you did it, on your own. You didn't even need to check with me or Kyuubey - which, of course, personally approves of the idea."

The mutant cat approved of you getting some outsiders as...temps?

"We're working for one goal in mind, after all. Kyuubey may not show it, but he's quite amenable to working with smaller organizations to get things done. Something about agitating the local economy and making relationships." Another smile. "I suppose he was also eager to see how you'd do with someone like Wendy, but you can never tell with him, right?"

Yeah. There's no telling what your Incubator is thinking about, sometimes. He'll tell you if you asked, of course, but you're not always sure he's telling the truth.

"Oh, while I'm here, is there anything you need, Chiaki-san?" Mami asks. "Oh, and please do remember that your ratification ceremony's tonight, so be sure to get ready for that! I'll have Sayaka-san fetch you, of course, when it's time."

How do you respond?

The Diary App said that Mami could be a huge asset so long as we kept her on our side. She's well-connected and everyone loves her. So long as we keep that affection for us intact and don't piss her off in a certain way, then we'll be that much better off for it.

We don't have to trust her, but alienating her is a stupid move.

It's because they saw these events in the ebook or something, where everything seems to flow well. Dec does a really good job of welding our choices together in a way that makes sense.

No, those sound exactly like ths sort of things Malal would do. The latter because Just As Planned, and the former because Malal knows Kharn likes a good fight. Hell, telling someone 'Kharn is coming' is probably an effective negotiating tactic on its own.

You're questioning the logic of 3 of ourselves, from another timeline, trapped in a magic gun knowing that one of us died, in a world where space cats give little girls reality bending powers in exchange for becoming 2d paper cutout monsters?

Where does logic fit into any of that?

Well, as long as she's still here in your office - does she have any suggestions as to where you can assign Wendy? You have a few ideas yourself, but you want to know if she has anything better. ...Does the Officio even have an official policy regarding outside contractors, if anything?

"Mmm, well, nothing official. Like I said, Kyuubey likes to work with smaller organizations in Mitakihara, but I do believe this would be the first time we're actually having someone from the outside get introduced to our own roster in such a way." She nods thoughtfully to herself, before pulling out her smartphone and tapping at its screen with a perfectly-manicured finger. "As for where to place Wendy-san, hmm..."

She looks up at you a moment later, putting her smartphone away and then holding up a finger. "Three suggestions, Warmaster. The first is to assign her to me: she'll be assisting me with the paperwork and administrative tasks. This way, I can keep an eye on her as well as have her see a bit more of how the Ninth works. She'll also serve as my representative, in case I'm too busy to attend to you or anyone personally."

Another finger joins the other. "Second - assign her to yourself, as a part of your own retinue. You'll be the one to keep an eye on her and show her around our Officio. You can have her handle any task you wish, even the paperwork I send your way - although I do hope you'll use your careful discretion with that." Mami winks at you here.

A third finger. "Third and last - she's a top-rated Callidus, Chiaki-san. I believe she would have made Rank Leader if she didn't stay exclusively in The Eight's shock unit. I would recommend taking advantage of that by having her help train our new contractees - see if she can't give our Callidus numbers a boost, as well as pass down some of her own techniques." Her smile widens slightly, gaining a mischievous edge. "Of course, you'll have to assign her under one of our Callidus instructors, and Enishi-san doesn't really need another assistant, so..."

You blink at Mami, incredulous as all the pieces click together in your mind. Wait, is she suggesting that you assign her to Midori? After what happened back in the Hotel? With her being your ex, and Midori being your...?

"I realize that it seems like a strange choice to make, Chiaki-san? But I have Wendy's personal guarantee that she's going to be on her best behavior at all times." She frowns here, slightly. "Granted, what Midori-chan did back at the meeting certainly ruffled a few feathers, but...well, even then, I trust Wendy to be professional."

Yeah, but--

"They are going to knock heads eventually, aren't they?" Mami gently interrupts you. "Contrary to what seems like common sense, Chiaki-san, nothing gets resolved if you keep two people who disagree with each other apart. That's simply a stopgap measure." She shakes her head. "You put them into situations where they need to work together to survive. Or in this case, to not, as you so colorfully put it, 'fuck up'. If you need an example, well, look at you and Sayaka-san!"

The blond smiles again. "Then again, these are just my suggestions, Warmaster. You're free to choose any of them, or disregard them entirely. The decision is, once more, up to you."

4. We warn Sayaka that we're trying the "rip the band-aid off quick" approach to solving inter-personal relationships

My thoughts on Wendy's assignment.

Make her part of our personal retinue. She's a liason to an outside agency, for a specific task. Keeping her close would eliminate alot of chain of command issues.

This would be bare minimum.

But personally I think it would just be easier to put Wendy somewhere else.

You have 2 choices. One of those choices is basically a mine field, the other is not. Why would you choose the bad one?

There's enough bad blood between them without us exacerbating the situation.

Not that I'm against reprimanding Midori for being unprofessional, cute as the jealousy may have been, but if we do it in a way that gets back to Wendy AT ALL we're essentially undermining our relationship and causing exactly the same sort of work environment issues that we're supposed to be telling Midori off for; it would just be hypocritical and counterproductive.

Which, yes, kinda Chiaki's thing, but we're trying NOT to do that any more damn it!

Like Mami said, forcing the two to work together and forcing them to deal with it.
It worked with Sayaka when we made her work with us on the Ruri job.

Assigning Wendy elsewhere will lessen the contact that Wendy has with Midori, but that also means that whatever issues they have will likely go unresolved unless we intervene directly to bring them together.

So it's actually two minefields; one has them clumped together in a small area while the other has them spread out over a wider area.

Magical Scribe Eleanor Slam versus Magical Aristocrat "Milly" Schulz Redux

As it turns out, this bitch is stupidly good at throwing out lots of attacks really quickly. The first thing she does is hammer at me with her maces; each attack is charged with enough electricity to make my hair stand on end. I have to keep moving my spear to block them, and one of them smashes into my metal arm. That's the only one that doesn't hurt, even though I blocked all of them. Mace bitch manages to sweep my legs out from under me, though, and I'm kissing the mat soon enough, the taste of blood in my mouth. Fuck, that hurts.

Laying around bitching about it isn't going to help things, so I roll away, narrowly avoiding a blast of lightning that would take me out of the fight. Fuck, it hurts to stand now, too. She's got kicks like a fucking kangaroo. The stupid pantaloon things are sticking to my left leg; it's definitely bleeding.

Focus, Eleanor, FOCUS! Ignore the pain, you're good at that. It's just that this time you're focusing on laying the hurt on a bitch.

Yeah. That insufferably smug face of hers is pissing me off. Not as much as what she said, though. I'm going to beat an apology out of her.

I step back a little, looking every bit like I'm still on the defensive. As I'd hoped, the impulsive berserker comes charging at me again. Her mouth's moving, but I'm not paying attention to any of her bitching. In a heartbeat, I close the distance between us. The look of surprise and disbelief on butterfly girl's face... I kinda wish I could frame it over a fireplace. It contorts into rage and anger when I stab her in the foot. I try to follow that up with a sweep to knock her down, but she pulls off some acrobatic bullshit to jump away. I see her cringing when she lands, though. Red blood and black ink stains her pretty white high heel shoe.

She's pointing at me with her mace and shouting. Her voice is muffled and indistinct, but it sure doesn't sound like an apology.

Her yammering gives me an opportunity to dash up to her and make her other foot part of a matched set. She's hollering as I grind the tip of the pen into her foot, driving it deeper and opening a bigger wound. Not so regal now are you, you prissy, stuck up bitch?

"Apologize. Now," I snarl at her, the effect diminished by our significant height difference. I'm able to pick up the word 'mongrel' from her response, but otherwise can't make any of it out. Still not an apology, so I remove the spear and make to start skewering other things. Like her hands, which I should have been paying attention to, as I narrowly avoid both maces crashing together where my head was, sparks and electricity flying from their impact. Hopping out of their reach, I make to counter; there's no way she can avoid me now.

Except she avoids me anyway, by flapping her wings and going airborne. My stabbing attack just barely misses her. I forgot the bitch could fly.

She quickly flies out of my reach and hangs in the air like a fucking hummingbird. I can't make out her expression from here, but I bet she's pissed off. Lightning dances off her maces as they start to glow. A mix of blood and ink drips from her feet onto the mat. Butterfly bitch is injured, but she doesn't show any signs of slowing down other than her hovering being a little erratic. Is this what an Eversor is like? Being able to pretty much ignore what should be incapacitating injuries and keep going? I fall back, my own wounds dully throbbing as I start to feel tired. Fuck, I'm panting, too.

I'm... I'm just not cut out for this sort of prolonged, strenuous activity, at all. If I can't end this soon, I'm going to lose, and then I'll have another thing I'll never forgive myself for.

I grip the pen tightly with the stupid metal arm, and then I bring it back. Then I line up my shot. And then, taking a few steps forward, I scream, "FUCK YOU, WHORE!" before hurling the spear at butterfly bitch with everything I've got.

The missile screams toward Fuckerfly with deadly accuracy, making to pin her to the wall like a bug in a collection-

And she dodges it in mid air, the spear getting stuck in the wall between the weapons I don't care about.

No. No no no no no. That's not fair. That's not fucking fair at all.

But I should have seen it coming. I telegraphed my entire attack. I was a fucking idiot who fucking forgot the most basic fucking rule, and I deserved to have this shit happen.

Everything that was merely aching before, it all starts hurting at once. I'm acutely aware of burns on my left arm, and I think that wound on my leg is gaping now. I fall to my hands and knees in pain and despair, trying not to cry. I fucked it up. I fucked it all up. I can't make Fuckerfly take it back. I can't be an Eversor. I can't go home. I can't open a candy shop. And I was a fucking idiot for ever thinking I could.

"Did you really think you could win?" echoes Fuckerfly, her words biting harder than any of my wounds. "A worthless mongrel like you, an Eversor? Don't make me laugh."

I am worthless. I am a mongrel. I am a fuckup who can't do anything right. I can't argue that at all. But I still... I just wanted her to feel the slightest bit sorry for insulting Checkers. For insulting my parents. For insulting other people. I don't care about me, but I wanted her to not mean those. And I couldn't even do that much.

Why couldn't I even do that much? I deserve bad things and slander, but they don't.

Fuckerfly's voice interrupts my thoughts. "As enjoyable as the sight of your groveling is," she sneers, "it's time to extract payment for your transgressions."

"Now scream for me!" she yells. There's a thunderclap, and I look up to see a huge lightning bolt strike the mat in front of me, leaving a trail of fire in its wake. Fuckerfly... No, Milly, is laughing haughtily as my demise draws closer. I could run, but what's the point? I'll just get tired.

Please. Please just get it over with.

The lightning bolt fizzles out and stops just before it tickles my nose. I'm almost blind at the moment, but I hear something splatter to the ground a ways off. Looking up, I see Fuckerfly bent double, coughing and retching before a stream of vomit escapes from her lips. Her flying is even more irregular. She almost looks like she's drunk from how much she's swaying in the air. I wait and wait for her to resume the fight, but it's not happening. She's just barely hovering a few feet off the ground now. Is she okay?

Come on, Eleanor. You've been given a second chance. Don't waste it. It hurts like a bitch with the adrenaline gone, but I rush over to Fuckerfly just as she looks like she's getting over it. My power fist is pulled back for what I hope is a devastating hit.

Up close, I see her lips are stained black, and there's black veins on her arms and legs. There's a very sharp smell of ink in the air. Her eyes are red and bloodshot, too.

Focus, dammit! It doesn't matter even if it's the fucking plague! Focus focus FOCUS! I might be a fuckup, but if I try, I can still FUCK HER UP!

Fuckerfly raises her maces to attack again, but FUCK! THAT! SHIT! I smash my fist into her groin, uppercutting her with a cunt punch. There's a disgusting snap of bones breaking as her pelvis shatters, and Fuckerfly is sent spinning into the wall.

I'd swear even my mechanical arm is starting to feel tired, and I want to stop now. But Fuckerfly is sitting up and clutching her electrified weapons. So, even though it hurts so much that my vision is blurring with tears, I dash over to her as fast as I can go.

There's a lot of blood where she landed, with little swirls of black in it, too. Strips of skin and tendon barely keep Fuckerfly's legs attached to her body. I think that's a half-digested scone poking out of where her stomach was. And I can smell ink, though it's not nearly as strong as the stench of blood and other stuff.

God, I feel sick already.

"Y-you stup-" starts Fuckerfly, who immediately starts screaming when I pulverize her right arm, her mace clattering to the ground along with much of her useless appendage. She shakily raises her left mace, a bolt of lightning shooting out and striking the mechanical arm. I barely even felt it. Planting my foot on her chest, I grab her remaining limb just as she charges up for another shot. There's a popping noise, followed by a wet, tearing sound as I rip it off of her; her head bangs flatly against the bare metal floor.

I'm panting heavily now, I feel sick, and my eyes feel heavy, but Fuckerfly is in much worse shape. Her limbs are useless, and she's throwing up again. She's screaming curses at me now, too, most of them unintelligible, but I know what she's trying to say. More insults about me, whatever. I don't care anymore, she can't hurt me now.

Apparently, I was wrong. I forgot about the wings. Fuckerfly flaps her wings to launch herself at me. I think she's trying to bite me, but she's too slow. I grab her by the face and force her back to the ground. I make a fist with my left and try to punch her, but it just hurts when it connects with her ribcage and doesn't seem to do anything.

I'm going to feel awful about what I'm going to do next. But Fuckerfly's not staying down, and I'm still pissed about what she said about Checkers and my folks. Kneeling down on both wings to keep her pinned, I memorize where all the bits of her are, then shut my eyes so I don't have to watch what happens.

I bring my robotic fist down on her ribcage and crush it into pulp, the splashing and crunching sounds making me cringe as bits pieces of the girl splatter around. I feel some of it get on my face, and that makes me hesitate before I bring it down again. And again. And again. And again. Punctuating each strike by screaming "FUCK YOU" as I blindly reduce a living, breathing person into meat. Some of it even gets into my mouth, but I keep going.

The smell, the sounds, the exhaustion, the taste of blood, and the act itself finally become too much to bear, and I throw up my breakfast on top of the girl's corpse.

I think I can stop now.

I try to crawl away from the mess I've made, but everything hurts too much. Even the robot arm hurts, or maybe those are just phantom pains. Either way, I flop onto the ground and land in a pool of viscera and gore.

Don't look at it. Just don't fucking look at it.

A pair of firm hands pull me up from the ground and onto shaky feet, dragging me away. Even though I'm not looking at the mess anymore, my eyes feel almost too heavy to open.

...Fuck, Eleanor, you didn't even get hit that much. How can you be this tired?

Because I'm weak. If I didn't have this stupid arm, I'd be a little smoking stain on the mat right now. But that doesn't make it okay to do the same to Milly.

"And the winner, by total body destruction," calls out Kai from somewhere close, "be Eleanor Abbot Slam!"

"Congratulations, kiddo, you murdered a person" Madge quips dully. "Aren't you proud of yourself?"

I force my eyes open to look at them, and make the mistake of glancing back at the carnage. From this distance, it's a red and pink splatter against the wall, with some bits of white, yellow and black thrown in. I don't feel sick, though. I don't think I have any more sick to feel at this point. Instead, I feel...

...I feel tears forming in my eyes. I feel tears flowing down my cheeks. Fucking hell, you're just going to drag everyone down with you, Eleanor. And I just can't stop them. This whole thing is surreal and disgusting. I feel like I'm still stuck in that witch barrier.

"Don't cry now, lass, we'll have you patched up and shipshape in no time!" Kai reassures me as she pulls out a first aid kit, readying gauze and ointment to treat my injuries.

"I'm... I'm not proud..." I murmur quietly.

Madge sounds confused when she asks me, "What was that?"

"I'm not proud of myself..." I sob aloud. I turn back to look at both of them, feeling shame and indignation at their clueless expressions. "I... I... I went too far! Why didn't you stop me? She couldn't even defend herself at that point..."

"And it was right brutal, it was!" cheers the asshole pirate, earning a misty-eyed glare from me. "Ye make a fine Eversor, Slam!"

"Miss Cress," Madge says slowly, smiling at me, but in a way that doesn't feel like a real smile, "why don't you tend to her injuries while I do the talking?"

Pirate shark thing laughs it off noisily, but still asks, "Are you sure-"

"Yes," Madge insists, adding, "that's an order."

"Very well then, your Majesty," Captain sharktail concedes, shaking her head in bewilderment. While she's applying something to my arm that stings enough to make me wince, Madge - oh, she's the one who's holding me up - starts talking.

"Miss Slam," she asks, voice suddenly much gentler, "why were you applying for the Eversor program?"

"To... To go back home," I answer, sniffling a little afterwards.

"To go back home?"

I nod, explaining, "to the Eighth Officio." That makes Madge wince, but she doesn't interrupt me. "Russ said I had to... Had to be strong enough to protect myself."

I wait for a response, but the woman isn't saying anything. The only sounds are those of the pirate captain rummaging around the first aid kit. Madge is glancing at her watch every now and again.

I break the silence first. "And... And I was told... That she'd help me open a..." I feel my cheeks redden as my voice dips to a murmur, "...a candy shop."

"Am I correct to assume you dislike fighting?" Madge asks suddenly.

"Oh!" I jerk back as something taps my soul gem; gun shark lady holds up a grief seed full of black mist.

"I... Yeah," I answer, "I don't, I don't really like hurting people." Kai gives me a weird look, but says nothing.

"While I can appreciate that you're not as bloodthirsty as the other crazed killers around here" Kai sniggers at this, earning a glare from Madge before she continues speaking, "how do you expect to earn your keep?"

"I could do paperwork like before..." I respond sadly, all my progress in the past few days starting to crumble like sand in a tide.

Madge is skeptical, "Can you really, though?"

"Hate paperwork," I mutter, shaking a little. "Paperwork hurts. Mentally. Physically. Even in my witch barrier, there was paperwork..."

"So you're the one that Crazy Crunch-" starts fish girl, but Madge hushes her.

"So," Madge summarizes, "you don't like hurting people. You don't like doing paperwork. What can you do, then?"

I glance at my feet, starting to cry at my own uselessness. "I... I don't know," I sob, "I just want to help..."

"You don't have to hurt people when you fight," Madge tells me, raising my hopes. "If you go witch hunting, that is."

...Fuck. Fucking hell. I don't think I can go through that sort of thing again without having a permanent mental breakdown. One nobody - not Russ, not Checkers, not my folks, not all the Culexus in the world - could snap me out of. Is this really the only thing I'm good for?

"Think of it this way, Miss Slam" explains Madge, as Kai finishes bandaging my legs, "Witches are magical girls who have been twisted by rage and grief into monsters. They are pitiful creatures, but still violent and dangerous. They're like once beloved pets who have become rabid, and infect everything they sink their teeth into. The most merciful thing you can do, then, is put them out of their misery."

Madge holds me by the head with both hands and looks me dead in the eyes. Her touch is freezing cold.

"Do you believe that you can do that?"

[8/10]

"...No." I answer flatly.

Madge looks disappointed. "Then I-"

"But," I interrupt, "I still want to try."

Madge's smile comes back. "Very good, then," she responds, letting me go to my stumbly feet, and glancing at her watch. She looks back to the shark girl, who has finished putting her stuff away. "Miss Cress?"

"Aye?" Kai pipes up.

"Please escort Miss Slam back to her quarters," Madge orders, adding, "I believe she's earned a rest."

Kai makes a little mock salute at her, grinning and calling back to her, "Aye aye!"

After that, Madge briskly walks toward the exit at the opposite end of the room. She's probably in a hurry.

Still...

"...Miss Madge?" I ask timidly.

Stopping and turning on her boot heel to face me, her half-cape swishing, Madge quirks her eyebrow in minor annoyance. "What is it now?"

I shrink back at this, feeling terrible for holding her up.

"Um... Thank you," I squeak. And just as to not delay her any further, I add, "That's all."

With that over and done with, Madge swiftly leaves Kai and me behind. She waves briefly, and I'd like to think that made her day just a little brighter.

Kai shakes her head and grumbles, "I can't understand this whole 'not wanting to hurt people' nonsense." Putting a clawed hand on my shoulder, she speaks up encouragingly as she leads me back out the way we came, "Still, I'm sure ye will make a fine witch hunter."

I feel myself going a little red in the face from such praise. Or maybe I'm just that tired. Either way, I tell her, "thanks."

The walk back is mostly uneventful. A lot of people glanced at us, but nobody stopped us or really said anything. It gave me some time to think, which caused me to remember something I should have asked about much sooner: "will Miss Schulz be okay?"

Kai laughs that odd laugh again. "No need to worry about Moneybags!" she reassures me, then snorts, whispering, "From what I heard from Her Majesty, she's been needin' to be knocked down a few pegs for some time now."

"In any case," she says aloud, no longer making a weird conspiratorial whisper, "the lass will be fine with some new prosthesis."

I just nod back. I guess it's okay... But I should send her a card or something. Probably won't apologize in person, though. That can't end well.

We stop in front of my room, just as something else hits me. "Wait," I exclaim, "what about work? I was supposed to be at Sundry Offerings later!" Jael's going to be so mad if I'm not there in time.

"Arr, me apologies, lass!" Kai says with an embarrassed smile while scratching at the back of her head, "I meant to tell ye that ye have the rest of the day off!"

...Huh. Okay.

"But startin' tomorrow," she warns, "ye be in Eversor trainin'!"

And with that said, she leaves me alone. Her tail thing is still glaring at me, right until she rounds a corner and disappears.

Put key in slot. Turn knob. Pull open door. Remove key. Go in. Shut door. Lock door. The room's just as I left it not too long ago. I don't know why I thought it'd be any different.

I'm hungry again, but more than anything else, I'm tired. Deactivating my costume makes some of the mess, and some of the smell, go away, but I'm too exhausted to shower the rest off. Too much hassle. Plus I don't know what I'm supposed to do with these bandages. Are they waterproof?

I pick up my pajamas off the floor and slip them back on. The sun's still out, so I close the curtains on the window, leaving the room... Relatively dark, before flopping onto the bed.

Oh, remove arm first. Turn this way, then that way... It comes off with a click. There's a lot of blood and stuff on the fist.

I'll clean it up later. I'll call up Checkers later.

Right now I'm just so sleepy.

But... I think I'm going to be okay. Yeah. It's not great, it's not ideal, but I think I might be okay. And so is Milly. She'll be okay. Things are going to be okay. I'm sure of it this time.

...I really hope things are going to be okay.

Omake : We Need A Hero

"HELLO, WHO IS THIS?!"

"Heyyyy, Crunchy, what's up?"

"NAKAJIMAAAA! How did YOU get this number?"

"Magic. But that's not important, because Jade and I need your help!"

"What does my RIVAL need help with that she cannot do herself?"

"Well, remember how you trashed our place?"

"You mean how I DESTROYED your DEN OF SIN in our GLORIOUS...LY TERRIBLE BATTLE? Don't you EVER make me do that again!"

"Heehee, soooorrryyyy! Anyhoooo, now Jade and I have nowhere to go! We're stuck out on the street, cold and starving like that digging matchstick girl!"

"Somehow I find that VERY HARD to believe!"

"It's really true!"

"Supposing it is... This involves me -how-, exactly?"

"We need a place to stay, and we still have to keep an eye on you, so I figure we should kill two birds with one laser : We can stay where you're lodging!"

"...You canNOT be serious."

"Super duper serious! Jaaaade! Tell Crunchy how serious I am!"

"My sister is terribly serious. Please help us, Miss Crunch."

"Yeah, let us crash with you!"

"NO!"

"Pleeeeease?"

"NO! I will NOT allow you to defile my sanctuary with your villainy!"

"Aww, that's not very heroic at all!"

"...Tch."

"Please. You are our only hope, Miss Crunch."

"C'moooon, save us!"

"Grr... VERY WELL! I will extend to YOU, THE NAKAJIMAS, the use of my current residence!"

"Yaaay! Yay with me Jade, we're in!"

"Yay."

"BUT! If I catch you doing anything suspicious there, the Crunch Train is RUNNING YOU OUT!"

"Oh don't you worry about that. You won't catch us doing any such thing~!"

"...Good! See to it that you don't!"

"Alrighty! Thank you sooo much, Crunchy~."

"Yes, yes, now let me give you the address..."

"We already know where you live, we'll be there in five!"

"WHAT?!"

"See you soon! Bye bye~."

Surround self with competent advisers, acquire advice from advisers, then implement a plan with resolve, adapt as circumstances dictate.

The Iron Circle

Chapter I: Olympia

In a field of iron and circuitry, she dreamed.

She dreamed of cogs, of gears, of works wrought of stone and metal. Images of a finely-crafted rifle, a gilded clockwork wolf, a suit of armor surpassing any in existence whirled through her mind, each one a masterpiece waiting to be made real. Eventually, she chose the rifle; an appropriate gift, she reasoned, for the newly instated Warmaster in Japan.

The image of the rifle was replaced by an emerging blueprint, and like a loom weaving together a garment, the blueprint spun into being. First the base structure of the firearm, then the finer mechanisms—the trigger assembly, the system of operation, the safety—down to every last detail, until she was at last satisfied. A fine gift for a—

-Hmm? Is that a present? For...gasp for Homura-chan!-

The dreamer paused at the interference. The blueprint continued to float on the sea of circuit boards and silicon transistors.

-No! No, no, no, no, no,! YOU don't get to give Homura-chan anything! Only I do! You-you GEARHEAD! You COGBRAIN! RUST BUCKET!-

Ignoring the stream of childish curses, the dreamer thought-started a program.

[Initiating Memopad application. Loading...]

<Personal log, timestamp 5395.94111. Fifty-sixth encounter with unknown entity.>

-Are you listening to me?! She's MINE! Got it?! You can't have her! I—-

<As with all previous encounters with entity, fifty-sixth iteration occurred within neuroscape. Multiple anti-virus scans and diagnostic cycles do not detect any unknown foreign software in data drives.>

The entity, apparently tired of hurling abuse, resorted to floating between the dreamer and the notepad and making silly faces.

It started with that one chick that wanted to transfer out, but told us what was really going on when we asked. The end result was, as far as I can see it, entirely satisfying for everyone. That squad was the first ones really introduced to how Chiaki was going to run things. I'd like to think they have been spreading that around.

Watch wearing dildo simulator is my favorite part of this quest now because of those interactions.

<Entity continues to exhibit intense frustration with my reactions to her provocations, as it had done since fifth encounter. Current episode of aggressive behavior appears to have been triggered by my idea of crafting a gift for the newly promoted Warmaster of the Ninth Officio. Entity, however, appears to assume gift is designated for “Homura-chan” (analysis: Japanese origin, plus diminutive honorific indicating emotional bond between speaker and subject).>

<Observation: Entity believes “Homura” is the new Warmaster of Officio IX. Inference: “Homura” is an alternate designation for new Warmaster of Officio IX. Hypothesis: Entity is associated in some way with new Warmaster of Officio IX. Must contact new Warmaster of Officio IX on this subject, along with presentation of rifle.>

As the dreamer continued to ignore the entity, the latter began wringing the hem of its dress and snarled.

-Fine. FINE, you dumb cogbrain!- It twirled around, crossing its arms and sticking its nose in the air with a pouting hmph! -If you're not gonna listen then I'm just gonna go away! I never should have given it to you!-

<No further relevant observations made for entity. Shutting down neuroscape.>

As the dream-fields of metal and electronics faded away into reality, the entity turned and gave the dreamer a smile. As always, it was a smile dripping with blood, leaking from crimson lips down to a pink and cream-colored Magical Girl costume.

-Well...maybe it wasn't SUCH a waste.- Pitch-black eyes closed as the smile widened. -Because now, one day, I'll get to see Homura-chan take it from your cold, dead hands! Hee hee hee!- Then the giggling pink figure faded into nothing.

Blackness.

Then reality made itself known again.

There was a slight buzzing sensation in her head, heralding a message.

<Warsmith?>

She paused. Then sent her own reply.

<Receiving, go ahead.>

<We've got contact from 12-Sigma-5. They'll be arriving in 30 minutes.>

<Acknowledged. I will be ready to meet them shortly.>

Now fully awake, the dreamer stood in one smooth motion, the servos in her limbs purring to life as she rose. There was a visitor today, an exchange student of sorts from the infamous Ninth Officio, and decorum demanded she go out and meet the new arrival. She noted the apparent coincidence between the timing of this visit and trigger for today's encounter with the entity.

As she headed towards the doors to her personal quarters, she took up a weapon that hung on the wall and slipped it into a sheathe at her back. It was a two-handed hammer, with with two killing faces pointing perpendicularly away from the haft. On each mallet face was etched the Roman numeral “VI”.

The hammer was made of gold.

She awoke with a start.

She blinked, groping about, trying to either figure out where she was or remember it. The sketchpad on her lap clattered to the floor as she flailed around.

Something gripped her arm.

“Ms. Iwakura? Are you alright?”

“Eh?”

She blinked some more, shaking sleep and fatigue from her eyes, and she realized her arm was held firmly in place by a hand made of metal.

“Ms. Iwakura?”

“Oh, uh, ha ha! Sorry about that, I'm awake...”

Honoka Iwakura laughed sheepishly as she picked up her fallen sketchpad. On the sketchpad were illustrations, designs for an artificial left hand made of steel and servos.

She was sitting in an armored gunship, a propeller-driven VTOL airplane that was a heavily modified Osprey airplane. Two rotors and a pair of engines made a steady hum as the gunship plowed the air currents. Inside the plane with her was the pilot and co-pilot—whom Honoka had yet to see—and her liaison, Laura Thomspon.

>Edit: the last sentence of the previous post should read, "Two rotors and a pair of engines made a steady hum as the gunship plowed the air currents. Inside the plane with her was the pilot and co-pilot—whom Honoka had yet to see—and her liaison, Barbara Falko."

Honoka herself was a taller girl, with bobbed red hair, bright blue eyes, and a shapely athletic figure. She was wearing her powered exoskeleton for the occasion; the culmination of three years of non-stop work and every bit of robotics knowledge she possessed, with metal and ceramic plates installed in strategic places for protection and hydraulics that dramatically increased her strength, she'd figured it would be her way to dress to impress. Doubly so, considering that today was the day she was meeting the masters of engineering: the Fourth Officio Assassinorum.

Despite wearing her best, however, upon seeing her liaison Honoka felt she might as well have been wearing rags.

Barbara Falko's body was covered from head to toe in metal, as though she were made out of it. Certain parts of her body were obscured by what looked to be armored plates or protrusions, such as her chest, head, shoulders, and hips, forming metal imitations of a low ponytail and a blouse-and-skirt combination. The plates and protrusions were painted a soft baby blue, while the rest of her was a bright alabaster. Her face, like the rest of her body, was metal, consisted of a pair of blue eye-lenses and barely-defined features resembling that of a blank fashion mannequin. Lines where the joints of her body lay were stark against the white alloy body. Overall, the liaison's metallic body cut a lithe, slim figure.

Either Barbara was wearing the most advanced (and tight-fitting) armor of all time, or Barbara was literally some kind of robot. Given what Honoka heard of the 4th, the latter seemed somehow more likely.

“Did you have a nice nap?” asked Barbara. Her voice sounded almost natural, with a touch of synthesized quality, though her mouth didn't move when she spoke. Honoka wasn't entirely sure where the sound emanated from. Despite the liaison's inhuman appearance, however, Honoka noted she could still read her body language: calm, measured, unfailingly polite. Rumors said the girls of the Fourth were universally cold and were assholes, but Barbara seemed to defy expectations.

“Hai! Er, yes!” said Honoka. She remembered just a second too late to speak in English rather than her usual Japanese. “It was just a tiring flight, that's all, ha ha...”

“It was, wasn't it?” said Barbara, though she didn't seem the slightest bit fatigued. “I do apologize for that, flying from Japan to our headquarters in the Sahara can't be easy...”

Honoka glanced out the window. The rich brown sands of the Sahara Desert gazed back at her, a line of nomads interrupting the endless expanse of coffee-colored dunes. She'd heard the headquarters of the Fourth was mobile, and happened to be traversing one of the biggest deserts in the world when Warmaster Matsuda approved of her sabbatical. Idle thoughts crept into her head: was the headquarters an armored convoy? Perhaps a ship capable of sailing on both land and sea? Or maybe it was a giant floating carrier, like the headquarters of the Sixteenth. She flipped a pencil back and forth between her fingers to ease her excitement.

“Speaking of which,” said Barbara, “the pilot tells me will be reaching headquarters in about half an hour. I'm sure you'll want to be out of that combat armor as soon as possible.” The metal liaison nodded pointedly at Honoka's exoskeleton, and once again Honoka felt ashamed of her best work.

“May I ask how you came across that armor?” asked Barbara. “I wasn't aware that the Ninth regularly issued powered armor to its personnel.”

Honoka let out a sheepish laugh as she waved her hand. “Oh, this old thing. It was just, uh, something I cobbled together a few weeks before I got here, you know. Felt it was...appropriate. Yeah.” She paused, and decided she never would have made it as a Callidus.

For her part, Barbara merely stared at Honoka for a moment before saying, “I see.” The mannequin-like face was impossible to read.

The conversation went on from there, to Honoka's great relief, to idle talk about their respective Officios. Honoka found herself talking much more about the Ninth than Barbara did about the Fourth, and she wasn't entirely certain if that was just by coincidence.

“Well, we don't work -alongside- them, per se,” said Honoka, “not in the field, anyway. But they're handy, it's always nice to go into a firefight knowing you have good intelligence and good medical support.” She cocked an eyebrow. “But what about the Fourth? I'm more surprised you don't have Venenum or Vanus clades yourselves...”

“We in the Fourth believe all of our Magical Girl personnel must be fully combat-capable,” said Barbara. “So it's not so much that we don't have Venenum and Vanus clades—though that is technically true—as much as our Callidus, Vindicares, and Eversors divide the usual Vanus and Venenum roles between them. As for how this is done, we have a system that we call the Dodekatheon...”

Barbara proceeded to explain the Fourth's unique organizational structure: the Dodekatheon, twelve departments that doubled as support mechanisms and places for the girls of the Fourth to hone various skills. The liaison didn't get far in her explanation, however, before she abruptly stopped and looked out the window.

Honoka followed her gaze. In the distance was what appeared to be...a person? Or at least, it looked vaguely humanoid, with two legs, a pair of stubby arms, and the biggest shoulders she'd ever seen. As the plane flew onwards, however, Honoka realized it wasn't a person at all.

The legs were like castles, each of them a stout cylinder bristling with hundred of guns. The arms were not only by far the largest cannons Honoka had ever seen, but also, she suspected, the single largest weapons ever constructed in human history. The right arm-cannon itself was so long that a small runway sat atop of it. The head, itself the size of a five-story building occupying a whole city block, gazed back at her, its form like that of an iron knight's helmet of with void-black circular eyes and a grille for a mouth. The impossibly broad shoulders held an entire fortress-complex, barracks surely large enough for a small army and enough guns to render an entire city to ash. A part of Honoka, a very small part that wasn't enraptured by the colossus standing above the desert sands, estimated the whole thing to stand at about 2000 feet and about as wide at the shoulders.

If machines could have a goddess, thought Honoka, this is she.

“This,” breathed Honoka, “is your -headquarters-? You -live here-?”

“Yes,” said Barbara. If she was amused at Honoka's dumbfounded look, she wasn't showing it. “This is not only the nerve center of our Officio, but also our primary research, design, and manufacturing facilities of the technology that makes us the Fourth Officio.”

Honoka shivered in delight as she mashed herself up against the glass to get a better look. She realized she was probably looking very silly in front of the liaison, but she couldn't bring herself to care. “Have you guys ever fired one of those things?” she asked, pointing at the oversized arm-cannons.

Barbara replied, shaking her head, “Not since I've joined the Officio, no. In fact, I don't recall any mentions of the primary armaments being fired in any Officio record. I suspect the weapons are largely there to deter attackers. The 'big stick', as it were.”

Honoka wasn't sure who would want to assault a walking fortress like the Fourth's headquarters. People with death wishes, maybe. Madmen, perhaps.

Eventually, the gunship landed and Honoka and Barbara disembarked. As they walked towards a huge metal gate leading into the headquarters, Honoka asked Barbara a question.

“So...who built this thing?”

The doors before them groaned as they approached. “The Fourth, of course, back when the Officio system was first enacted. The two people who designed it are still with us, one of which was our own Incubator.”

“And who was the other designer?” asked Honoka.

“The other designer was—”

“Me.”

The voice boomed from the threshold of the entrance. Like Barbara's, it seemed mostly natural with the slightest synthesized quality, but there the similarities ended. It was deep for a girl's voice, bordering on masculine, and despite the brevity of the one-word statement it brimmed with authority and confidence.

Honoka turned her gaze to the speaker. She couldn't make out fine details since her eyes were adjusting to the bright midday sun, but from the looming shape she could tell the being was about eight feet tall and made entirely out of metal. Despite the light, she could still spot a golden glimmer behind the figure's right shoulder, looking something like the head of a very large hammer.

“I'm Petra Dammekos,” said the figure, “Warmaster of the Fourth Officio Assassinorum. The Fourth calls me the Warsmith.” Petra gestured at the iron colossus they were standing on.

“Welcome to the Olympia.”

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE FALL OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 08/09/14(Sat)09:49:02 No.34006797

You glance down at your empty desk, and then out to your empty office.

"I'm taking a break," you say into the empty air. "I'm going down to Charles' and taking a break."

No answer. No response. Only the barely-audible noise of the air conditioning, and your own breathing.

You are a Magical Girl, and it's been quite a day. And it's not even over yet - it's barely halfway done.

You're rescued your arms dealer from certain death, dealt with a recalcitrant squad of trainee Eversors, and handled enough paperwork to choke a donkey.

And it's only lunchtime! Or just about. You could swear that it should at least be nightfall already, or the next day already, even. You know that it's only been weeks since you returned from Siberia, but it feels like months have already passed since then - or maybe even years.

You need a break. You need a break, or you're going to go insane like Kirika did, and die cackling insane mistruths driven into your mind with nails of golden light.

And so, feeling tired and worn-down and sick of your office all of a sudden, you throw your Warmaster's greatcoat over your shoulders, pull your Warmaster's cap over your head, and make your way to Charles' bar.

With the clear resolve that if anyone tries to stop you, you'll shoot their kneecaps off.

File: sayakapaperwork.jpg (228 KB, 992x1371)

On the way there, you decide to call up Sayaka, to see if she'd join you. You remember that asked for the morning off, something about meditation or training, shit like that - but it's not morning any more, is it? Besides, she's probably just trying to see how many ways you can kill someone with a rolled-up magazine or something. Nothing too important that she can't join her Warmaster for some daytime drinking, right?

You hold up your smartphone to your ear as you enter the elevator - and Sayaka picks up at the second ring, sounding somewhat out of breath. There's also music piped in the background - something way too chirpy and beepy and remixed, with shrill vocals overlaying everything else. ...Idol music.

"Murderface?" Sayaka grunts your name, clear physical effort and strain coloring her voice. You also catch her murmuring accruing numbers under her breath, with each number punctuated with the sound of clanking metal. "The hell do you want? Thirty-four, thirty-five..."

How do you respond?

Judging by all the noise in the background and the fact that she's murmuring numbers under her breath tells you that you've just caught Sayaka during one of her legendary weight training sessions, where she takes up the entire gym for an entire day.

This is allegedly because - and you're sure this is just bullshit - all her sets need all the available weights in the gym itself, no matter which machine or free weight she's using. If anything, it's probably because she just hates having to work out with someone else around.

You shake your head here, before mildly admonishing Sayaka on her rather unique way of greeting her soon-to-be officially-ratified Warmaster on the phone. And you thought she was a stickler for protocol and all that.

"Fifty-nine, sixty, sixty one..." Sayaka breathes into your ear, the clank-clank-clank of whatever beastly weight she's hauling around strangely comforting in its rhythm, like a heartbeat. "...Murderface, if you're just fucking around because you're bored or sick with paperwork or whatever, then just put the phone down before I say something that'll compromise our fragile work relationship, alright?...seventy-two, seventy-three...." The Eversor continues to count in between sentences, impressively not missing a beat. "...I'm busy at the moment, if you haven't figured out by now, ass."

...If she's going to be that way, fine, you grumble in reply - although you can tell by the audible lack of her usual venom that's she isn't all that displeased with your call. Anyway, you just called to let her know that you're taking a break before you get ratified as Dildo Emperor of the Ninth.

"I'm not your goddamn secretary, Murderface, but fine, I'll take note of it." Sayaka replies, still sneaking in numbers after every pause in her words. "...Anything else?"

Yeah. You were wondering if she wanted to come along. Since it's lunchtime and everything. You figured you should ask, at least.

Yeah. You were wondering if she wanted to come along. Since it's lunchtime and everything. You figured you should ask, at least.

There's silence at the other end - no clanking, no counting, and it seems the music in the background's been paused, too.

You're about to ask her if she heard you at all, before a loud and heavy metallic bang suddenly erupts from your phone's speaker, very nearly making you drop your phone.

What the FUCK was that?

"What? Oh, sorry. Just finished with my set, that's all." Sayaka replies, her voice now even, completely devoid of the breathlessness earlier. ...Fucking Eversors. "Anyway, sure, why not. Charles' bar, right? Or do you have somewhere else in mind?"

...So she's going with you, then? You can't help but blink in surprise at this. You were expecting her to refuse, after all. ...Anyway, Charles' bar, yeah. You're headed over there right now.

"Ten minutes. Wait for me there." And with a silent click, Sayaka ends the call. You blink again, before frowning at the screen of your phone. ...Well, she said yes, so that's probably alright.

You make your way to the bar without any notable hassle - the lunch hour somewhat deserting the corridors you had to walk along on your way out. Across the street, Hanegawa's is seeing brisk business, all the tables and counters either taken up by harangued-looking salarymen or equally harangued-looking Magical Girls.

The smell of ramen is somewhat enticing, but you're not going to barge into that mess for a bowl. Better to just drink your lunch, neater and easier all around.

As you step inside your favorite bar - the immediately-familiar sights, smells and sounds making you sigh in heart-warming nostalgia - it's here that you stop and blink at the classy-looking grand piano sitting in one corner of the bar, where a couple of booths had once been. It's...hilariously out of place in the worn-down, seedy bar, with its glossy premium black paintjob and shining ivory keys. And sitting before it, scowling in his usual way as he leafs through what looks like a beginner's guide to Piano-playing is none other than Charles himself.

...Christ, you haven't really been away for THAT long, have you? It only seems like yesterday that you took Kumatora here, when you got that box with a severed head in it! What the fuck is this piano doing here?

What do you do now?

Threadly reminder that Mami set us up to be killed by Kirlia by warning her we were coming, is judged a significant risk with unknown loyalties by whoever left our recordings, has lied to us and gotten our equerry and best friend to do the same, has an army of magical girls ready to kill or die for her, is rated a massive threat by our axe, controls what paperwork crosses our desk, and supplies enough of our food that she is potentially drugging us into trusting her irrationally (it does seem like our doubts about her clear up quickly after eating those pancakes).

Christ, we apologized to her after she confessed to tipping off Kirlia. And she's not naive enough to think that bitch would do anything other than stab us. And we refer to her as "our blonde victory goddess". Whatever she's spiked our damn whiskey and pancakes with is some good shit.

You rap your knuckles on the piano's glossy black surface - and a grunt issues from Charles, telling you in no uncertain terms that you now have his attention, and that if you tried that again, you'd be going back to your Office missing an arm.

You can't help but smile at this, and it's with that same smile that you hold up your offending hand in apology. He grunts again, and you take this as a signal to ask your question. You do so by gesturing to the piano, with a questioning scowl on your face.

Charles grunts again - or more accurately, growls, before raising the book he's been leafing through and tapping a cigar-thick, black-nailed finger on the cover. Specifically, on the part where it said BEGINNER'S GUIDE in large, friendly font.

Huh. So he wants to learn how to play, then?

Another grunt. ...Right. It's been a lifelong dream of his, apparently, to be an accomplished pianist - and it's only now that he'd managed to get enough money for the model he wanted: a Steinway & Sons. He'd also been dreaming of classing up the bar into something resembling the speakeasies of old, where classy people went to unwind and drink classy booze.

Yet another grunt from the afro-topped mountain of scowling muscle tells you that it's also only now that he finally worked up the courage to pursue his true calling. Bartending was apparently just a hobby to him, not something he wanted to do forever.

It's here that you look at him in alarm. But if he's going to be playing the piano full-time, who's going to tend to the bar? Who'll be the bartender?

Charles narrows his eyes at you, before pointing a meaty finger towards the bar's front glass window, where a neatly-written sign is propped up against. 'HELP WANTED', it said to the world outside your personal happy place.

...Ah. So he's looking to hire a replacement. But until then...?

At your own questioning look, Charles grunts once more, before finally standing up from the chair and moving back behind the bar. There's a loud bang as he slams an unopened bottle of Kong on the dented wooden counter, along with your customary glass. ...And a saucer of peanuts.

Well. That settles it, then.

As you move towards your rightful place, though--

+ Oh, a piano! A-and it's even a Steinway & Sons! They're really very good, you know! ...I wonder...I wonder if I can still play a bit... +

+ Hmph. Well, at least the large buffoon seems to have taste. +

We'd do our best to stop her, because...because we don't want to risk losing her, or her getting hurt, or getting Madoka hurt.+

She pauses to take a shuddering breath. + Each time, Sayaka-san would tell us to trust her, that she knows what she's doing. And we would never believe her, and we'd do everything we could to make sure she doesn't go through with what she's planning. +

Another sniffle. + She witches out approximately two days, thirteen hours, twenty minutes and fifty-eight seconds later, Matsuda-san. And every time...it's not pretty. + A weak laugh. + Especially when we fell in love with her at one point, too. +

You glance towards the unopened bottle of Kong, and then at the piano. ...Any other time, the choice would've been sickening and depressingly easy to make. But now--

You clear your throat at Charles, before pointedly cocking your head towards his shiny new toy. For a moment, it looks as if he's going to refuse - but you get your answer in the form of a slow, deliberate nod. The motion akin to a ponderous landslide or avalanche in its menacing slowness.

+ N-norway! + Braids squeaks in your mind as you slide behind the piano keys, planting your ass firmly on the cushioned seat. At the bar, Charles bites off the tamper-proof cap of the bottle of Kong, before pouring you a double. + He...he's actually letting you play HIS piano? Even before he'd learned how to play properly on it...? +

Well, yeah, you pulse back. You just asked, and he let you. Shows how far proper manners can get someone.

+ B-but-- +

Why is she that bothered about it, anyway? It's your turn to frown now, even as Charles comes up to place your glass of Kong on the piano top itself - with a coaster underneath to protect the paint. He'd also placed your saucer of peanuts beside it. It's not a big deal, isn't it? Charles didn't seem to think so, and you only asked because, well, the stooges themselves sounded like they wanted a go.

You take a moment to sip from your full glass - careful not to spill a drop - before putting your drink back on top of the coaster and then resting your fingertips on the keys. Somehow, this feels...familiar. Strange, but at the same time very nostalgic.

+ I...I know that, but even a novice would--+ Braids begins, still stuttering, but it's here that Dildoes cuts her off. + Let's not expect the Nameless One to bother herself with the trifles of piano etiquette. We expressed our desire, and she was willing enough to grant it. +

>> ☐ Deculture 08/09/14(Sat)12:38:00 No.34009251

>>34009242

This seems to work. + I...I suppose... + Braids replies a moment later, sufficiently cowed. + I, I guess he isn't too worried about that, either, if he let her borrow it... +

+ Indeed. + A nearly-inaudible swish tells you that Dildoes made her annoying hair-flip gesture again. + Now, what shall we play? We do have a captive audience, you know. We shouldn't disappoint them. +

You blink at this, and look around the bar. ...It's empty, as it usually is, with the exception of you and Charles, the bar owner glaring at you from behind the counter. His vascular, musclebound arms crossed over his chest.

Yeah. Captive audience, alright.

What will you try to play? You have time to play just one tune before Sayaka arrives.

Yes, that one time. It also came up in her internal narration at one point that she had done it on her own before. I remember this quite clearly, even though I don't remember the thread.

That comment was why ripping off her arms was even brought up in the first place: it was something that Chiaki's narration had said she'd done before.

You glance up at the beaten wall clock over Charles' impressive afro. ...If Sayaka was accurate with her estimated time of arrival, then you only have time to play one tune before she arrives. Sure, yeah, you've been on better terms with each other ever since you started working together a bit more, but you're not comfortable enough with her yet to let her see you peck your way through a piano piece. Much more when you remember that she's a bit of a music nut. You don't exactly need her tearing apart your shoddy performance.

It's here, then, as you gently rest your fingertips on the ivory that you call one of the spirits residing in your Desert Eagle. Namely, the one with the hesitant voice and the least combat-friendly haircut. Braids?

+ Y-yes? Can I help you, Matsuda-san...? +

Does she want you to play anything? Something she'd like to hear, or a song she remembers? You have time for a song, and she seems the most keen out of the three.

+ O-oh! I...y-yes, Matsuda-san, that'd be really nice! + For a wonder, you hear the usually-whimpering girl actually giggle. + Yes, please! I haven't touched a piano in ages! +

Well, you're all hers, then. Just for the song, though, mind.

+ Ah, of course, of course! D-don't worry, Matsuda-san! I'll...I'll do my best! + Another giggle. + If you'll excuse me, then...! +

And just like that - a faint warmth pulses from your Soul Gem to the rest of your body as you allow Braids to take control. And she surprises you again by, well, being considerate of it - instead of assuming direct control of you like a puppet, she instead gently nudges you into playing, your own instincts telling you to press this key here, while carefully stepping down on the pedal there.

The song is...well, it's a sad song. A mournful one, relying on heavy tones punctuated by high-pitched notes and emphasized by a careful application of rests. Played by a master, this would've been quite the brooding, sprawling solo that brought to mind someone that had the world on her shoulders and yet fought like nothing to lose. Played by a spirit considerate enough to allow her host body's relative inexperience muck things up, well - it still sounds like it's meant to sound, but only more haltingly. More stiltingly. Each errant key press making you wince in Braids' behalf.

And yet, as the song ends, and you place your hands on your lap - Braids is happy, somehow. A sigh of contentment leaving her lips as she gently nudges you into a shallow bow, to mark the end of the song and to pay tribute to the silence that follows.

Charles grunts here, and even without looking, you know he's pleased. ...The grunt alone was worth an applause.

+ I...I suppose I'm more than a little rusty at this, Matsuda-san, + Braids murmurs in your mind. + But...the tune is coming together, don't you think? +

...Yeah. Yeah, it is.

+ I thought so. + Braids smiles. +...Thank you for the opportunity, Matsuda-san. I won't forget this. +

[+ IMPROVED SHIELD INVENTORY MANAGEMENT UNLOCKED!]

"Murderface?" A familiar voice comes from the bar entrance - and you glance over the piano to see Sayaka stepping through. Her eyes look...well, it looks like she's been crying. She sounds like it, too. "I...where did you learn how to play like that?"

How do you respond?

Though Murderfaces bonus apparently has something to do with the GW corruption, so not sure how imminent that is since the Siberia procedure seems to be working still.

You shrug at Sayaka, before reaching up and tapping on your temple with a fingertip. Amnesia, remember? You have no idea where. You don't even know what you played. ...Does she know? Does she recognize the song from somewhere? If she does, you'd appreciate it if she told you. Maybe it'll help jog your memory a bit, let you remember more important stuff you've forgotten.

The blue-haired Eversor narrows her reddened eyes at you, as if trying to gauge whether you're serious, or being your regular asshole self - before shaking her head, wiping at her tears with a handkerchief. "No," she says flatly after a moment. "No, I don't." Another pause, this time more of hesitation rather than recovery, and it's then that Sayaka continues. "...It sounded pretty, though. In the really sad kind of way." Turning politely to the side, she blows her nose, cursing underneath her breath as she does so.

Yeah, you agree. Seems to be that kind of song. ...Is Sayaka going to be okay? Does she need a moment? Maybe a hug?

"Quit it, Murderface, Christ." Sayaka snaps at you, the used handkerchief disappearing in her grasp. "I'm just a sucker for that kind of shit, alright? I KNOW how to appreciate good music where I hear it. ...Well, that and idol music, I guess." She gestures to you sitting in front of the piano. "Of course, the way you were mangling it, it nearly sounded like a fucking polka tune. Almost ruined it forever for me."

You allow yourself a small smile, as well as a sip from your glass. Yeah, you won't argue with her there, but at the same time, you can't help but hear the 'nearly' and the 'almost' in her otherwise scathing opinion. Which, if taken a certain way, means that you actually did alright.

"...Fine, I'll give you that." Sayaka grudgingly relents, shaking her head. You make to take another sip in celebration, but as you lift the glass to your mouth, you realize that the glass itself is gone. You blink, and see that it's now in Sayaka's gloved grip, as if it had been there all along.

Wait, what the hell? That's your lunch!

"Wrong. Kyoko has your lunch." Your Equerry holds the half-empty glass of whiskey over your head, out of your reach. "Fuck's sake, Murderface, you're officially Warmaster in a handful of fucking hours! Give us some dignity by not being the first Warmaster to be drunk during her own ratification, please!"

...It's only just ONE drink! One! And then maybe another one later! And--

You stop trying to reach for your drink as what Sayaka had said finally sinks in.

Wait, Kyoko? She has your lunch? But you didn't--

"RAMEN'S UP!" Kyoko cheers as she barges right through the entrance, arms full of what looks like takeout from Hanegawa's. Immediately, the red-haired Eversor thrusts a takeout-laden arm towards the bar owner. "YO, CHARLIE! SORRY ABOUT THE CORKAGE THING AND ALL, BUT WE GOTTA MAKE SURE OL' NOODLES GETS HER RECOMMENDED INTAKE OF OILY, GREASY AND FATTY STUFF! HOPE THAT'S OKAY WITH YOU!"

"MAXIMUM RIGHTEOUS!" Kyoko loudly whoops, before grinning at you and Sayaka as she begins to set up the bowls of takeout on the counter. ...Jesus, it looks like she bought enough to feed an entire squad. "Come on, Murderface, Sayaka-chan! Let's eat before it gets cold, it doesn't taste as good if it's gone cold!" Clambering onto a stool and splitting her chopsticks in half, your best friend all but shouts the usual thanks for a meal well deserved, before loudly slurping her way into her first bowl.

"...Come on, Warmaster." Sayaka pulls you away from the piano. "While we still have lunch to eat."

Y-yeah. Yeah, sure.

Wait, what about your drink?

Kingdom of Flies - Red Sands of Paradise

She stepped into the light. Sand crunched under thick-soled boots. Uneven bumps and mounds dotted the floor of the arena - the sun-bleached and half-buried bones of the forgotten dead. Carrion birds still circled overhead and perched in the rafters, in hopes that the slaughter would begin anew. The scent of blood and sweat and tears and death still hung in the air. Perhaps not for most, but for her... For her, it was as if the killing had only ended yesterday.

"Well?"

She shushed the voice from the archway, taking another step forward. Wind howled through the deserted stands, carrying dust and trash as it blew. But when she closed her eyes, the crowd roared. She could hear them cheering. Still calling for blood. Always more blood.

A four foot machete materialized in either hand. She held one over her shoulder while the other rested with its squared tip in the sand. The wind picked up, catching in her jacket and running hot over her skin. Sand kicked at her shins. Each breath filled her nostrils with a familiar, stale coppery scent. Her machetes sang as she cut through the air, her muscles still remembering the last time they had shed blood in the sand...

Gavrill stepped into the light. The crowd roared for her as she hefted her twin machetes, Slaughter and Carnage, into the air, basking in the audience's attention. She closed her eyes as she strode forward, letting the cheering wash over her. It seemed she would be called out for one last battle. Summoned from the silent darkness of her cell for one final hurrah before being stashed away again and forgotten.

Far and away in the press box, Gavrill caught sight of the Doctor and her ever impassive face. It was the same one she always wore during matches. No enjoyment, no passion, only cold, calculating analysis. This time, however, Gavrill was determined to put on a show for the good Doctor.

She stopped five feet from the centre-point of the arena and snorted. Her opponent was nothing more than a child. Fair and frail, with long raven black hair and a wild, animal look to her eyes. Wires descended into her skull through oozing wounds amidst scarring and shaved patches of her beautiful ebony locks. Her face twitched with rage, despite the fight having yet to begin.

Another poor, ragged victim of the Nails.

The child gunned the engine of a gargantuan chainsword, opposing rows of teeth gnashing at thin air. It was nearly as tall as Gavrill and looked positively ridiculous in the clutches of the waif's black, fleshmetal hands.

Gavrill flashed the girl a snarling grin as the pair circled each other in the sand, baring her glimmering white teeth. It seemed this one had made it rather far through the Doctor's gauntlet of procedures.

"What's your name, girly?" Gavrill asked, her own lip twitching as the Nails began to bite into her consciousness.

The girl answered with only more ragged breaths and growls.

"I- I am," she growled, her nostrils flaring and spasming as she struggled to form words, "c-cur-called Ekkkaterina."

"Like I said," the older Maerorus said, her tongue running over her teeth, "pretty little name."

Something caught the smaller girl's attention, and Gavrill siezed the initiative. She kicked a clump of sand at the Russian's face, blinding her.

A hail of blows came next. Downstroke after downstroke. Slaughter, Carnage, Slaughter, Carnage, each one desperately blocked by the idle chainsword.

Gavrill kicked the girl in the ribs, savouring minute crunches of bone as Ekaterina fell to the ground. Carnage came down, dodged by a timely, panicked roll.

The seasoned gladiator stood aside, letting the fresh meat to scramble to her feet, her fleshmetal legs shaking with adrenaline.

Ekaterina charged. Skulltaker roared and screamed for blood as it met the twin machetes. The tiny Russian pressed on with all her might, but the older woman held firm as a brick wall, robbing her of any momentum. Gavrill pulled her head back, then skull met skull with a thunderous crack.

With the smaller girl reeling, Gavrill closed in. She batted the chainsword aside with Slaughter and the thick sole of her boot crashed into Ekaterina's sternum.

She could feel it now - the ticking of the metal buried deep in the meat of her brain. The pleasure shocks every time she struck the pitiful little Russian. Gavrill wiped the beginning of a nosebleed with her sleeve. Young Ekaterina scrabbled to her feet.

"Come on kid," Gavrill snarled, circling and eyeing her prey like a beast, "make me feel something. Show the good people that you're not worthless."

The child roared and rushed her opponent once more, her crimson eyes almost bulging out of her skull as spittle ran down her chin. Gavrill met it with a howling charge of her own. The hulking mass of the older Maerorus nearly bowled her smaller opponent over into the sand. Slaughter and Carnage met Skulltaker again and again, the weapons screeching with each clash as chainaxe teeth and flecks of metal came loose.

Clashing demigods bellowed with savage fury as the Nails bit into their skulls. Both struck harder and faster than any mortal man could ever hope to match. Ekaterina's movements grew more learned with each stroke of her chainsword, while Gavrill's every step was filled with the unwavering confidence of a veteran. She wouldn't lose, but the little wretch had made her bleed her own blood. At the very least, that was worthy of note.

Gavrill's strength and experience showed, however. She bit back the pain of the Nails. She channelled it, rather than letting the rage flow freely. Slaughter and Carnage beat down a constant onslaught, keeping Ekaterina ever on the defensive. She wasn't quite used to the massive bulk of Skulltaker, but Gavrill could see that she wielded it with the blackened, skeletal hands of a natural. A born killer.

The pair pulled back in the same instant. Ekaterina wiped blood and saliva from her panting, parched mouth - at some point she must have bitten her hulk of an opponent, though it was likely that neither of them had noticed. A pair of red streams trickled down from Gavrill's ear-coverings; she could feel the veins throbbing in her skull, beating a war drum's rhythm against the Nails.

"You're- Hrnnh- You're doin' pretty good, kid."

"I- Hm- I think that- Hah- I am winning," the Russian grinned beneath a mask of blood and sweat. "What- Hnnnh- What do you think?"

The Nails bit deep into Gavrill's skull at that. With her teeth bared, she let go of her machetes and rushed her opponent. Skulltaker kicked up a puff of dust as Ekaterina did the same. the larger woman took hold of the Russian's head and brought it down on her knee. Gavrill pulled her hands back in, taking hold of the girl's collar. A suddenly sensation of weightlessness took hold of Ekaterina as she was lifted off the ground with a gnarled, over-sized hand, then blinding pain as her face was broken against the ground.

The Russian was held up by her throat to look straight into Gavrill's manic, twitching grin while her bladed feet kicked uselessly at the air beneath them. It was only then that she noticed a hearty chunk of the other Maerorus' face had been torn away - likely where she had managed to sink her teeth in during the brawl.

>> ☐ archivalfag 08/09/14(Sat)14:50:15 No.34012038

The only sound Ekaterina could make was a rough "KHRN" as Gavrill felt... something... dig its way into her stomach. She looked down to find Ekaterina's fleshmetal arm elbow-deep inside of her chest, red fluid running down its contours.

It only seemed to make the Wolf more excited.

"So," she muttered through ragged, strained, "that- hrnh- that the noise you make when y- hrnnkh- when you take a life, HUH?" Her grip tightened around the smaller girl's neck. "Thought this- hnnh- would be the END of ol' Gavrill, huh? But- hrnnk- y'see," Gavrill's eyes widened, "there's one thing the good Doctor forgot to- hrnnh- to tell you."

Rows of jagged blades came down around Ekaterina's arm, as though the fresh hole in Gavrill's abdomen had turned into a giant mouth. The Russian screamed.

"I'M FUCKIN' INVINCIBLE!"

Gavrill released her grip, letting the smaller girl drop the ground in a battered heap. The arm that had once ended in twisted, ebony metal now ended at the elbow, black blood dribbling from the stump into the sand.

The Wolf, meanwhile, slowly picked up Ekaterina's fallen chainsword and gave it a few experimental swings and gunned the engine. "Khrrnn... Khaaarrrnnn," the muttered as she made her way back to the broken body, playing with the words. "I like the sound of that."

With all the dignity of a street thug, Gavrill kicked the Russian onto her back and placed a foot on her stomach. The Wolf licked her lips and hefted Skulltaker into the air, holding it just above Ekaterina's ribcage. The younger girl's face was an ugly, bloodied, contorted mess. Her nose was nearly pulp and crimson-painted sand stuck to her wounds in patches.

Gavrill wiped her mangled cheek on her shoulder as she stared down at her beaten opponent. She could already feel the adrenaline fading out of her system as the Nails grip weakened.

"You fought well," the Wolf said, her fingers drumming against Skulltaker's hilt. "Welcome to the pit, Kharn."

Skulltaker roared as it dropped. Baptized in the arena, Kharn Valnikov was maimed, killed and burned. And for the briefest of moments, out of the corner of her eye, Gavrill swore she saw the Doctor grinning above the carnage.

***

That was the last time Gavrill Madaraki saw the light of day until her release. She couldn't tell just how long ago it had been. A year? Months? Time had no meaning in her cell. Sedated and chained, everything had become blurred mess after blurred mess, only ever broken by the call to battle. She couldn't be entirely sure that half of her fights had even happened. The beasts she fought in the pit were the things of nightmares - the things that had no right existing in reality. Yet, that was what the Doctor did best; she made the impossible possible.

The wind picked up again, just as Gavrill turned her attention to the stands. Her gang had been pressed into cleaning duty earlier; some carried debris and rubble out, others carried out withered corpses that had been trampled or left behind in the panicked exodus a month earlier. Most of her crew had come to understand that they didn't simply work for her - she OWNED them. The Wolf did not ask. The Wolf demanded, and what the Wolf demanded was done.

A strange thought came to her mind as she stepped in circles, soaking in the sight of the grand coliseum. If the arena belonged to her, and it was the Blood God's Arena...

Gavrill snickered. She would have to do away with the skull decorations, though. They weren't exactly to her taste. If skulls were displayed, they ought to be REAL skulls, the kind that once held eyeballs and brains. No more of those goofy outfits, either. This time they would need real armour. And of course they would need monsters. The Wolf Pack would have to bring in all the horrid beasts they could find. Maybe use THEIR skulls for decorations.

For the first time since she was handed off to the Doctor, Gavrill Madaraki had hopes and dreams. Her life may have been confined to Varrigan City for the time being, but it sure as hell was better than a hundred foot wide circle of dirt and sand.

After completing a slow lap around the arena, Gavrill found herself almost in the exact centre. She bent down and scooped up a handful of sand, letting it run through her fingers as she stood again. Her nose sniffed at it, still picking up more than a hint of spilled blood.

She looked up into the evening sky. The sun had begun to dip below the arena's walls, painting the sand shades of orange and red. Slaughter and Carnage materialized in her hands as she held her arms out, blades splayed wide like the wings of an angel. The arena thirsted. The Nails pricked at her mind, whispering its will to her. She was its most loyal disciple, and it asked only the simplest of tributes.

"BLOOD," she roared. "FOR THE BLOOD GOD!"

And that's all! Hope you enjoyed this one as much as I did!

The Iron Circle
Chapter II: Dodekatheon

Honoka lay alone in the cool gloom of her quarters. Her sheets were thin, her cot was hard, her room felt more like a cell, and her dinner consisted of nutrient bars with the texture and taste of paper mache. The Fourth, decided Honoka, weren't terribly used to having guests.

As she lay there, wresting sleep denied her by jet lag, she reflected on the day's events.

Things had started with the Warmaster.

“I'm Petra Dammekos, Warmaster of the Fourth Officio Assassinorum; the Fourth calls me the Warsmith. Welcome to the Olympia.”

Like Barbara's, the Warmaster's body was of metal, but where Barbara was shaped in the image of a lithe girl in her mid-teens, Petra was an armored warrior from ancient times.

She was tall, towering over the red-haired Vindicare. Her torso was a solid, heavily armored plate of jet trimmed with iron-grey, a modest bulge at the chest the one concession to femininity. A large set of pauldrons further bulked out the figure, as did the pteruges-skirt of long metal strips that armored her thighs and hips. The head was reminiscent of a samurai's helm, bearing a wide metal neck flap that seemed to open like a cobra's hood.

Warmasters, Honoka found, had a way of inspiring some mixture of awe and fear in their lessers. Petra Dammekos was no exception.

Awe overrode reason, stifled propriety. Her trembling hand reached out to touch the metallic form of the Warmaster, aching to caress the cold iron shell. She -had- to know how they made it, to look at the iron guts beneath the plates and see how the walking, moving expression of mathematical and engineering perfection before her worked—

“Why are you trying to touch me, Vindicare Iwakura?”

The booming voice shook her awake. It held no disgust, nor did sarcasm taint it; it was a simple question asked out of legitimate curiosity. Honoka found herself flinching back as if struck.

(2/12)
She glanced at her hand, then at Petra, then at her hand again. She saw Barbara staring at her in the corner of her eye.

“Oh...oh. Erm.” Recollection flooded her mind, followed swiftly by embarrassment, and she bowed to the

Warmaster in apology. “Uh, I'm-I'm terribly sorry, Warmaster Dammekos, I didn't mean to be rude—”

Barbara cut in smoothly. “I'm afraid she's had a long plane ride, Warsmith, and she is still recovering from seeing the Olympia in full view—you know how visitors can be whenever they see our headquarters...”

Petra simply stared back at Honoka. Whether she took the statement at face value or simply didn't care, Honoka couldn't tell, but the Vindicare felt she was being studied intently.

It was only after an uncomfortably long moment that the Warmaster spoke.

“I'll give you a tour around the Olympia before we bring you to your quarters.” A pair of squat, boxed-shaped machines trundled forward and hauled away Honoka's luggage as the Warmaster strode forward.

Then she paused, as if to reconsider, and addressed Honoka before moving off. “And call me Petra. Or 'Warsmith'. That's what the Iron Circle calls me.” Each of her steps was heavy, emitting a dull thud that echoed through the grey halls of the Olympia, and each of her steps was filled with purpose.

As Honoka followed the moving Warmaster, she muttered to Barbara. “The 'Iron Circle'?”

“Formally,” said Barbara, “the Iron Circle refers to the Warsmith's cadre of bodyguards—six of our most combat-capable Eversors sworn to keep the Warsmith safe.” As ever, the liaison's voice was smooth, like a mirror's surface. “However, depending on the context, it can also refer to our Officio as a whole. This latter meaning was the one the Warsmith was referring to.”

(3/12)

As Barbara spoke, Honoka threw Petra another glance. She saw a weapon mag-locked to the Warmaster's back, a golden sledgehammer about as long as Honoka was tall, with a head the size of her own. It reminded her, in a chilling, discomforting way, of the mysterious golden katana the former Eversor Rank Leader used to own back in the Ninth, back before she got retired.

With such a weapon, wondered Honoka, who needs bodyguards?

“Of course, Warsmith.”

The three of them made their way down to the bowels of the Olympia. Each hall they traversed, each chamber they passed was well-planned and finely-built, with every scrap of space devoted to something functional. They weren't pretty, per se, made as they were by shaped and stamped corrosive-resistant metal—no exquisitely carved walls of marble and gold here—but in their mathematically-guided precision Honoka found a stark beauty.

“As I explained on the plane,” said Barbara, “the Iron Circle is divided into twelve organizations, or Orders. The purpose of each Order is two-fold; the first is to provide support services necessary for our Officio to function, the second is to provide a place for the Iron Circle to test one another and improve upon our skills. Each Magical Girl in the Fourth is a member of one and only one Order, but we are permitted to participate in the activities of other Orders. Our first, and so far only, Warsmith created this system when the Fourth Officio was first formed.”

“Quartus was the one who came up with most of it,” grunted Petra.

A few minutes of walking and a short ride on an elevator brought them to a set of double doors, deep in the “shoulder” of the Olympia. Beyond it was the muffled roar of heavy machinery.

>> ☐ TwiceBorn 08/09/14(Sat)14:58:30 No.34012227

(4/12)
“Here,” said Barbara, “are the primary testing and manufacturing facilities of the Lyssatra, our weapon and armor manufacturers.” She strode towards the double doors, where a relief of an armored knight--a sword in one hand and a rifle in the other--loomed down on them.

“I would like to warn you that the Lyssatra manufactorum is very noisy. Ear protection is advised.”

Before Honoka could tell her she didn't have any ear protection, Barbara opened the doors. That meant Honoka had less than half a second before it hit her.

The roar of pneumatic presses, stamping machines, grinders, cutters, fusion torches, and smelters struck her like a shockwave. Such was the din of industry that Honoka felt herself staggering backwards, wincing at her battered eardrums.

Petra glanced back at the reeling red-haired Vindicare and, producing a pair of earmuffs from a hidden compartment, tossed it towards Honoka, who gratefully put them on. The din died down at once to tolerable levels.

Now that she was spared from the audial assault, Honoka had a chance to take in her surroundings.

Packs of Magical Girls milled about the chamber: some of them had metal bodies similar to Barbara's, though with differing shapes, sizes, and colors. A taller girl with a pair of metal pigtails poked away at a tablet, while a shorter one with bobbed hair-decals and a busty chestplate shouted at the strawberry-and-white painted girl in front of her. Another pair of girls had bodies that were larger, barrel-shaped torsos with trunk-like legs—they set about doing heavier work, hefting a small artillery cannon to prepare for welding.

(5/12)

Barbara's voice came in through a vox in the earmuffs. “I do apologize for the noise, Ms. Iwakura," she said with polite sympathy. "The Lyssatra is one of the most critical Orders within the Fourth—the vast majority of our Officio's funding comes through the sale of weapons and armor, and we must constantly manage a sizable number of orders. This means the production facilities must be kept running day and night.”

The one Barbara called “Thematica” strode towards the trio, a gaggle of robotic Magical Girls parting before her. “Petra!" came the jubilant voice, "Hello, hello, just noticed you coming in, how can I—oh? What's this?”

Her iron body was very similar to cannon-haulers', albeit with a bronze-red paint scheme and a head resembling an armet helmet, set in the center of her wide-shouldered torso, sitting on thick, pillar-like legs. Her hands were a riot of every machinery tool imaginable; clamps, pliers, cutters, and drills jockeyed with one another for space, each sitting at the end of arms made of thick bundles of cable. More cables snaked out of Thematica's back, each of them prehensile and ending in a trio of dexterous claws, giving Honoka an impression of a large metal octopus.

“Hmm. Powered exoskeleton. 85% high-grade steel, 14.99% titanium-aluminum alloy, .01% miscellaneous materials; ceramic-plate armor, joints and actuators made from—”

“This is Forge Master Felicia Thematica,” said Barbara over Felicia's muttering. “As you might have already inferred, she is the Master of the Lyssatra Order.” Honoka tried her very best to focus on Barbara and not on Felicia's ruthlessly thorough examination.

>> ☐ TwiceBorn 08/09/14(Sat)15:00:37 No.34012274

(6/12)
To Honoka's relief, the myriad probing devices drew back after an uncomfortably long minute.

“Hmm,” said Felicia. She was gazing at Honoka as though she were a defunct specimen, scratching her chin with one of her prehensile metal cables. “Marginal increases to strength and speed, exposed actuators vulnerable to damage. Ceramic-plate armor only rates to Armor Class II. No auxiliary systems installed.” She tutted and shook her head.

“You poor, poor dear..." she cooed. The prehensile cables lashed out and dragged the bewildered Honoka closer, dismantling her exoskeleton piece by piece. "Here, let me get you something much more -you-.”

“Wait what—”

Back in the gloom of her cell-like quarters, Honoka reflected on the memory and giggled. She looked at her beloved exoskeleton, stowed away in a rack, then at the brand new suit of Fourth Officio powered armor that sat in the corner.

Felicia had dragged her to a storage facility, where a dozen or so suits of powered armor sat in racks. With disturbing speed the Forge Master disassembled Honoka's suit and started fitting her new ones, like a fussy dressmaker with a hapless customer, mumbling about how “the 'Aquila''s angles really brought out her curves”, or how “the 'Errant' wasn't really -her thing-”. Thematica eventually settled on a slick-looking number she'd called the 'Maximus' and had it shipped to Honoka's quarters.

She looked at her new gift again. A goggled faceplate packed with sensors; blocky, interlocking plates of armor that could stop rifle bullets dead; advanced actuators that let her run, jump, and lift beyond even what her magically-enhanced flesh could achieve. Armored hands that could punch holes in solid concrete. As much as it irked her to admit it, it really did blow her old exoskeleton out of the water.

Settling back in her cot, she reviewed the rest of the day.

The next incident, she thought, hadn't been quite as pleasant as the rest.

(7/12)

The more she saw of the Fourth's infamous mobile headquarters, the more Honoka understood why the Olympia was so unfathomably huge: foundries, repair bays, cargo holds, barracks, training facilities, on top the subsystems necessary for keeping a 2000 foot machine operational, all of these were contained within the Olympia's metal frame.

After an hour of walking, the three passed a room similar to the weapons foundry, where magical girls were at work maintaining a variety of vehicles. A handful of motorcycles here, an armored APC there: one gargantuan tank, with a main gun barrel that seemed almost comically large, dominated the vehicle bay.

“This is our land-based vehicle hangar, where the Apeia makes its home,” explained Barbara. “The Order of Mechanics is charged with keeping the Officio's fleet of ground vehicles functioning. It is their duty to ensure that any Officio sortie has adequate ground transportation and effective ground-based extraction. It is also one of the more popular Orders, though perhaps not quite as much as the Mechanicus, our Order of Cybernetics--”

“Still more popular than your pathetic little Emmeles, Falko,” came a voice from behind a tank...no, not one voice, realized Honoka. Two in perfect snych, down to the dripping contempt they held.

The pair of figures before them were humanoid, each roughly five feet and two inches tall. They looked remarkably similar to one another in Honoka's eyes—identical basic chassis, down to the height and body proportions with the difference laying in the decals. The one on the left was painted black with a prominent teal chest plate and teal cheek guards, with a pair of flexible metal protrusion imitating a set of twintails. The one on the right, sported a black paint scheme with sizable red leg reinforcements, red shoulderpads, and a long, high ponytail.

(8/12)

Despite their superficial differences, however, the body language of the two was almost the same—leading with one foot while putting their weight on the other, one hand placed on a jutting hip, for the same sneering, cocksure stance.

The girls bowed to their Warmaster, and barely a nod of ackowledgement to Barbara. “Warsmith, Speaker Falko,” they said in unison.

“Yda, Ach,” said Petra in acknowledgment.

“Chief Mechanics Yda Stradale and Ach Stradale, also known as the 'Speed Freaks',” said Barbara to Honoka, her tone even. If she'd taken insult from the two about her Order, she didn't show it. She turned back to the twins. “I was merely explaining—”

Honoka's Vindicare-trained eyes didn't miss the subtle clenching of Barbara fist. “This is Honoka Iwakura, a Vindicare novitiate from the Ninth—”

The teal one spoke this time. “Oh, so it's one of the Murderers?” she said in a mocking sing-song. Both twins began circling around Honoka, like a pair of metal vultures. “How's old Valnikov doing? She fucked any more blondes, yet?”

Barbara stepped in before Honoka could protest, her tone taking up the slightest hint of steel. “Chief Mechanic Yda Stradale, that is no way to speak to a guest.”

The tension in the air tightened, like a metal string under strain. Honoka glanced at Barbara, then the twins, then at Petra. The last of the three she watched the closest.

In her four years with the Ninth, Honoka had served under three Warmasters; Kharn, Chiaki Matsuda, and a third whose name she could barely remember. Kharn had her own ways of dealing with things when Officio girls would squabble, which boiled down to sicking Equerry Malal on them until they shut up, egging them on until they shut each other up, or dragging them back to her quarters and “taking their other skulls”, so to speak, until they couldn't shut up. As for the most recent Warmaster, the infamous Murderface hadn't been at her post for long, but Honoka could easily imagine the surly, noodly girl either slinking away for a drink or kneecapping everyone in sight until the problem solved itself.

And so Honoka watched the Warmaster of the Fourth. She noted that Petra simply watched the two squabble. It was neither hesitation born of indecisiveness, nor glum disinterest born of apathy; rather, Petra seemed to be content observing the liaison and the Chief Mechanics, like a biologist watching lions trying to establish dominance. Much the way, she realized, Petra had done when they'd first met.

Yda Stradale took a step forward. “A guest? Is that what we're calling them, now?”

“Yes, it is,” said Barbara, giving not an inch of ground.

“Get back to your little board meeting pow-wows,” said Ach, giving Barbara a little pat on her polished cheek, “and let rest of us handle this little meatbag. The way it should be.”

“Yeah, you keep telling yourself that—”

“This is most inappropriate—”

“Ahem So...what's a 'novitiate'?”

Barbara and and the twins whipped their heads towards Honoka. The redhead did her best to look innocent.

Barbara's shoulders drooped in relief. “A pertinent question, Ms. Honoka," she said, glad to be rid of a conversation rapidly going south. "'Novitiate' is the term we use—”

“—to describe outsiders like you who stay for a year, steal our precious resources and knowledge, then opt out on joining us despite everything we invested in them,” said Yda. “Makes you wonder why we even bother with meatbags, eh?”

Honoka frowned. “Wait," she protested, "I'm just here to learn, I didn't leave Japan and come all the way out here just to steal your things. And besides, -you- were the ones who approved my one-year transfer here.”

“-We- didn't approve the transfer personally,” snarled Ach, “and if it were up to us, you wouldn't have stepped one foot into the Olympia, you and that deficient piece of scrap you're wearing as armor—”

“HEY—!”

“That's enough.”

All of those present whipped their heads in Petra's direction.

“W-Warsmith?” said the twins.

“No more insulting the novitiate. She's our -guest-. Understood?”

The twins looked around them: all around the chamber, Magical Girls were staring at the altercation before them, welders and cutters gone still. As one, the Chief Mecanics' belligerence became sullen sulking.

"...yes, Warsmith.”

“A-aye, Warsmith.”

“Back to your duties, then.”

The Stradales threw Petra half-hearted salutes and stalked off, pouting and petulant. Petra, meanwhile, ignored the Chief Mechanics and waved Honoka forward, deeper into the Olympia.

They walked in silence for a few minutes. If Petra had been embarrassed by the Stradales, she didn't show it; Honoka, on the other hand, couldn't help but feel shocked and a little numb.

She hadn't expected the red carpet to be brought out for her, certainly, nor had she expected the Officio nicknamed 'The Machines' to be the warmest bunch. But she hadn't expect such a cold welcoming, either. Such...hostility. She wondered how prevalent this attitude was going to be, how many more Yda and Ach Stradales she'd come across in the next twelve months.

It was at that point Honoka realized: being with the Fourth was not going to be all fun and games.

“My most sincere apologies for the previous...altercation, Ms. Iwakura.” The placid, diplomatic tone almost disguised the exasperation in the liaison's voice. “Some among the Fourth require a little time to warm up to new arrivals.”

The red-haired Vindicare let out a laugh, which she hoped would disguise her bitterness. “Ha ha, that's, that's alright, Ms. Falko, there's no need to apologize.”

Barbara shook her head and continued. “I'm aware that the Fourth has a reputation for being insular and hostile towards outsiders, and as much as it pains me to admit it, that reputation is not entirely baseless. One of the main reasons why the Warsmith created the Emmeles—our diplomatic corps—and the reason why I joined it was to help undo that reputation. But I'm afraid that our work is not yet finished.” She turned her metal head towards Honoka. “Regardless, please do not think our Chief Mechanics' attitudes are representative of the rest of us." The liaison placed a hand on Honoka's shoulder, a part left uncovered by her exoskeleton, a hand that felt remarkably warm despite its metal make.

"I, for one, am very glad you decided to visit.”

Later, Honoka would look back on this moment and note this was the first time a robot had ever made her blush and stammer.

'Yeah...I'm not going to be looking back on this one too fondly.'

Honoka tossed in her cot, drumming her fingers on the stiff fabric as she mulled on the memory. Not the best start to her first days in the Fourth, she decided. Probably could have gone better.

No use in dwelling on that bit, she decided, forcibly shoving the memory aside. A glance at her discarded exoskeleton made her remember what Petra had said, soon after leaving behind the Stradales:

“But you're not here for guns or armor or cars,” she'd said. “Your transfer request said you wanted to study our Ironforms.”

“Next, we'll take you to the Mechanicus.”

It's just what it says! Chiaki can now access her shield inventory a bit more easier this time, and 'request' for certain items with a smaller margin of error. This also helps eliminate the chances of drawing a dangerous Golden Weapon by accident!

In other words it does nothing since there are no coincidences in storytelling and the plot will do what needs to be done at certain times regardless of "smaller margin of error".

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE FALL OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Deculture 08/15/14(Fri)09:55:17 No.34154724

You are a Magical Girl. It's been a long night, and even a longer morning. You've just finished your duties for the morning - and later tonight, you'll be officially ratified as Warmaster.

You are currently taking a break - lunch with your Equerry and your best friend, in a bar you usually do all your drinking in.

Ramen takeout, from Hanegawa's. Spicy miso broth, long firm noodles, and just enough pork fat to make everything absolutely delicious and at the same time probably unhealthy. Lunch of fucking champions, Kyoko had grinned, and the three of you hunkered over your own bowls to begin feasting.

To be completely honest, you're not sure how you're still conscious - or alive, even, after the previous twelve hours. Anyone else probably would've dropped dead by now, or at least put a gun to their head and shot their brains out from all the fucking paperwork. And the stress.

Well, mostly the fucking paperwork, really.

>>34154724

Sure, having to rescue your arms dealer from a fiery death wasn't any fun, but you managed to off a few of Oriko's terrorists, so that was gratifying. You also saw Tiny Pete absolutely wreck three Lava Golems on his own, that was awesome too. He came out of that mess a barely-recognizable mess of melted armor and exposed organics, but fuck if he didn't prove himself to be the best thing you ever pulled out of your Shield.

There was the nightmare, though. That wasn't so fun. Wendy, well...you wish the reunion could have gone a bit nicer, but considering the current circumstances, how it went down was probably the best you could hope for. She was civil enough during the meeting, and even helped you rescue Misaka, even though she practically had no reason to do so.

...What Midori did during the meeting, though....well. You still have to talk to her about it later. Even though things turned out alright, it easily could have turned out the wrong way.

Is this what happens during an actual relationship? You won't deny that you have feelings for Midori, and had spent the night with her in that huge bed - but you're not sure what to think of kind of aggression coming from the green-haired Callidus. Yes, alright, you're not so stupid as to not recognize how your ex coming into the scene can't cause issues, but... This sudden jealousy spurring her into doing something THAT impulsive, THAT unprofessional --

"Hey, Murderface," Kyoko chirps as you feel her elbow nudge your side. You turn to her, just as she jabs her chopsticks in a downward direction, pointing towards your half-finished ramen. "You gonna finish that?"

You blink, and look down oat your bowl. Well, kind of, you're still a bit hungry--

"Leave Murderface's food alone, Kyoko." Sayaka snaps from your other side. "If you're done with your first bowl, grab another from the bag."

[1/2]

"Why'd you think I had you get six bowls of takeout in the first place?" Sayaka manages a small smirk as Kyoko whoops in celebration, and you see the red-haired Eversor tear hungrily into her second bowl of ramen. "Today's cheat day for her, so it's alright."

Cheat day, huh. So Sayaka's putting your best friend on a diet, then?

"Just a bit of portion control, nothing major." Your Equerry shrugs, before ducking slightly to sip broth from the lip of her bowl. "Trying to make her cut down on all the snacks, too. All just sugar and empty calories, useless in our line of work."

Huh. Well. You thought being an Eversor just burns all those excess calories off without a sweat.

"We do, yeah." Sayaka nods. "Usually isn't an issue, that's why you don't see any chubby Eversors around. Everything gets used for energy or turned to muscle." Picking up her chopsticks again, she picks out a fat shrimp from the depths of her bowl and pops it into her mouth. Covering her chewing with a gloved hand, she continues. "But eating clean is eating clean, you know? Part of discipline."

Hnh. Well, you suppose you understand. You go back to your ramen, while pointedly ignoring the horrible sounds coming from your other side, where Kyoko is happily starting on her THIRD bowl now.

"Thanks for dealing with Heartcatch Squad, by the way." Sayaka murmurs as Charles begins to play a slow, simple song on his new piano - nothing fancy, just something slow jazz-like. Ambience music. "I was going to deal with it on my own, but Mami insisted I leave it to you. Something about you learning the ropes still." A moment's hesitation. "...You really had to shoot her, huh?"

How do you respond?

I somewhat got the idea that the first vote is not Chiaki really second guessing herself, but rather her being confused with the idea that there is something wrong with shooting kneecaps of people who are asking for it.

I mean not being suppsoed to shoot off the kneecaps of insubordinate bitches? What kind of bizarro world does Sayaka think this is?

Threadly reminder that we met Midori when she was assisting in a gang rape, toyed with her sexually while she was still our prisoner, and took her to Siberia with us on a whim.

She then entered multiple overlapping witch barriers to find us, talked Pinky down enough to get her help, collected all the fragments of our psyche, bitchslapped Kharn, and finally told out deity-level evil alternate version to GET FUCKED.

If we're sharing such stories, I have a colleague who was stumped when I told him our service returns a bytestring encoded as base16 (because it has to be consumable through javascript... no, you know what, this is too much despair even for this thread.

The more I work here, the more I think the solution is for the backend services to just return executable code and then the entire frontend becomes a read-eval loop and all those people who need a good kneecapping can just write css.

Were you supposed to not shoot her? You find yourself blinking in surprise at Sayaka. The Eversor whose kneecap you shot off was really asking for it - enough that you wondered for a moment, before pulling the trigger, that it was all some sort of candid camera gag, that Sayaka would suddenly leap out of nowhere in the nick of time while a laugh track set off somewhere.

Kurumi Whatshername even fucking dropped her mates in the cacky - and while your experience being in a working squad is limited to half-remembered days with Malal and Kharn, you're pretty sure that it's one of the unspoken rules in a squad: to Never Drop Your Mates In The Cacky.

"..." Sayaka is silent - or at least, as silent as anyone could be while slurping down more of her ramen - and she takes a moment to chew and swallow before replying. "Wasn't putting your judgment call into question at all, Murderface. Christ, don't get so defensive all of a sudden." She shakes her head. "And her name's Kurumi Erika. Get that right, at least. Anyway, I thought you did the right thing."

Sure. Fine. Still doesn't change the fact that she practically dared you to shoot her right in your office, you don't know why Sayaka's suddenly on your case for just doing your job-

Wait, did Sayaka just...?

"I'm agreeing with you, yes." The blue-haired Eversor says in a resigned monotone as she turns back towards her food. "Don't get used to it, but I thought you handled it alright, considering...well." She gestures towards the Golden Desert Eagle holstered at your side.

"I was expecting to have to write up another Black Envelope, but instead an errant trainee only has to spend a couple of days growing her kneecap back - and the rest of her squad gets a brush with mortality. Not a bad tradeoff." A shrug of a bared shoulder, and a sigh. "I probably would've done a whole lot worse, if I didn't listen to Mami. So, thanks."

Huh. Well. That's...she's welcome, you manage after a momentary loss for words.

"That was nice, too, what you did with the rest of Heartcatch Squad." Sayaka picks at the remaining contents of her bowl, before turning back towards you. "Getting them to deliver the Black Envelopes, I mean. Make an example with 'em, have them see what kind of shit can happen if they fuck up again. I like that. Seems like something Malal would've done back then."

Sounds like your Equerry's pleased with how well you did with Heartcatch Squad, then. Maybe you're getting a better handle at this watch-wearing dildo business after all.

"Anything else happen during your morning, then?" Sayaka pipes up after a few minutes' worth of comfortable silence, broken only by Charles leafing through his Piano for Beginners book. "Anything from the exciting world of paperpushing, Warmaster Edition?"

There's a horrible gurgling sound - like something unspeakable rising from the murky, briny depths - as Kyoko half-chokes, half-laughs into her mouthful of ramen.

Hah. Very funny.

How do you respond?

Maybe ask for relationship advice? Midori is really territorial and stuff. I don't quite get the reasons behind Homu actions...
Did she expected to not be loved differently from any other magical girl if she followed Godoka ? How are the results of her actions actually better ? Did she just went nut at some point ?

Multiple factors probably.
1.Homura has been looping for so long that she has to be mostly crazy.

2.The Madoka in the barrier talks in a way that convinces Homura that letting Madoka go back to being Godoka would be a mistake.

3.Nothings stopping the incubators from repeating the experiment with another meguca, so Madoka remains in danger if things are not changed and incubators dealt with.

4.And so on. Lots of reasons have been given and arguments more for and against. Too many to really get into here.

I feel like I should make a Copypasta about this, its not that hard to understand if you follow the movie.

Homura basically sacrificed herself.
She became the devil so Madoka would could spend time with there friends and family. Remember the talk they had in the flower-field, this is the defining moment where Homura realizes that it was a mistake to let Madoka use her wish to save all the magical girls.

In the mango its a bit clearer that she did NOT completely undo the law of cycles but only removed Madoka from it.

The ending is somewhat bittersweet because Homura knows that she cannot approach Madoka in the world she made for her without Madoka starting to remember things.

IT'S LOVE

>>34156538
Watch it again and it'll make more sense.
Madoka tells Homura what she'd never want to do is leave her friends and family. Not being able to see Sayaka, Homu, Kyouko, Mami, or her brother Tatsuya, or her parents, etc. would make her unhappy.

Homura's want's only one thing, Madoka to be happy, and concludes that Madoka's sacrifice at the end the show was because Madoka thought it was necessary, not because it's what she really wanted to become.

And so Homu does what she's done since she first went back in time to become a magical girl. Try and save Madoka, and shoulder her burden for her, so she doesn't have to suffer.

When Madokami comes to save her from becoming a witch outside her barrier, Homu interrupts, and steals a part of Madokami's power, using the the karmic potential of all the timelines of her love and despair building up, which leads to Rebellion's ending.

Now there are no Incubators to turn Madoka into a magical girl. Walpurgis Nacht will never come and require Madoka to turn into a magical girl. Madoka grows up as a normal, happy girl.

And for good measure, Homu grants the other's their wishes. Mami is no longer alone (she has Bebe), Kyouko can once again see Sayaka, Sayaka doesn't have to regret leaving Kyouko behind, Hitomi has Kyouske paying attention to her, and Bebe has cheese. Everyone's wishes through out the movie are granted. It's a decidedly dark but happy end.

Let's put it this way, it doesn't look like Godoka has any way of stopping the Incubators from anything they want to do except for when they're in the way of her taking a meguca... and they have forever to work it out. Homu already pondered plenty about Madoka's sacrifice enough since the end of the series. It was a delicate balance maintained by the fact that she could do nothing about it.

She could let Madoka take her to meguca valhalla, but... that's not stopping no Incubators or changing anything. The movie tipped her scales over with the Incubators new plans, how much of it is her fault and barrier Madoka's answer to her question. She knows how bad it's going to look to everyone else, so Homu again assumed a new persona into herself to go through with it like she did during the time loops. This time, into a traitorous crazy bitch devil.

Anon here, thank everyone for the explanation. Sorry for derailing, I would have asked on /a/ but everytime i see a thread about Homura it's either about her legs or /a/ going full WHARRGARBLL.

From Homura's perspective, Madoka's wish was at best misguided and at worst genocidal. First of all, it made Homura's original wish unfulfillable. But wishes must be fulfilled, so the result was some sort of magical power feedback loop that granted her sufficient moxy to challenge Godoka.

Second, Madoka didn't actually prevent the incubators from experimenting on and exploiting magical girls except in one specific way, and Kyubey was already hard at work finding loopholes to exploit (namely, toying with Homura's feedback loop).

Third, who is Madoka to say that destroying all witches throughout time is actually a good thing? Maybe some magical girls WANT to become witches. Maybe the transformation isn't as absolute and terrible as the series made it out to be. Maybe there's a better way, if a girl can learn to control both her witch form and her MG form. This is what Nagisa/Bebe, Sayaka, and Homura herself are doing by the end. But if Madoka had her way, she'd essentially euthanize everyone and trap them in her specific version of paradise forever.

So Homura was like "Fuck that shit, you wanna rewrite the universe to your personal ideals at everyone else's expense? Ok, let's play."

Was it better? It depends on your point of view.

You think back on the paperwork you were forced to deal with earlier this morning. Besides the Black Envelopes and the mundane paperwork, there was also that letter from the Second, predictably asking for Kyoko again. ...Maybe you should tell Sayaka about that? It IS another Officio trying to lure your best friend and her girlfriend away from the both of you, after all. She'd probably want to know about it.

...On second thought, no. You remember the first one clearly - how you called Kyoko up into your office and asked her about it. While that in itself ended well enough - Kyoko leaving your office happy and grinning, and you still with your best friend and a sweat-soaked costume - she did say that she hasn't exactly told Sayaka yet, for fear of the Blueberry overreacting. And you know enough at least that breaching the subject here and now would open a can of worms that neither Eversor might be ready to deal with at the moment.

No, you decide. This is relationship stuff, stuff between both Kyoko and Sayaka. Kyoko will have to breach the subject on her own, you'll just have to notify her in private about it later. You're Warmaster and everything, sure, but there's something to respecting one's own space, even when you're well in the right because of your rank.

Instead, you breach the subject about your recently-resurfaced ex - Wendy Cooldown. And as soon as you utter her name, you immediately sense both Eversors suddenly tense up in attention. Even Kyoko's slowed down in her devouring of her fourth bowl(Sayaka's second helping, quickly surrendered in the face of a pleading look that you yourself had to look away from).

In their attentive silence, you tell them about how Mami brought Wendy into your office. How your ex, after the usual exchange of pleasantries, suddenly handed you a contract - a contract with terms that you agreed with after a moment's fashion, and signed off on.

>>34157499

"A mercenary contract, huh? Like outsourcing, that kind of thing?" Sayaka murmurs, tapping the tips of her chopsticks against the rim of her bowl. "Well, it doesn't sound all that bad. Cooldown's always been one of the more reliable few in the Eighth - someone you can count on not to go batshit when it really counts. No idea if it's still true, but she didn't exactly drag her feet earlier, back at the docks."

So she's got no objection, then? Since you did just sign on a bunch of cultists, ex notwithstanding.

"The accepted nomenclature, Murderface, is 'faithful'. You signed on a bunch of the Blessed Lady's faithful." Sayaka smirks at you. "But I don't personally have an objection, especially if Mami was there. You can't be more ironclad than that, if it's Mami-approved." She nods sagely. "Just watch out, I guess? Since you and Wendy have history together, it could get a bit complicated. 'Specially with Midori around."

...Yeah. Midori.

"You know what I'm talking about, right?" Your Equerry turns towards you. "What Midori did earlier, back at the meeting...I honestly thought we were gonna have a bloodbath then."

Really? She got that from Wendy?

"Well, I wouldn't say there was a really strong killing intent, but..." Sayaka looks down on her ramen bowl, frowning. "It's just one of those things, you know? I thought shit was going to go down, then."

Yeah. That was pretty lucky.

"Damn right."

"I didn't think so!" Kyoko volunteers loudly, one hand reaching up to the ceiling, a student begging to be called. "What Midori did was really cute an' all, but I think Wendy was just really stressed about stuff!"A brief pause as Kyoko slurps down even more of her remaining ramen. "I don't think Wendy would've gone after Midori then, she was really trying her best to be professional an' stuff!"

"I did say, didn't I?" Sayaka cuts in right after, placing her chopsticks neatly on top of her empty ramen bowl and clasping her hands briefly in thanks. "No need to dwell on it right now, anyway. Just be careful, Murderface. Talk to Midori about what she did, make sure she doesn't do it again."

Yeah. You will. You don't even have to write that in your journal to remember.

"Good." Sayaka nods, before quickly turning to the side - and it's here that you hear her let out a small, embarrassed burp. "Excuse me," she murmurs, turning back with a slight blush on her face. ...Kinda cute, actually.

Silence, again. Seems you can pick what to talk about, now.

Hnh. Well. You don't want to spend your entire lunch break talking about work, so you rack your brain on what to talk about. Something light, obviously. Something that isn't too serious, but at the same time something you'd want to know more about.

Inspiration strikes you here - and it's with a conversation you had with Sayaka, after the Big Shell mission, in the cockpit of a stolen MiG. While Kyoko herself snored the journey away on Sayaka's lap, you and your Equerry talked about...well, another type of relationship. The sort that involved three people, rather than the traditional pair. About how it seems to work out well enough when foreigners are concerned, and if mutual feelings were indeed shared by all parties.

Ever since your Equerry informed you of such a setup's existence, you've been wondering if such an arrangement could work at all for you. You, Midori, and your once-hypothetically-alive-but-really-dead ex. It seems like...well, it seems like a neater way to handle things, right? Well, Wendy's back now, and she's pretty much alive, so...

"Well?" Sayaka turns to look sidelong at you, resting her chin against gloved hands propped up on the counter by her elbows. "Looks like you're itching to talk about something, Murderface. Spit it out already, while we've still got time to yak around."

Hnh. Well. Nothing for it, then. Every other subject you've got seems too much about work, anyway.

"...About threesomes--" You start, and that's how far you get before Kyoko starts to choke on her food again, and Sayaka's elbows to slip off the edge of the counter, making her literally headbutt the bartop in shock.

"OW! FUCK! That HURT!" Sayaka roars, holding up a gloved hand to her forehead, pressing her palm against the angry red bruise there. Meanwhile, your best friend beside you is doing a commendable job unsticking food in her throat by hastily shoving more food in after it.

"Christ, Murderface! What're you doing, busting out a subject like that?! No one brings up stuff like that just after a fucking meal!" Your Equerry shrieks, glaring at you, then at the untouched bottle of whisky by her side, along with the half-empty glass of the same amber liquid. "You haven't been stopping time and sneaking drinks on the fly again, have you? Because I swear to fucking god--"

What? No! You didn't even fucking touch your Shield the entire time! You've been eating! You're not even buzzed or anything like that! You're dead sober, that's the truth!

"..." The blue-haired Eversor's eyes narrow as she continues to glare at you for an entire minute - and it's here that she seems to calm down slightly, before looking past you. "Kyoko? You okay?"

Still coughing, but also still breathing, Kyoko raises a thumbs-up. Her cheeks visibly flushed, although that's probably from choking on her food than anything resembling embarrassment.

Sayaka shakes her head, before frowning at you, still covering her bruise with her hand. "...Fine, smartass. You want to talk about threesomes, we talk about threesomes." She shakes her head, as if disbelieving that she's having this conversation with you - again. "What about them, then?"

How do you respond?

But no, seriously, I'm really curious as to the intent of the Midori vote and it might be important here - it seemed like the original intent was to just backpedal and just talk about Midori instead, but some people also joined in with the context that it was still about the threesome or something.

Personally I was mostly trying to backpedal, since not only do I dislike the harem thing, I also think that even if it happens, its blitheringly stupid to start talking about it NOW, when just a few hours ago (gametime) we had a clear demonstration on how Midori would react.

So I think having this talk now is utterly moronic whether you support harem or oppose it.

Shieeeeeeet late for the thread!

Anyway, just so we are clear on this:

Chiaki is clearly not good relationships.
Chiaki is new to relationships.
Chiaki likes Midori but is not even sure where this is going.
Chiaki has already problems with handling Midori, just because she fucked Midori didn't let those issues Chiaki and Midori have magically vanish.

So, now that we are clear on the facts, there are actually people in this thread who believe that Chiaki , who has no idea about Relationships and already has her hands full with Midori, should have a POLYGAMOUS relationship with Wendy and Midori.

Now, knowing all this, my question is: ARE YOU PEOPLE PANTS ON HEAD RETARDED?

The Account of the Damned, ch. 2 – Saws

APPROX. TWO WEEKS AFTER WALPURGISNACHT 20XX

The worst of it, I think, was the sound. The screech of metal teeth on my shield, stripping it away, carving into it at an unreal pace. It came back to me whenever the room went silent. I could feel the blood around my knees, could sense it sinking into the gears of my wheels. …I had to take them off at some point. I scarcely remembered. There was no point in trying to wade through the gore there with them.

Enyo brought one of those little plug-in fountains that keeps flowing as long as you make sure there's water in it. It helped a lot. She tried a fan before that, but the white noise…well, it was just as bad. It just changed into something else when I'd sleep. Nasty business. Wish there was something to help with the laughter, though. The manic… fucking glee in her voice, the blood-drenched smile on her…its…face.

Didn't matter that I only got to see it once or twice. It was there when I closed my eyes. That, and the faces of the dead. Of the fifty girls that died there. The girls I'd led to their deaths, and the Culexus that we couldn't protect. Whenever I slept, I relived it all over again. Every second of every minute of every hour. Every wound opened anew. The pressure on my shield crumpled my arms, pulverized the bones as I tried to hold the thing's enormous weapons back. As I prayed for Mordred to be ready one moment sooner, or for somebody to come up with a real plan.

It wasn't theirs to come up with, though. It was mine.

I could have done better. Even through the pain of losing my arms, of having my legs torn away from under me, I could have done better. I trained under Erebus, supposedly one of the finest Templars the Second had ever seen. For fuck's sake, I could best Arty – the fucking Equerry, the Pendragon destined to lead the Officio, or whatever that was about – in nine fights out of ten. I'd taken on both of the Karnstein Sisters at once, barehanded, and come out on top.

I couldn't stop thinking about it, in my waking hours. As they ran their tests on what remained of my body, as Enyo wheeled me around and pretended the fresh air did any damn good. I went over the leaders I'd seen in my time, ran scenarios in my head.

High Inquisitor Kiryuin would have cut through a witch like that as though it were nothing, all by herself. Gerty – High Inquisitor von Egisheim – would have had a plan, a real fucking plan, going in there. She would have expected things to go wrong. And High Marshal Erebus…

She would have made us better, if she were there. Mordred wouldn't have run. We would have fought like beasts, if she'd been leading us. But we didn't. I wasn't High Marshal Erebus, and so we scattered, and we died.

…She'd told me before. Lady Malal did. I knew we were supposed to die. I knew it. I suppose I thought I might defy the odds somehow.

I guess I did.

“High Marshal,” Enyo quietly interrupted my pity party. “Lady Hesselius would like to examine you in her…” She didn’t want to say ‘laboratory’. “…office.” She meant ‘laboratory’.

...That may have been the part I hated the most. Not Cosette, Cosette was fine. Bit strange, really, but you get used to that, working with magical types. No, the way Enyo lifted me up like I might break in her arms. Her perfectly bloody functional arms. Wasn’t even dignified, didn’t have enough knees left for that. She’d looked at me with nothing but pity since we’d returned. Couldn’t quite blame her, but it made me feel angry and disgusted all the same.

Least it wasn’t to use the bathroom this time.

She didn’t say a word as she placed me in a wheelchair and started me down the hallway. …Couldn’t even transform now, not without everything just sort of falling on the bloody floor. They wouldn’t heal, the legs she’d torn away, or the arms she’d crushed. Too powerful, they said. Left her – its – mark, its own special kind of black-steel rot that’d grown over the stumps.

What Cosette had been poking at most recently was whether it’d be possible to attach functional mechanical prosthetics, like Enyo’s. We had some of the best in the business at our beck and call, but if that poisonous… whatever it was made it impossible to connect properly, well.

That was the end of my career, as well as my spicy on-again off-again relationship with stairs.

The laboratory was a mess of half-melted candles and inexplicable circles, as it had been the day before, and the day before that, and the week and a half or so before that. Once again, Hesselius had books splayed all over the place, indecipherable by anyone but a Librarian or, I suppose, someone with an extensive knowledge of Latin, Arabic, and damned if I know, French or something.

She smiled her dark, almost insincere smile as Enyo wheeled me in and helped me onto the makeshift examination table that they’d set up for me. It wasn’t necessary, most of the time, to lay someone out like this, but I wasn’t good for much else since I got back. She slipped off without a word once she was sure I was as comfortable as I could be – even remembered to grab a pillow and everything.

I was sure she didn’t want to look at me. I couldn’t really blame her. I wouldn’t have wanted to look at my superior officer like this, much less a dear friend. The room dimmed to nothing but candlelight, gently accompanied by an eerie light from beneath me, and Cosette crept into the edge of my view, mostly visible thanks to her unnaturally pale skin.

Librarians never did get out much. Or the dark oaths they swore sucked the color right out of them. The rest of us never were certain, and they liked it that way. Gerty was one, once, and she still didn’t have even the tiniest bit of a tan. Though she still didn’t go out much either, damnedest thing.

“Have the dreams gotten any better, lately?” Bless her, she tried to make conversation as her long, black nails brushed over the skin on my legs, then the icy black metal that had fused to them. I could still feel it in a sort of distant, indescribable way as she traced a pattern onto one of my stumps, some hex or another that I’d long since bothered inquiring about.

“Well, I’m getting sort of used to them. Bit like rewatching an old classic again and realizing one of the license plates is a dick joke.” I tried to answer her as cheerfully as I could. She let out a breath that might have been a laugh, so I called it my win for the day.

Yeah. Its natural that Decu wants Wendy to get it on with Chiaki. Can't blame him for wanting that, even if I think the watermelon thing is utterly silly.

I just hope that when it will eventually happen (theres no question it will), the quest won't fill with that.

“Have you reconsidered seeing Doctor Liddell about it? Cases like yours are-“

“-her specialty, I know.” Liddell was some sort of shrink, but I could scarcely understand a thing she said when she tried to be helpful, and the rest was typically just rude. It left us both with a headache, invariably, and that was really the only bit I had anymore that didn’t viciously complain to me every second of the day. “Anything new, or…?”

“I’ve ruled it out as a magical poison.” Right. Knew that. “It’s more like a disease. The kind that rots away at you from the inside.” Fantastic. I nodded up at her, urged her to continue. “And it goes deeper than your limbs.” She hummed idly to herself, settling on the edge of the table. I waggled one of my stumps at her as though it would convince her to tell me more.

“It’s a bit more complicated than saying it’s already taken root in your soul, but for simplicity’s sake, let’s call it that.” Wonderful. That was almost assuredly worse than a death sentence. Cosette cackled out her quiet little laugh when she saw the look on my face.

“Give us a few weeks to make a cursory glance through the Record. If there’s anything that can be done, we’ll find it, High Marshal. No-one else in the world can compare with our understanding of witches.”

Witches, she said. I forced myself to sit up, an embarrassing ordeal in itself.

“Something distantly related,” she purred, as though it hardly mattered at all. “Think of this as the Betrayer’s kiss. Or, if you prefer, a memento of the greatest battle you ever survived.”

“I’ll always have the memories, Cosette. I don’t need a souvenir.” I could barely force the words out. …She laughed again, and if I could have strangled her, I would have. She knew it, too.

“I’ll see what I can do about it for now.” Gently she placed a hand on my chest, and somewhat less gently shoved me back down onto the table. “Now, let me see your gem…”

Watermelon ending is only possible if all three parties involved can love each other inclusively. Sayaka hinted at this when Chiaki was piloting the MiG back from the oil rig mission.

Midori is feeling extremely insecure and afraid of being abandoned after all she's done to get into a relationship with Chiaki. Even if a relationship was started up successfully with Wendy, her reasonable and unreasonable insecurities and fears could very possibly undermine everything.

Wendy may possibly still have some hang-ups with Murderface, and needs closure in that regard. It needs to be made clear that Chiaki is very different, and it needs to be made clear whether or not Wendy is OK with a relationship with Chiaki.

Wendy must be comfortable being around Midori. The reverse must also be true before any sort of intimate relationship can flourish.

“…Didn’t go well, High Marshal?” Enyo had never been gentle, exactly, so things had been a bit awkward between us since she volunteered to cart me around everywhere I needed to be. Which was mostly one doctor or another, really. I’d have been more embarrassed if I had anyone left to impress, but even Arty was still out after her ugly brush with castle guard duty.

That wasn’t sarcasm, by the by. Not sure I would have traded my assignment for hers. Not on Walpurgisnacht, at least. Ugly, ugly business, and I was glad to get back and find her in more or less one piece. One thing about the whole bloody plan that went well, at least.

“The Head Librarian felt me up for an hour and then played with my soul gem like it was our first night off of training. It was magical.” I idly waved a stump up at Enyo, and she snickered. …Actually, it was like that not-quite-painful but really creepy feeling you get when the dentist scrapes your teeth, but all over my body, and it hadn’t quite gone away yet.

“I’m glad you haven’t lost your grating sense of humor, High Marshal.” She leaned in just enough to ruffle my hair. I tried to bat her hand away, but…yeah.

“Yes, well. Arms gone, optimism intact. Can’t afford to witch out; Arty’s got her head up her bum, Callahan’s a weenie, the Princess is a coward and I’m going to headbutt her into paste if I see her face again, and you…well, I suppose you’d spend all your time in the garage, drinking beer with the girls. So not altogether that different, eh?” I laughed. Enyo didn’t, just slowed down for a moment and gripped my wheelchair harder.

“I…really am glad you’re alright, but I’d rather you weren’t so flippant about your own demise. I…I really don’t know what I’d do without you.” Well this turned awkward. I looked up toward her for a second, then nodded, opting to focus on the foot I had so graciously stuffed in my mouth, and the feel of the chair’s wheel’s rolling over the stone flooring of the castle hallways.

…I’d wheeled through here ten thousand times, of course. I knew every bump in these floors. More than likely I could close my eyes and tell Enyo where she was taking me now, even if I didn’t have the layout of the castle all but memorized anyway. Wasn’t toward food, certainly not toward my room. Dr. Liddell’s office was near the hospital wing, and we weren’t headed there. Probably the hangar, then.

Good. Maybe she’d just load me in Maria and we could…I don’t know. Or strap me onto her bike, I suppose.

…The whole thing was bloody depressing.

I was sort of glad when she guided me directly into her workshop; the hangar itself seemed huge, unbearably huge, even with the Templars’ vehicles (and the Second’s) taking up most of it, and the Mechanica flitting about working on this and that. I didn’t…really want them to see me right now. Not more than a glance, not more than it took for Enyo to push me into the little office she used for finer work. Which was…

Which was all but buried in half-finished prostheses. Some of them rougher than Enyo’s arm, discarded lazily in a corner, some of them almost delicate, thrown away with careless frustration. I…it couldn’t possibly be the work of just a couple of weeks.

“Apologies for the state of the place, High Marshal. I haven’t slept much since we got back. I…well. You know how it is, I think. How one becomes fixated on a project.” I just stared at her as she started going through a few sets of arms and legs that she seemed to have set aside.

“I didn’t make all of these in just a week and change, don’t worry. Most of them are just shells, too. Rejects. They…well, they weren’t right.” Enyo’s voice had gone quiet. She almost seemed…embarrassed? “They need to be special. I’m not just…filling an order, or something. They’re for someone very important. To me.” She paused for a moment, then hastily added, “And to the Second. And the Templars.”

Well, that explained where she’d been slipping off to while everyone and their mother was having a look at my remaining bits. I tried to wheel my chair closer to the limbs she was poking through, but to my great consternation, it still did not move on spite alone.

“So did you figure out how to get around the metal bits, then?” Better to change the subject. Enyo’d started fiddling with the fingers on one of the more delicate-looking arms, squeezing them in her hand. The human one, usually. “Or do I get a remote control to operate with my tongue, or something?”

“Implants,” she murmured. “An inch or so up your arm and your thigh. It’s going to hurt, High Marshal, but it should make for an interface that will work just as well as a more direct installation.” She squeezed the arm in her hands tight. “…It may be better to simply wait until Lady Hesselius is done treating your condition. I’m worried we’ll have to rip the implants out for her to treat you properly, and once it's cleared up we could do a much safer, more typical installation."

I was fairly sure it wasn't going to clear up; Cosette made it sound more like a curse than anything. A curse from Walpurgisnacht herself. The fact that I was alive was either extremely lucky, or…

"…You don't think she can treat it, do you." She'd forced a neutral expression onto her face, but her tone was quiet, a bit sad. I'd let my worry show for a bit too long, and she caught it. I did my best to laugh it off.

"I'm just sick of being wheeled around; I much prefer to do it myself. Bit of extra pain's worth it, so long as you have a block of wood or a rag or something for me to bite down on." A ghost of a smile returned to her face, and she nodded ever-so-slightly.

"…That's typical of you, High Marshal. I…" A lengthy pause as she fidgeted with an arm, then carefully cleared the extra limbs from her table. "I'd prefer to do this personally. To make sure everything…everything installs correctly, with no complications."

"No Venenum, then."

"No Venenum. Apologies, High Marshal. It's selfish, I know." 'No' wasn't an option here, it seemed. That was…

No, that was alright. I'd trusted her with more. Couldn't be worse than losing them in the first place, right? I shot her the most reassuring smile I could manage as she lifted me from my chair, but it got harder and harder to keep up after I settled in, and as the familiar roar of a saw filled my ears.

"Grit your teeth, High Marshal," murmured Enyo as she stuffed a strip of scrap leather into my mouth. "This is going to sting."

"Pinky, left. Ring finger, left. Middle finger, left." We'd done this a few times since the operation now; Enyo sat next to me on my bed and called out commands, eyes closed, listening for…any imperfection in the machinery, I suppose. There had been none so far; the operation hurt about ten times as much as I expected it to and there was a leather strap in her workshop that you could use for dental records because of it, but everything was working smoothly.

It was almost too smooth, and it bothered me a bit from the get-go. These were distinctly civilian prostheses. It was certainly Enyo that had made them, I didn't doubt that for a moment, but it was territory I'd never seen her delve into before. My new arms and legs were slender and pitch-black, delicate and almost gentle. They matched up perfectly – or very, very close – with my stumps, and reminded me more of scandalous gloves and boots than fresh limbs. Not a single hidden chainsaw or laser or somesuch, either.

I wondered idly if Enyo thought of them the same way – more like accessories than weapons - as she ran her hands along them to test their sensitivity. …I could have done that myself, of course, but she'd hardly left my side since the operation, as though I'd run off and start punching holes in walls if left alone.

…Which was an entirely fair call, as I nearly snuck out to do just that the moment she drifted off. Be a bit of a pisser for the maintenance crew, but I was excited just to be able to punch things again. Also thought about clocking El a few dozen times for laughing whenever she'd stop by my room, but it wasn't worth the trouble. Yet. She did send me a lovely manicure set, after all, and classy white heels I would have worn to a ball or something if I owned a dress to go with them.

Really, she was so enthusiastic about being a bitch that it was hard to hate her for it.

Still, I barely had a minute to immerse myself in thoughts-slash-fantasies-slash-plans of grinding the smug off of Elcarys's face with my heel before Enyo reached across my lap and laced her fingers in mine.

"…High Marshal? Can you feel this?" …I wasn't sure what she was getting at. We'd tested this already, just a bit ago, but her voice had gone quiet again. For a moment I worried that there was something wrong, but I nodded distantly all the same.

"…And this?" Her mechanical hand brushed against my knee, then continued up my leg, up to the still-fleshy part of my thigh. I furrowed my brow and nodded slowly.

In retrospect, I should have realized. I probably should have realized quite a bit earlier, actually. Weeks ago, maybe months. Maybe a year or two, I don't bloody well know. She went far out of her way to make me new limbs so that I might feel normal. Something more than a Templar and a hero, something to let me stay just a little bit human. Then she spent two days groping me. Then…

Right then, she leaned in close, and our lips met. She kissed me, and I froze. It wasn't my first kiss or anything, I turned in my V-card quite a while ago, but…I suppose I never expected it from Enyo. And not one like this, definitely – a hard kiss, a passionate, desperate kiss, as she squeezed my hand and my thigh.

…I squeezed back, after a few seconds. I didn't quite know what to do, or how to feel. A lot of things…sort of flowed out at once, as she pushed me back on the bed, straddled me, as my shiny new arms slid around her shoulders.

That one I could definitely feel.

The anime logic is probably the ability to string multiple romantic interests along without them getting mad at each other, or the MC.

We shot a girl in the knees, stockholm syndrome'd her, and then found out that, for years, she's been drawing porn of us and her? I'm sorry, but "I've had an unexpressed desire for you for forever, and now you've noticed me and I'm confessing" is the most shit anime romance trope out of the whole bag.

Not to hate on Midori - she proved she was a baller in Siberia. But our romances have run on bad anime tropes since the beginning - have we forgotten Iori?

Magical Torturer Suzi Berry versus Magical Scribe Eleanor Slam

Dang, why couldn't I just let her sleep through it? No matter how many times I see it, she always looks too darn cute when she's sleepin'. She's like a frowny little angel.

Though, considerin' how long that quickie took, she's probably had too much time as it is. I take out my phone and flip it on, and, obscurin' the naughty bits on my wallpaper, is a clock that says... I still have a few minutes before I have to get goin'.

"Rise and shine, Elly!" I call out cheerily, partin' the curtains to let some light in, and then standin' at the foot of her bed. Elly's wincin' and tossin' beneath the covers right now... Ah, there's one eye open!

"...Nnn... Huh...?" Ihihihi, she's groggy~.

I give my little introduction, wavin' by curlin' my fingers and sayin', "Helloooo~! Suzi Escort Service, here to pick ya up." After givin' her a smart little salute, I crawl onto the bed and pose tastefully at the end.

"...Oh, it's you..." she murmurs, sleepily wipin' at her eyes and sittin' up in bed to glare at me. It... takes her a bit to do that one-handed. She's wearin' those cute pajamas, too. "How'd you get in?" she asks. She wasn't even surprised? Oh well.

"Ya need to lock yer windows, Elly~," I tease her. Not that lockin' her windows stopped me before, ihihihi. And, aww, she's already got a case of bedhead again.

"...'kay..." she says, blearily rubbin' at her eyes again with just one hand. She must be really out of it after all.

Somethin's been buggin' me, though. Somethin' familiar in the air. I can't place the smell exactly, but it smells like...

"Do I smell flowers?" I ask her.

She just nods a little. "Shampoo," she clarifies. I didn't take her for the type to use the flowery stuff.

I can't help but grin a little bit at this.

"Why Elly, ya little heartbreaker," I say, narrowin' my eyes at her and tuggin' her curly hair to make it bounce like a spring, "were ya dressin' up for a date?"

But it will work in this quest no matter how absurd it is.

Either that, or Midori will end the relationship (which to be honest would be preferable since I like Midori and don't want her character to turn into a doormat willing to take anything from Chiaki), leaving things open for Wendy.

"No..." she mumbles while yawnin', tryin' to glare harder at me through squinted eyes. And she forced my hand away. "What d'you want?"

"Oh, just to serve my Officio to the best of my ability..." I say in a dreamy voice, whirlin' around and danglin' my legs off the foot of the bed, "and maybe a little house on the hill near the ocean, with a servin' staff that doesn't mind bein' touched..." I wipe at the edge of my mouth with my sleeve.

Elly takes a bit to process what I told her, and then drones, "...Wonnerful. Hope you get it... Now why're you here?"

"Ihihihi, ya wanna know about the spiders and the bees, do ya?" I answer. She's frownin' in confusion. It's too darn cute.

"Tha's not-"

"Just kiddin'," I interrupt. It's time to get down to business, so I tell her, "I'm here to take ya to a party " She blinks slowly a couple times, then scowls at me.

"...Fuck off..." she growls, fallin' back down onto the bed and pullin' up the sheets.

"Come onnn," I playfully demand of her, crawlin' over to where she is. "Get up!"

She pulls the covers over her head. "Don' wanna..." she mumbles.

"Ya gotta!" I insist, pullin' the covers away, "Warmaster's orders."

"Don't ya like parties?" I ask, genuinely curious.

She turns her head to speak - well, grumble - clearly, sayin', "Too noisy..." before coverin' her head with another pillow. "Now get outta my room..."

Normally, I'd leave it at that - don't wanna overstay my welcome here - but orders are orders. So I tear the pillow out of her hands and shout, "Eleanor Abbot Slam, if ya don't get outta bed on the count'a three, I'm draggin' ya there myself!"

"...Go away..." she says quietly.

Nothin' for it, then. "One... Two... Three-"

Elly rolls over, fallin' onto the floor and cursin'. "Fuck!" she shouts, strugglin' to sit up one-armed. She's glarin' at me, and snarls, "Fine! I'm up! Let's get this over with."

While she's pullin' herself to her feet, I remind her, "Ya can't go in yer pajamas, hon."

...She sure is glowerin' a lot today. Still scowlin' as she transforms into costume. That seems to have cured the bed-head, if nothin' else. After she's slotted in her arm with a -click-, she's already marchin' out the door. Trailin' after her, I reach down and gather up some webbin', and...

"Hey! What the hell are you doing?" she screeches in alarm.

"I'm afraid that yer reaction earlier was a little too slow," I chide her, havin' her firmly trapped in my little mesh. Pullin' her behind me, she looks like a kid bein' dragged on a blanket. Not lettin' her use that golden gauntlet to claw at the ground, though, so I give a little tug -here- and... Snared the arm! And she doesn't look too happy about it.

"Lemme go, you crazy pervert!" she screams, wrestlin' with it and gettin' stuck like a fly. "Get this thing off!"

"Ihihihi, already got off before I got here!" I happily inform Elly, elicitin' a disgusted groan from her. "And had a quickie with that cutie pie with the rabbit ears." I think back on it and shiver a little. "Ya wouldn't believe what she can do with her-"

"Shut up and let me go!" she interrupts. How rude of her to do that~.

"Only if I can hold yer hand the rest of the way to keep ya from runnin' off," I taunt back.

"Fuck you!" she spits. "Stop treating me like a child!"

"No thanks~!" I cheerily reply, addin', "And I'll consider ya a proper adult when ya get yer first kiss."

I turn back to look at her, and... Ah, there it is. She's blushin' an adorable shade of pink right now. "Ihihihi, yer gonna be a real heartbreaker when ya grow up, Elly~. But for now just let big sis Suzi take care of ya."

Well she seems to be in pretty high spirits, all things considered. I guess that's enough enough toyin' with her for now. Don't want to tease her too much.

"Warmaster!" I exclaim, lettin' the net dissolve away before standin' up straight and salutin'.

The Warmaster is the first of the bemused partygoers to respond. "Miss Berry," she asks, "why is Miss Slam restrained?"

"Ya told me I had to bring her here, but she wasn't cooperatin'," I explained.

"And you explained to her attendance was mandatory?"

"Yes, ma'am!"

"You couldn't lead her here by hand?"

"She wouldn't let me!"

"Did you tell her there was a party?"

"Yes, ma'am!"

"With food? Cake? Ice cream?"

Ah. Whoops.

"No, ma'am, I did not."

"You should have done that first," the Warmaster chides. As an afterthought, she tells me, "at ease." I drop the salute and turn to look at Elly...

Holy cow, her eyes are sparklin'.

"Cake and ice cream?" Elly pipes up, turnin' to look at me, her face full of hope, "there's cake and ice cream?"

I pat her on the head and she doesn't even flinch. "That's right, Elly," I inform her. "Everybody was just waitin' on us."

"What are ya apologizin' for?!" I ask incredulously.

"Because I made everyone wait for cake and ice cream..." she responds, hands behind her back, "I know how much I like cake and ice cream, so makin' people have to wait for it..." She looks to the room at large and says just a little louder, "'m sorry."

"Don't apologize," instructs Madge, ever the order-giver. "Indulge yourself." She certainly is; she may be usin' a teacup and saucer, but I can smell the bourbon from over here.

"Aye! Welcome t' the party, Slam!" cheers our jolly old Roger, Miss Cress, a half-empty bottle of rum already in her hand. Oh, she's lookin' at me now. "And it looks as though ye already found yourself a fine lass, too."

"Oh, ya flatterer~," I titter, battin' my eyes. This makes her laugh. Elly's givin' us both odd looks as Kai catches her breath. "Now ye just need a few swigs o' rum and-"

"Miss Cress," Madge interrupts, givin' her a smile and a glare, "I believe Miss Slam is not old enough for alcohol." This makes the poor Eversor frown.

"Arr, ye don't like fightin', ye don't like killin', and ye don't like rum?" grumbles Miss Cress, takin' a swig from her own bottle before pointin' a claw at Elly. "If ye were any less a person, I'd make ye walk th' plank!"

"In any case, do not mind us," Madge says with her trademark smile. "Treat us like we're not even here."

"Hah, like th' Unseen Queen needs help w' that!" jeers Miss Cress, earnin' herself an elbow in the ribs from Madge. Doesn't stop her from laughin'. Silly bugger.

Lookin' back at Elly, she's a bit taken aback. Tryin' to make her mouth form words that won't come, until she manages to ask, "...Why?"

The Warmaster smiles warmly at her, sayin', "because you passed initiation, of course." Hah, the Warmaster's tail's waggin'! She's really pleased with herself, isn't she? "We asked Miss Cooldown what you liked, and made preparations just minutes after you did so." Elly's still strugglin' with words at this point. The Warmaster puts her hands on Elly's shoulders, talkin' real gentle. "I know it is a bit much to take in at once. Think of it as us making amends for not offering you a proper welcome when you first arrived."

Looks like Blue's already stuffin' her face now that the guest of honor's here. "So she's the one who knocked the smug out of Milly Moneybags?" she asks after swallowin' a mouthful of corndog. The kid doesn't seem to recognize her, but she's probably never met her before.

Elly asks the Warmaster, "...Who is she?" while pointin' at Blue. Sure, act like I'm not even here.

Miss Russ leads her away from me, motionin' with her head to move back. I guess she wants to do this part herself. "This is Miss Contra," the Warmaster responds, "our Vindicare Rank Leader."

"Hello!" greets the redhead, makin' a smart and snappy salute after puttin' down her meal, and says, "Vindicare Rank Leader Belinda Contra here! But Blue's fine. Bel is preferred, really."

Gesturin' back toward the other two, the Warmaster continues introductions, sayin', "And I believe you've met Miss Cress and Miss Shine."

Cress is already givin' her cheeky two-fingered salute. "Aye!" she exclaims, standin' up straight, "actin' Eversor Rank Leader Cress, reportin'!" Even her tail seems to be at attention here.

"Callidus Rank Leader Ethelinda Joyce Shine," states Madge, already at attention. "'Madge' is fine, thank you."

"Miss Winters would be here to represent our Culexus," the Warmaster explains, drawin' Elly's attention back to her, "but she is indisposed at the moment."

Elly frowns with concern. There's no way they've met. Especially without me knowin'. But she still asks, "...Is she okay?"

The Warmaster reassures her, statin' confidently, "she will be fine, I'm certain of it." Which is probably true.

That seems good enough for Elly, and she nods in acknowledgement. "But why are so many important people here?" she inquires, lookin' around again. I give her another little wave, but the Warmaster shakes her head at me, so I put my hand down.

Smilin' brilliantly, the Warmaster lays it out for Elly by tellin' her, "because you're our special guest, of course!"

"...All of this for me..." Elly murmurs, takin' a moment to process it. She's a little red-faced right now. "Thank you..."

Geez, she almost looks like she's gonna hug Miss Russ at this point. Oh well, don't mind me, I don't need an introduction anyway.

Ah well, Elly seems happy enough.

It's more complex than that.

Wendy is part of a past we've forgotten. As convienient as it would be to just brush that off, and say it never happened, we owe her better than that, just as we would owe Midori more than that if it was to happen to her,

Reluctantly, I leave the kid alone with the Warmaster. Probably doesn't need me hoverin' over her shoulder anyway. Miss Russ knows what she's doin'.

Lookin' around the room, I find Miss Cress and Blue talkin' enthusiastically about somethin'. Judgin' by Miss Cress's violent gesticulations, and goin' by Blue's fascinated look, it's probably not somethin' I want a part of. The buffet itself looks temptin', but I'm not real hungry or thirsty. Already ate out before I got here.

So I make to stand next to Madge, and she pointedly takes a step away from me, smile falterin' a bit. Such a killjoy.

"Not sure why our Warmaster wanted me to fetch Elly if she was just gonna shoo me away," I say, foldin' my arms behind my head and leanin' against the wall.

Madge takes a sip of bourbon and shakes her head. "Search me," she responds, then adds, "please do not actually try to search me." Such a killjoy.

"She's just tryin' to get in good with the Americans, ain't she?" I query, bouncin' on my heels and tiptoes. Madge doesn't seem to like it, but she should know by now I'm not one for sittin' still.

After sighin', Her Majesty royally informs me, "that was my guess, yes." Then she chuckles, addin', "Well, Blue jumped at the opportunity for free food." That sounds about right. That's the only reason I can think of for all of these preparations, and for all the top brass of the Sixth bein' here. Well, not all the top brass. Ashford wouldn't have anythin' to do with somethin' so frivolous, but the Equerry...

"Where's Grumpy?" I inquire.

"Miss Morkai?" clarifies Madge, to which I nod my head. "She is still busy with the paperwork that Miss Slam used to do. I do not believe bringing her is a good idea."

Uh oh. "She's not gonna try and antagonize Elly, is she?" I venture, visibly cringing. Elly's in real trouble if Grumpy's after her.

Madge shakes her head. "The Warmaster would not allow it, and Miss Morkai knows it," she says, takin' another sip.

[7/10]

Elly looks pretty content right now. She's smilin', for one, and seems to be enjoyin' the burgers. Russ is just standin' near her, talkin' about her future and how to prepare for it.

It's nice for the kid, and yet...

"It's gonna be real hard for Elly from here on out..." I say at last, smilin' grimly.

Madge stares intently at her teacup. "Personally, I do not believe Miss Slam can handle it," she says after a moment. "She is simply too soft, and the Warmaster doesn't want to change that about her. Her victory was simply a fluke."

"The Warmaster usually ain't wrong, though," I counter.

"True. I do not want to see her fail, either," Madge says, takin' another sip from her posh teacup. "And not just because it'd mean more work for me."

"I'm still gonna keep an eye on her when I can," I declare. I think Madge flinched at that, which got me a bit curious. "What're you gonna do?" I ask her.

"I'm going to do my job as best as I can," she says coolly. "If it involves her somehow, that is entirely coincidental."

I grin at her, tauntin', "Ya sure talk like ya got a stick up yer arse when the Warmaster's in the room, don't ya?"

Madge's smile twists into a smirk. "Like you would find a stick up your ass objectionable," she retorts.

"Ihihihi, touché," I respond, smilin' widely. That one was actually pretty good.

Looks like they're bringin' out the cake now. It's a big chocolate one, with cherries on it. Should be enough to feed all of us. Well, maybe not Blue, but if she eats Elly's cake before the kid has had her fill, I'm gonna-

"Miss Berry?" Madge calls my name suddenly out of the blue. I turn to look at her, and... Well, she's smilin', but her eyes are hardened. She looks serious. "What did you think of Miss Hesselius?"

"Ah, the one you set me up with?" I ask. She nods, and I start smilin' again. "She's a great gal. I can see why the other folks are a bit creeped out by her, but I don't mind her company at all." I giggle a little, thinkin' back on the meetin'. "Plus she's got this thing where she-"

"She's looking forward to seeing you again," Madge interrupts. "Should I ask my contact to bring her along during the conference?" Ah. So that's what it's about.

"I'm sure she is," I mumble, lookin' at the floor. "But I'm really not the type to commit, y'know? You understand that, right?" I hear Madge takin' a long drink before she sets the cup and saucer down on a nearby table.

"I ssssee."

Uh oh, she's very, very angry now. I look back at her and her expression is nothin' more than a smile and two eyes showin' how much restraint goes into her not immediately makin' my life hell on earth.

"I mean, I'm just not ready for that kind of a relationship," I try to explain, bringin' my hands up defensively. She doesn't seem to buy it. I sigh a bit, tryin' to be reasonable and tell her, "I really do like her - in fact I really do like her a lot. I might even love her, but-"

"But WHAT?" Madge hisses, her normally cool and collected voice now venomous and spiteful. The smile only makes it worse. "You've been 'not ready for a relationship' for, what, five yearsss? Sssix?" She shakes her head at me. "I know you missssss your dear friend, but you've had time enough to bed everything that didn't refussse you, and you're SSSTILL not over her?!"

I want to tell her yes, that it's okay, that I'll sweep that lady from the Second off her feet and make her the happiest gal in the world. And yet...

"I'm real sorry, but... I, I just can't."

Madge continues glarin' at me like she wants me dead, moreso than normal, and then quietly asks, "then what should I tell her?"

I shake my head at her. "I'll tell her," I volunteer. "No need to burden yerself. It's the least I can do."

Just as Madge is about to lay into me some more, the Warmaster claps her hands and motions for both of us to come forward. "We'll talk more about thissss later," Madge growls, walkin' over to where everyone is gathered. Such a killjoy.

I follow a little bit behind her, curious as to what could possibly be-

Oh. Oh, wow. I guess it's a bit late, considerin' it actually happened a bit more than a month ago, but...

Elly's just standin' there gapin'. I can't blame her, I wasn't told about this part either. But I really should have expected somethin' like that from Miss Russ.

"Happy Birthday, Eleanor," the Warmaster says softly, before leadin' us in song.

...Yeah, it's gonna be tough for Elly. But I think I can afford to put off worrying about the future until tomorrow.

You seriously believe Wendy would have vanished from the quest just because we refused the contract?

Besides, its mostly meaningless since there was never a chance of that happening, since it was pretty clear that contract = harem, and there was very little chance of that losing.

Truthfully, I have grown to dislike Wendy due to the constant watermelon stuff. I think I probably would have found her an interesting character otherwise. The idea of a past GF that has to struggle with the idea that Chiaki has no memory of her at all is tragic actually.

But the constant "threesome! threesome! threesome!" thing has totally ruined her. Thats what comes to mind first when I think of Wendy now, not anything more interesting.

Pity.

Clarifying something here: Chiaki would be working with Wendy at least through the Prophet business either. The contract just makes her more available for now and gives Chiaki somewhat more control over where her energy is directed. Yes, it's probably the right choice for Wendy or watermelon endings, but it wouldn't have removed her, and there would probably be a future opportunity to sign her again. Likewise, there'll be an opportunity to break the contract off, as well as telling her to leave at any time.

That said, yes, we do already have potential scenarios for if Chiaki either ignores her entirely or tells her to fuck off, and no, they do not end in horrible yandere death by default. I mean, maybe don't start pooping in her cornflakes or anything. You can reject someone and tell them honestly that being around is making it harder for the both of you without shitting on them, after all.

Oh no question! Like I said, Wendy had the potential to be really interesting and awesome.

But thanks to the watermelon stuff, my first thought when she is mentioned is no longer her as a unique character with a unique backstory and so on.

Its (and I am sorry for being crude here) that she is the fucktoy that Chiaki is supposed to get on with for the sake of lewdness. The comments of players in this thread only emphasized that.

Which to be honest sucks for me. Because I think there would have been loads of potential with Wendy. But since every vote ends up with the majority voting with the goal of finding a way of getting Chiaki into her panties, rather than actually trying to get to know her, its hard for me to see it differently.

It might be that I read the writeups late, which is why my viewpoing was left skewed. I dunno.

Yes, precisely. It's implying all the Homu-hating posts are Homura hating on herself.

If we're talking about the ass-groping dream then it was Decu trying to make things lighter than the other Wendy dreams had been, but it was still a lot of ass-groping.

If it was the meeting, then I don't actually object to the portraits used there, I think they were stylish even if she was kind of a titty monster in them.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE FALL OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 08/16/14(Sat)10:05:15 No.34180469

Well, now that you've breached the subject of threesomes, you're not sure if you want to talk about it anymore - not with Sayaka and Kyoko reacting like some sort of third rate slapstick comedy duo. Honestly, you're not even sure why you wanted to talk about it in the first place, besides wondering if it was indeed a feasible way to deal with Midori and Wendy at the same time.

...Well, no, not in THAT way. That never really came to mind the first time. You just wanted to make sure neither of them felt neglected or left out or forgotten, because no one deserves that, especially from someone like you. You didn't even think about...the both of them in your bed, half-clothed, pulling you into a world of softness and warmth, where neither paperwork nor Pinky existed.

...You're not Kharn, dammit. You're not. This is just you trying to do what's right.

At least you hope so.

>> ☐ Deculture 08/16/14(Sat)10:06:56 No.34180485

>>34180469

Just as you make to drop the subject and maybe talk about something less...controversial, though...

+ What are you doing, Nameless One? You have an opportunity here. + Dildoes' icy voice cuts right through your shame and embarrassment. + A rare one that you won't have again for quite some more time. +

What? What opportunity? What the hell is she talking about?

+ FUCK. WITH. THEIR. HEADS. + Murderface sniggers, the sound akin to a rusty blunt saw being slowly dragged to and fro across fresh, bleeding, meaty bone. + DO. IT. JUST. THIS. ONCE. +

+ I'm...I'm not sure I understand... + Braids ventures hesitantly, barely audible over the sound of the other two snickering together. + Matsuda-san? What are they talking about? + She pauses for a moment, before speaking again. +...It's something naughty, isn't it? Matsuda-san, you know Sayaka-san doesn't really like it when--+

+ Oh, be silent and let us have our bit of amusement! + Dildoes snaps. + You, Nameless One. You do know what to do, don't you? +

...Yeah. Yeah, you do. And...yeah, you have to agree.

You can't possibly pass this up.

+ Then take it. It's yours. + Dildoes cackles.

"Well?" Sayaka snaps. "I'm waiting, Murderface! Don't leave us all hanging, here--"

"Can I have one with you and Kyoko?"

Your delivery is perfect. Straight face, level voice, each word uttered with crystal clarity. Your eyes boring right into Sayaka's ice-blue own in an unblinking, honest stare.

All color immediately drains from your Equerry's countenance, leaving her face pale as she freezes in shock. Her eyes opened wide enough that her irises seem to shrink into mere dots. Her jaw drops - and what comes forth is a series of gurgling, hacking sounds - incomplete words stuck at the harsh consonants. "K-kh...M-Murderface, y-you--"

[1/2]

>>34180485

"Murderface, I don't...um...." There's a hesitant, tearful voice behind you, and you shift on your bar stool to look at your best friend - and in stark constrast to Sayaka, Kyoko is...well, she's gone as red as her hair, gazing down at her thumbs as she twiddles them. Her one eye avoiding your gaze. "I-it's...it ain't like I don't like you or anything, b-but I think..always thought of ya as a really, really good friend, almost like a little brother--"

A little brother? That's...that's how Kyoko sees you? You keep your face carefully impassive as two of the three stooges begin to hoot and cackle in the back of your mind, laughing uproariously.

"I just...if, if ya really want to, um...I just think it's really a bit too sudden..."

Kyoko looks up at you now, blushing even more, her one eye glistening with unshed tears. Looking like a blushing virgin bride about to be sacrificed to a wrathful lust god.

What do you do?

[]...Just kidding.
[]'Little brother'?
[] Immediately move on before things get too awkward too fast. Talk about if it's applicable for your situation with Midori and Wendy.

You reach out with a hand, and carefully pat your blushing best friend on her bare shoulder. The sudden physical contact making her stiffen, but otherwise she keeps her gaze locked with yours. "Y-yeah? What is it, Murderface...?" Kyoko asks in the smallest, most nervous voice you've ever heard the Eversor speak in. "...What?"

Leaning in close, still keeping a grip on her shoulder, you murmur your response - but loud enough so that the cape-wearing frozen statue behind you could hear it too.

"...I was just kidding."

You barely have enough time to enjoy Kyoko's expression of absolute shock and embarrassment before a cold hand clamps down on YOUR shoulder with the grip of death itself. Each finger as cold as ice, digging into your flesh like claws, even through the silk glove material covering each one.

"HA. HA. HA." A monster growls in your ear, the sound leopard-wet and angry. "VERY. FUCKING. FUNNY, MURDERFACE."

You got your justly-deserved desserts moments after that, in the form of Sayaka pulling you off your stool, dropping you to the floor like a sack of bricks, and then giving that sack of bricks a good, rousing kicking. Granted, it wasn't all that painful - Sayaka missed half the time, way too angry to aim properly or kick properly, and you were able to shield your head and face from any inopportune ones - but even then, as you were being subjected to something no Warmaster should ever have to tolerate from their subordinates, you could hear the two spirits inside your Desert Eagle laughing harder and louder than ever before. Their laughter so infectious that you found yourself laughing as well, your shoulders shaking in time with your silent giggling.

It spread to your own tormentor as well, her kicks stopping for her to collapse against the bar, also laughing in between gasps for breath. Kyoko joined in after a while, seemingly having recovered from the shock of your punchline and now seeing the hilarity of the situation.

Such as it is, anyway.

After a few more half-hearted kicks (and a bit of cheeky poking with the butt of a manifested spear) all three of you got back to your seats at the bar. The finished ramen bowls disposed of, and your two subordinates surprisingly agreeing to sharing a post-meal drink with you. Charles was good enough to get the two of them glasses without you asking, even pouring Kyoko a tall shot of iced strawberry milk when she decided that Kong wasn't for her.

"...No, seriously. What'd you bring up threesomes for?" Sayaka had asked after all of you had more or less settled down, nursing her half-full glass of Kong. "Wait, don't tell me. You want to do one with Wendy and Midori, right? You want to try that with both of them, is that it?"

How do you respond?

Reminder from Yesterday.

Anyway, just so we are clear on this:

Chiaki is clearly not good relationships.
Chiaki is new to relationships.
Chiaki has already problems with handling Midori, just because she fucked Midori didn't let those issues Chiaki and Midori have magically vanish.

So, now that we are clear on the facts, there are actually people in this thread who believe that Chiaki , who has no idea about Relationships and already has her hands full with Midori, should have a POLYGAMOUS relationship with Wendy and Midori.

Now, knowing all this, my question is: ARE YOU PEOPLE PANTS ON HEAD RETARDED?
Trying to go for both will leave us none.

It's probably worth reiterating that the character our protagonist is based on is infamous for coddling an otherwise competent person into uselessness out of a desire to keep her safe, though that ultimately went in a different direction entirely.

This anon is right.

Basically, right after we got from Siberia, we sent her on her own mission with Kyouko to show that we trusted her being capable.

That worked out fine.

What's happened with her since then?

A date, sex, and then insiting on coming with us for the meeting.

It's all very in character for Midori, but the big problem is that we don't see her being capable on screen.

So people only remember the scenes in which she has appeared (date, sex, insisting) and forget everything else about the character.

I think part of the problem is that most of the missions we've had are pretty high on the difficulty scale. Midori's not exactly a rookie, but she's nowhere near as experienced as Sayaka/Kyoko/Wendy are. Siberia showed that she has a lot of potential, it just needs to be grown so that she doesn't pull another "get fucked".

There was some thought to assigning her to some missions to give her that experience, but progression in MGNQ is fairly slow. Even without the relationship stuff that eats up a lot of the threads, it's going to take a loooong time to get to that point.

Of course, there are exceptions like the Walpurgisnacht flashback, with some exceedingly interesting world building and a chance for the players to seriously fuck things up in a manner that isn't totally retarded and out of character.

I'm not complaining. Just pointing out a fact: If you have multiple participants talk over Chiaki, that means anon has no input. If the players have no input, then Decu might as well write a story rather than a quest.

Basically, the slower pace is because of showcasing different characters and letting anon have their say too.

It's actually pretty amazing how we managed not to think with our genitalia with Iori, even when she started plastering "FUCK ME" signs all over. Part of that was not wanting to take advantage of a normie rape victim, though another part was certainly just some players having low bitch tolerance, but I still find it impressive.

After a few more threads of this, we will have one thread where the ceremony will be rushed through, and then its time for a long Mami flashback filled with threesomes and sex (with lots of Wendy/Mami included I am sure).

The fact that she managed to dodge becoming Anon's waif actually seems to have made her a more interesting character. Of course, the ironic thing is, the fact that makes her an interesting character also keeps her out of the quest a fair bit.

Why I'm desperately waiting for the next Minase Iori writeup.

Actually, I think I was much more of a Wendy fan before she became anon's waifu, the old write-ups had a kind of unique, darkish/noir feel that made me really like the character.

Clearly, anon ruins everything that is in extended contact with it.

You take a sip of your glass of whisky - the first of only two that Sayaka had allowed you to enjoy before your ratification - and nod at her. That's pretty much why you brought it up, yeah. Do either of them think it's a good idea, that sort of thing? You'd like to ask someone who's obviously been in a relationship for so long, see what they thought about it.

Both your Equerry and your best friend glance at each other, their eyes meeting past you - and it's here that you see Kyoko shrug at the same time that Sayaka raises her eyebrows. Something unspoken passing between them just by those looks alone. ...The pang of jealousy comes at you out of nowhere, and you blink at yourself - slightly surprised and even taken aback for even feeling that way.

"...It's...not a bad idea. We think so, at least, considering your situation, Murderface." Sayaka nods after a full moment of pensive silence, taking a sip of her own glass of Kong. "It's not a good idea, but not a bad one as far as ideas go. Personally, I think...if it's Wendy and Midori, I think it could work." She takes another sip of her drink, longer and deeper, until only the thinnest layer of Kong is covering the bottom of the glass. "But not right now. Nowhere near the right time for you to even start thinking about it."

...Really?

"Yeah, I mean...there's still friction between 'em, yeah?" Kyoko chimes in behind you, the red-haired Eversor sporting an impressive milk mustache. "If you wanna get the both of them, ya gotta wait until they're...buddies or somethin'! Or at least, they're okay with each other first!"

"Since you signed Wendy on with that Mercenary contract, I think you'll have an easy time making that happen." Sayaka pours herself another shot, before swirling the amber liquid around her glass.

"Get them working together. As much as you can, make sure that neither of them has authority over the other - make them equal, because they're going to use whatever rank they've got to torture the other. And you don't want that."

You frown at this. But isn't that a bit dangerous? Having them work together--

"I know, it sounds a bit stupid, right? Trust me on this, though. The best way to get two people to resolve their differences is to have them work together as equals. 'Specially in our line of work, teamwork's important, no matter what rank you are." The blue-haired Eversor knocks her drink back, draining it in one gulp and then slamming her glass on the counter. "Seen it happen MANY times on the field, I guarantee it. Either they end up the best of friends, or they end up being able to tolerate each other in the same room."

...Huh. Well. That's...that's pretty much what Mami said, back at your office.

"Yeah?" Sayaka grins here, suddenly proud. "Well, there you go. Mami thinks it's a good idea, too. That should be enough, right?"

It's here that Kyoko nudges your side. "And if you want any more convincin', ya only need to look at both you and Sayaka, Murderface! Hahaha!"

"W-what?" The blue-haired Eversor's eyes widen again as she stutters, her cheeks flushing pink. "C-Christ, no, Kyoko, don't be stupid." She scoffs here, barking out a laugh that sounds completely and utterly forced. "I still hate Murderface's guts. Always have and always will."

...Heh. Well, the feeling's mutual, you remark as you finally drain your glass. Seemingly relieved that you're not pushing the subject, Sayaka pours you a refill.

It was voted on a while back. One option was a killer robot doing what killer robots do.

The other option was a young Mami doing lots of lewd things and plenty of threesomes.

I will give you one guess which won. Heres a hint, forget about shooting people.

However Wendy was in bondage. Mami had secretly tied her with her ribbons to stop Wendy from misbehaving.

Presumably it would be rape if you lacked consent, but ok otherwise. If Kyoko wants Sayaka to lick her soulgem then there is no issue.

With Chiaki it was rapish, but in her defense she had no clue it would happen the time she did it, she just wanted the whiskey or something (its been a while since that scene).

Its actually funny how small things can spiral out. I wonder what would have happened to the whole story if the anon who came up with the idea to lick the soulgem had not been there that day.

You don't have anything else to talk about, so you merely raise your glass and clink them against Sayaka's and Kyoko's. Choosing to spend the rest of the time you have left before being officially declared as Warmaster by quietly enjoying a drink or two with your friends.

Something tells you, though, that after this day is done - the chances of having times like these won't come as easily as they do now.

In any case, your little break ends some time after your second drink, with you and Kyoko cheerfully herding your slightly-buzzed self back to your Office. You remember asking them how the fuck they're able to walk straight at all, much less not stumble along like you do, seeing as they drank the rest of the bottle dry while you quietly lamented your empty glass. Their answer was as infuriating as being placed on a two-drink limit on a ten-bottle-MINIMUM day: Eversor physiology allowed them to get rid of alcohol in their bloodstream much more quickly. If they wanted to. Or some shit like that.

The rest of the day after that - at least, the part before your actual ratification - is spent being groomed for it by none other than Mami herself, with Kyoko and Sayaka assisting. Memories of being dragged underneath a shower and being forced to undergo an entire month's worth of proper hygiene flashes in front of you - but thankfully you've been keeping up on that front, so there's not a lot for them to shake their heads in disapproval at.

You did have to soak in your bathroom tub for half an hour while Mami fastidiously washed your hair, her blouse sleeves rolled up as she worked the entire length into a careful lather, before attending to the rest of you afterwards. Kyoko and Sayaka meanwhile worked on polishing your greatcoat and cap - namely all the metal bits involved with the careful application of metal polish and a lot of cloth.

There was also some last-minute sewing to do, apparently, with the stitching in one of the sleeves about to give out.

In the middle of it, you gave in to the concern welling up inside you. Where was Midori? She should be there with you, at least. She wouldn't miss something like this.

Mami had merely smiled then, and told you to relax. Everything, she reassured you, was being taken care of. She saw to it personally.

You nodded after that, and let her continue. It's...Mami after all. If Mami's handled it, then it's good as done. It's ironclad.

...Anyway. didn't know how it could take so long, to get ready for your own Ratification, but when you're finally ushered out of your Office smelling like soap and your entire gear polished until they're sparkling, night had already fallen, and your ratification mere moments away from happening. The entire building itself seemed deserted as you made your way to the General Assembly Hall - and Mami had explained that this would be normal, as everyone would probably be at the hall itself, to attend what could be the most important event in the Officio since its inception. ...Not counting the security elements locking the building down, of course, in case Oriko got it into her head to try anything NOW.

It's when you finally come to the doors leading to the hall itself - the large double doors barely able to keep in the sound of your ENTIRE OFFICIO inside, waiting for you - that you hear a voice you haven't heard for most of the day, except that one time when it was used to breathlessly whisper an apology.

"Sempai!"

You turn to look at its source - and see Midori running towards you, wearing something you've never seen her wear before.

It's a formal number, nothing like the dress she wore during your date - but still clung to her form appreciatively, highlighting it, flattering it, while giving her an air of sharply-dressed professionality. A blouse-blazer affair, to be sure, with a skirt. Almost matching what Mami wore nowadays instead of her Magical Girl costume, but decidedly more ornate.

Her hair is changed too, but only slightly: the long hair that used to be tied haphazardly back with a ribbon now delicately styled into one thick braid, tied softly at the end with her usual yellow ribbon.

There's also a golden pin on her lapel with the IX roman numeral etched over an eagle with its wings spread and its claws gripping a dagger - the Officio's number, with the official symbol of the Callidus Rank. The badge proclaiming her as an official Callidus of the Ninth.

The entire effect itself stuns you briefly, making you wonder if it wasn't Midori at all, and simply an escort Mami provided you at the last minute. It must have shown in your face, as the girl blinks at you, before reaching over and taking your hand.

"Sempai? It's me, Midori!" She giggles, shaking her head at your agape mouth. "Come on, you'll be late for your ratification!" She pulls you towards the doors. "Miss Mami and the rest are waiting inside! ...Sorry I wasn't able to join you earlier, I had to get ready myself!"

...Yeah. Yeah, okay. She doesn't need to pull too hard, you tell her. They're right there, you're not going to be late.

"I know, I'm just..." Midori turns to look at you, flashing you another nervous smile. "It's...it's the first time I'm going to attend one like this, and...and my sempai's the one they're ratifying as Warmaster! It's like a dream!"

Or a nightmare, you think, keeping it to yourself. You're not really sure the position is all it's cracked up to be, but whatever. You're here, you've got the coat and the hat and the experience with being a watch-wearing dildo. Might as well go the entire way.

"Official escort's here! Don't go in just yet!" You hear clanking noises coming from behind you - and you turn again to see Sayaka and Kyoko running to catch up, each of them wearing uniforms of a sort. ...Well, not just uniforms, but actual metal armor. Gauntlets and greaves, along with what looks like crimson capes emblazoned with the emblem of the Ninth, and this time on top of an Eagle grasping a sword and a shield. "Sorry, sorry, fucking armor took AGES to put on, holy shit." Sayaka shakes her head as both her and Kyoko catch their breaths.

...Escorts? What the hell for? It's just your ratification--

"It's OFFICIAL, Murderface." Your Equerry sighs. "Ceremonies are like that. It's all got to be done proper, else it looks like we're just mucking about." She nods to Kyoko, who takes up her position behind Midori - and she's carrying her golden spear now, the one Misaka made for her. It's got a fucking tassel tied to it. A TASSEL.

"Awesome, huh?" Kyoko grins, catching your gaze. "It's like almost genuine horsehair! ...I think!"

Yeah. Awesome.

"Alright, everything's ready!" Sayaka runs back towards you after briefly opening the doors a crack and murmuring something to someone behind it. "Murderface, get your game face on, it's time to be promoted to a level of incompetency." She grins at you here, and you have a sneaking suspicion that she's enjoying this. More than you are, at least.

You'll show her, you tell her. You'll show everyone that you'll be good at this Warmaster thing. You'll rock everyone's faces off.

...Well, maybe not with the paperwork thing, because fuck paperwork. Everything else, though? You'll be good at. Much better than Kharn ever managed, even with Malal.

"Do it, then. Make us eat our words." Your Equerry reaches out with a gauntleted hand to adjust your cap. "You're playing in the big leagues now, Murderface. Don't embarrass us."

You'll do your best.

"Good enough for me." Sayaka grins again, before squaring her shoulders - and then walking stiffly forward, steadying her sheathed sword at her hip with one hand, while pushing the doors open with her free one.

"OFFICERS AND MEMBERS OF THE NINTH OFFICIO ASSASSINORUM!" You hear Sayaka bellow into the hall - and your eyes go wide as the doors swing open, revealing not only nearly two thousand Magical Girls in attendance, but what also looks like important people in suits. Other Magical girls from other Officios, perhaps sent here for official purposes. ...Wendy, at the corner, along with her maids.

"YOUR WARMASTER, CHIAKI MATSUDA, IS HERE!"

And in the deafening applause, in the roaring cheer...

The Iron Circle
Chapter III: Mechanicus

Few had the fortune to say, without exaggeration, that they were living their dream. In those first minutes, standing there in the metal bowels of the Olympia, walking amongst the forge-machines that fashioned bodies of iron, Honoka Iwakura could have claimed such a feat.

She saw Magical Girls gathered around a projected blueprint, arguing fiercely over the merits and demerits of what appeared to be a tank cannon.

She saw Magical Girls overseeing performance tests, muttering to each other as they read data off of tablets, with another Magical Girl serving as the test subject.

She saw Magical Girls chatting animatedly with their friends as robotic repair arms performed maintenance on them, like a gaggle of teenagers at a salon relaxing as they were being groomed.

She saw the massive forge-heart of the Mechanicus. The cradle of what made Officio IV what it was, what made it so starkly, utterly different from nineteen of its fellows. What gave it its nickname so often repeated by outsiders: The Machines.

“Woah! Watch it, short stuff!”

A hulk of a machine almost ran Honoka over from behind. Distracted, the red-haired Vindicare got out of the way only at the last second, tripping over her own feet.

Barbara turned and made her way over to Honoka. “Oh dear,” she said, hauling the prone Vindicare to her feet—which she did with disturbing ease, noted Honoka, who was still wearing her weighty exoskeleton. “Are you alright, Miss Iwakura? I'm afraid I have to ask you to be on watch while we are here in the Manufactorum; it is always busy, and for some of the larger girls, human-sized objects are dangerously easy to trample underfoot.”

Honoka continued to gaze at the retreating hulk. It was...simply huge, there was no other way to describe it. Some fourteen feet tall, vaguely humanoid with a pair of arms and legs, an egg-shaped armored torso. Its trunk-like arms looked as if they could tear an APC open like a soda can, and every one of its thunderous steps reverberated through Honoka's bones.

“What...what was that?” breathed Honoka, distractedly dusting herself off. “That was a Magical Girl, right?” She paused. “Come to think of it, if that's a Magical Girl...do you use different sets of chassis? There's the ones that look mostly like regular humans, the big ones, and then that -really- big one.”

“Ironforms.” This time, it was the Warmaster who spoke. “Every Magical Girl in the Fourth has two; Light, and Heavy. Light, for everyday casual use; they're the ones that look mostly human. Every Girl gets to customize her own Light chassis.” Petra gestured at Barbara's slim form.

“We've got a couple variants off of the Lights, too, for specialty jobs that don't need much armor or heavy weapons. Like Barbara's: optimized for diplomacy and human social interactions.”

“And the others?” asked Honoka as the trio wove their way pack of repair drones.

“The big one that almost squished you?” said Petra. “Dreadnoughts. And the medium-sized ones are called—”

The Ironform before her was much like Gandhari's: thick torso, wide at the shoulders and tapering at the hip; a helmet-shaped head nestled in the torso's center; arms that ended in an entire tool shed's worth of blades and saws, clamps and screwdrivers. As the figure turned towards Petra, however, the jagged mess of tools folded inward, like a flower's bloom in reverse, until sets of metal plates slid into place and formed a pair of silvered hands.

“Warsmith, Speaker,” she grunted, giving each of them a nod before turning to Honoka. “So this is the novitiate?” She extended a silver hand outwards and tapped a finger on Honoka's exoskeleton, each tap rocking the Vindicare like a punch. “Where'd you pick up a pile of scrap like this?”

“I made it myself,” said Honoka, her voice and gaze steady. “With minimal funding and a handful of low-grade tools, I might add.”

“Hmph. Excuses. Only a poor craftsman blames her tools.” Before Honoka could respond, however, she continued with a sigh. “But, I guess that's why you're here: to learn. The Warmsith tells me you wanted specifically to study with us in the Mechanicus, yeah? By the time I'm done with you, you'll be having cutting-edge tech coming out of your ears.”

Blinking, Honoka stared at the silver hand for a moment, then up at Fiona's helmet-face. As she expected, the iron visage was impassive.

“Honoka Iwakura, Ninth Officio Vindicare,” she said, taking Fiona's massive hand in hers.

Fiona pumped her hand once—which made Honoka feel like her arm was getting torn off—then ushered the trio towards a Heavy Ironform standing on a pedestal. Unlike Fiona's, this one had weapons where its arms should have been: a machine built for breaking things, rather than making things.

“Heavy Combat Ironform, Variant I, the 'Paladin'. Basic combat Ironform for Officio IV Vindicares, all newly inducted Vindicares start with this exact model,” grunted Fiona. She began rattling off specs: weapons, armor, auxiliary systems, the works. By the end of the five-minute lecture, Honoka caught herself salivating.

Fiona patted the burly Ironform, like a satisfied sculptor who had just finished her work. “If after a year you still want to stay with us, and with a bit of luck, you'll be inside one of these babies.” Then she jerked a thumb over her shoulder. “Alright, Killian, back to work.”

The Ironform purred into motion, like a statue suddenly coming to life. “Yes, Fabricator-General,” she said, nodding a greeting to Petra before plodding off.

'That...that could be me one day,' thought Honoka as she stared at the retreating Ironform. She looked down at her own hands: covered in dark padded leather, already slowing from the encroaching numbness of jet-lagged fatigue. So fleshy and bony and...so weak. So unlike the magnificent works of engineering she was surrounded by.

There was a bark of laughter as Fiona clapped a silver hand on Honoka's shoulder. “Ha! I think she's a little starstruck! That's good.” She turned her gaze down to Honoka, who barely came up to her chest. “The next twelve months aren't going to be easy—you'll need your memories of today to get you going through some of the things you'll be facing later. But that's not for a little while yet.” Then she turned to Petra.

Petra met her gaze. “The 'Terminator' armor?”

“Great minds,” said Fiona. If she had a mouth, she would have been grinning.

“Here it is,” said Fiona. She was standing in front of the largest suit of armor Honoka had ever seen, ten feet of armored destruction wearable by even an organic human being. “The Tactical Dreadnought 'Terminator' Armor System.”

The red-haired Vindicare gave a distracted nod as she ran her hand down the plasteel vambrace. “It's beautiful...” she muttered, as her eyes ran over the monster. A pair of eye lenses, each ruby-red and glaring like that of a remorseless iron god, gazed down at her from a helmet deeply inset into a metal hood. Wide pauldrons, placed at about eye level above the shoulders and with each plate paralell to the ground, made the suit seem even bigger than it otherwise looked. In one hand it carried what appeared to be a flamethrower: in the other, a fist the size of Honoka's torso.

“Isn't it?” laughed Fiona. She continued, “Given our Officio's policy of all Magical Girl personnel being ready for combat whenever possible, the Warsmith and I designed an armor system that could quickly and readily be donned by a Fourth Officio girl caught off-guard in her Light Ironform.”

Honoka raised an eyebrow. “An entire suit of armor just for that? I'm assuming it takes too long for someone to switch Ironforms, or something?”

Fiona nodded in response. “Good observation, novitiate. The whole process of changing from a Light to Heavy Ironform can take up to twenty minutes, not including start-up diagnostics and equipment checks, so the Warsmith figured that we needed a stopgap measure in case an attack on the Olympia were to occur and everyone was caught with their pants down. It's also more mobile; the 'Terminator' doesn't need extensive infrastructure for safely removing and re-implanting Soul Gems as our Ironforms do.”

“This one is our prototype 'Cataphract' Variant,” said Petra. “We also had an 'Indomitus' Variant prototype, with all the decals added though the software still had to be calibrated.”

“'Had'?” asked Honoka. “What happened to it?”

“That's the thing,” said Petra with a shrug. “It was locked down for storage and all containment and defensive measures were optimal...and one day, it simply wasn't there. No signs of break in—or at least any we could detect.” She leaned in closer to inspect a seam on the Terminator armor, and continued, “Irrational as it sounds, disappearing into thin air was the best explanation we could come up with.”

“...I see...” said Honoka, nonplussed.

“That was the one with all the winged skulls and tusks, right?” said Fiona. “Who did the decals on that one? Deltria? Hrm, she always did have a thing for that sort of stuff...well.” Fiona clapped her silver hands together, making a sharp clank. “That's all I've got for now, duty calls. Need to start prepping for a trip to the Second, got a shipment of 'Templar' armor to oversee.”

“Aye, Warsmith.” Fiona held up a hand in farewell. “Speaker, novitiate. No doubt I'll see you all again.” And with that she made her leave, though not before giving Honoka another sledgehammer-clap on the shoulder.

Before Fiona could get very far, however, a cry stopped her cold.

“WARSMITH! Warsmith, we have a situation.”

A group of girls dragged and shoved along one, not unlike a lynch mob and its victim. The dragged girl, her Light chassis painted red and silver, thrashed and bellowed curses and demands to be let go. Magical Girls in the vicinity began stepping back, murmuring, speculating.

One of the mob thrust Red-and-Silver forward. “We've got a saboteur in our ranks,” she hissed. Behind Petra, Barbara covered her mouth with her hand in dismay.

“Oh dear.”

The hall was silent, save for the commotion of the accused and the sounds of the background industry.

“You bitch! YOU FUCKING BITCH! Fucking let met go already—!”

“FUCK YOU!” A clank of metal-on-metal as Luka struck out, hitting one of her tormentors square in the stomach. The other girl let out a curse and raised a steel fist to smash Luka's face in.

Petra's voice was like a bell's, ringing clear over the din of the mob, cutting through the noise like a knife. The Warmaster rose a hand to call for silence, and at once the chamber fell silent.

“Fara,” said Petra, “some context, please.”

Like Luka, the girl named Fara was in a Light chassis. Hers had a green-on-red paint scheme, with a mass of metal on the back of her head done up to look like a hair bun. She had been the one ready to punch out the screaming, cursing Luka.

“Warsmith,” said Fara, “we were having a design contest for the new foot-joint actuator, and I got second place, Luka got first. Turns out that happened because our little contest winner here,” Fara punctuated her words with a kick to Luka's torso, “only won because she tried to sabotage her competitors' blueprints.”

Fara shook her head. “Not speculation, Warsmith. Exloading evidence package to the Noosphere...now.”

As one, every Magical Girl in the chamber save Honoka turned away, to look at the floor or the ceiling or a wall, some with a finger pressed to their ear as though trying to listen intently on an earbud. Barbara noticed Honoka's confusion and handed her a tablet.

A few swipes and presses of the touchpad, and Honoka was seeing what the Fourth was seeing: video feeds, access logs into the system database, sworn statements from witnesses and their electronic signatures. Fara had tried her best to cover up her tracks, make sure she'd been unnoticed, but Honoka had enough Callidus training to know the saboteur's efforts were at best clumsy.

“Luka Chrom, come forward.” The girl in question, sprawled upon the chamber floor on her knees, let go of Fara and made to stand.

(8/11)
“Warsmith,” she muttered, “please, I can explain—”

“Luka Chrom,” repeated Petra. “Come forward.” Honoka cast a glance at the Warmaster; the aventail of her helmet-shaped head seemed to loom over her iron-cast features, like the hood of a cobra ready to strike. Yet her posture itself betrayed no emotion.

Luka Chrom at last rose to her feet and stumbled forwards. Honoka never knew a robot's legs could tremble in fear, but there it was.

“Fabricator Chrom,” said Petra. Her voice remained as steady as always, but Honoka heard a subtle change in the tone that cast a cold, stark edge to her words. “Why did you sabotage the competition?”

“I...I...” Fear drove the Fabricator into fumbling her words, pointlessly buy time against the inevitable.

“Answer the question, Chrom.”

Petra's voice was calm, yet struck like a hammer blow. “Fabricator Chrom.”

“I wanted to win the competition!” wailed Luka as she sank back to her knees. She pointed a finger towards Fara. “She kept winning the other ones! I tried, Warmaster, I tried to beat her fair and square but I couldn't break fifth place! No matter what I did! I just...I just wanted to know what winning felt like...”

For several seconds, silence reigned. The only sounds that could be heard were the clank-clank of the forge-engines and Luka Chrom's terrified sobbing.

At length, Petra spoke again.

“Do you know why we call ourselves the Iron Circle?”

“It's because we're one seamless whole, without beginning, middle, or end.” Petra began pacing around the stricken Fabricator, hands held behind her back. “All of us unified by our ideal, all of us equidistant from our most important philosophy held at our center: self-improvement through mastery of the machine.”

(9/11)
She continued to pace, continued to speak. “But when one mote of that Circle begins to rust, that rust spreads and spreads, until the entire Circle is compromised and crumbles to dust. The Dodekatheon, and the contests it holds, is the fire through which we are tempered into becoming something better. Not a place to gain glory. Not a place to weaken trust with petty rivalries and mistrust. As soon as it becomes such a place...that's when the rust begins to eat away at us.”

By now, the Warmaster had stopped pacing, putting herself in front of the Fabricator. “By betraying your fellow Magical Girls, you've made it that much harder for us to trust one another—for who else could be planning sabotage the next contest? Who else is a betrayer?” She put a hand on Luka's shoulder, like a proud father with his son. “There's only four hundred of us, Luka Chrom, Fabricator of the Mechanicus Order. Four hundred of us, crammed into this walking machine, standing alone, hated and feared by the other Officios we're forced to call 'sisters'. When trust dies on Olympia, we die with it.”

“W-W-Warsmith—”

“Vigilance,” said Petra with a tone of finality, “is good. Caution sharpens the mind and the sesnses. Paranoia, however, is counterproductive. By your actions, you injected the poison of this paranoia into our Officio. You'll have plenty of time to reflect on that in Containment.”

Honoka would later reflect that she was the only one to let out a shriek at what happened next. The others—even gentle, demure Barbara—simply watched, the cold silence their tacit approval.

Grasping Luka's shoulder with one hand, Petra rammed the other through the Fabricator's chest, then tore it back out, a mass of tangled wiring and metal clutched in her fist. The light in the Ironform's eye lenses faded as it fell to the floor, like a puppet with its strings cut.

(10/11)
Petra wasted little time. “Put her in containment for three days,” she said as she tossed Fara the bundle of metal she'd ripped out. “And Castigate her for a week once she gets out. Rest of you, back to work.”

Paying no heed to the multitudes of “Aye, Warsmith”, Petra beckoned to Honoka and her liaison to follow. “We're done here. Come.”

As the Warmaster and her liaison strode off towards the exit, Honoka stared at the limp pile of wreckage that was now Luka Chrom. It had seemed so lifelike to her only minutes before, but now...

...looks just like a broken doll, she thought. Not even like a corpse.

“That girl, Luka...she's not dead, is she? What happened to her Soul Gem?”

The halls in the Guest Quarters were relatively quiet, situated as they were away from the main factories within the Olympia. Only cleaning drones and maintenance drones walked the corridors, lending a certain solitude to the atmosphere, especially compared to the bustling thunder of activity that was the Mechanicus.

“Dead? Oh goodness, no.” Honoka got the impression that Barbara was rather amused. “What the Warmaster had...removed was Fabricator Chrom's Phylactery—an armored containment unit that both wires the Soul Gem to an Ironform and also protects it from harm. The end result of such a removal is not dissimilar to imprisoning a Magical Girl in a Silent Room.”

Honoka nodded in reply. “I see. It's just...not to be rude, but to me it almost looked like a public execution.”

“The intended effect was something like that,” said Barbara, “as the act was designed primarily to publicly humiliate the subject. As the Warsmith said, trust in this Officio is a commodity we can ill afford to lose.”

“Ah...”

(11/11)
At last, they reached a door marked “218”. It opened when Petra approached it, unveiling a small, starkly spartan chamber, furnished with a cot, a desk with a chair and a computer, a small closet, and very little else. There were no windows to let in light, or anything on the wall save the cold grey of Olympia's metal bones. Honoka's luggage and the suit of powered armor she'd received earlier sat neatly tucked away in a corner.

“Here are your quarters,” said Barbara, gesturing with her hand like an airline stewardess. “I must apologize for the...sparseness, but it is Officio philosophy that excessively luxurious quarters is a sign of excess...”

Honoka gave her liaison a disarming laugh. “Ha ha! It's alright, really, my apartment back in Mitakihara wasn't much bigger.” She gave the room a once over which, she noted soberly, took almost no time to do.

With the tour finished and her quarters settled, Honoka bade her liaison and the Warmaster good night.

“Reminder, novitiate Honoka,” said Petra, “report to the Armory at 0900 tomorrow for powered armor training.” A pause. “And good night.”

As the liaison and the Warmaster left, the door closed with a hiss, leaving Honoka alone in the cool silence of her new room. She began the laborious process of getting out of her precious exoskeleton.

She sat on her cot: tough, with only a thin sheet between her and the rigid canvas. A second look around her room convinced her that it was more akin to a cell. Reclining on her meager pillow, she lay down and reflected on the strangest day she'd ever lived.

Given that she'd fought the incarnated soul-wrenching despair of Magical Girls for four years without remorse, she wondered what this meant for the next twelve months.

Why would the Fourth take Tiny Pete? He's not theirs to take! You tell her this, placing a placating hand on Misaka's shoulder. Besides, you found him fair and square in your Shield. It's not like you stole Tiny Pete from them, right?

You have no idea how hard this bit from a few threads ago made me laugh.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE FALL OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 08/22/14(Fri)10:38:22 No.34317475

You are a Magical Girl, and ever since you were informed of your promotion by your Incubator back at that airport, as you waited for your plane to Siberia - you've been struggling with the idea of being Warmaster of your own Officio.

Try as you might, it had never really sunk in. Sure, you've been enjoying the perks - being stiffly saluted by everyone you bumped into was a unique experience, one far removed from the usual scowling disdain you've grown accustomed to. The new apartment, the grand office, even your personal vault to house the Weapons forged from the shattered soul of the insane goddess inside your Shield - they weren't that important, not really, but they were nice. They certainly helped make the onerous, hateful duty of doing fucking paperwork tolerable, if not at least survivable.

You also had the hat, and more recently the greatcoat - two icons that loudly declared your rank to everyone you met. They were admittedly on the gaudy side, with all the gold piping, braiding and the skulls - but they carried with them the authority of your rank. They showed everyone that you were the boss, and what the boss says goes. They proclaimed your rarified superiority even more than the Golden Desert Eagle holstered at your side, or the Shield clamped onto your arm.

And to be perfectly honest, you were...getting used to the hat. Maybe the greatcoat's a bit excessive, but the hat was alright. Sometimes, you even forgot you were wearing it. It felt like you were meant to wear it, as frightening and disturbing as it sounds.

>>34317475

Regardless of everything, though, here you are. You never expected to be elevated to this kind of rank. Maybe a squad leader, sure, or maybe even a Rank Leader. Never Warmaster. Never the right hand of the mutant cat you so despised.

You never expected this. Hell, you never asked for this. But here you are, and here it is.

The day you get finally get ratified as the Warmaster of the Ninth Officio Assassinorum.

Marched to your throne by none other than your retinue, with Sayaka proudly hoisting a battle standard bearing your chosen emblem high above her head as she marched in front - you take a moment to pan your gaze at your assembled Officio. Two thousand Magical Girls, more or less, standing to attention. Transformed and wearing formal regalia over their costumes. Every single one of them staring at you, watching your every move.

"Chiaki Matsuda." A voice calls out, echoing in your mind, as well as in the mind of every magical girl inside the hall - your name uttered with pure authority despite its high-pitched, childlike voice.

There's a lessening of the palpable weight upon your shoulders as the attention of the entire room shifts from you to the Incubator making its way down the center aisle - a rarely-transformed Tomoe Mami easily keeping pace beside the white furry creature.

This sight takes your breath away more than anything else - even as she'd stepped away from active duty to handle most of the Officio's affairs with Kyuubey, Mami still looked perfect in her Magical Girl form. Still beautiful. Still deadly.

You see her wink and smile just as she stops at the edge of your throne's platform - while Kyuubey himself continues forward, stopping only a few paces away in front of you.

"On this day, in this place, you have been chosen to lead my Officio - by your peers and your superiors. You have completed the requisite training period, as well as the tasks required of you admirably and with efficiency."

...Huh. Well, you suppose you didn't embarrass the entire Officio too much during the Kirishima Ruri op, and Big Shell went as fine as it could have. Still, it's strange to hear the mutant cat bastard praising you in front of everyone.

"...As such, here and now, I declare and ratify you Warmaster of the Ninth Officio Assassinorum. You are beholden to no one in this Officio except to me. You answer to no one but me. You are above all others, except by your Incubator. Your authority is absolute and all-encompassing, unless I deem otherwise. Do you understand?"

You nod in reply. Well, not like you have a problem with that. Not yet, anyway.

Kyuubey continues, his round crimson eyes bright. "Should you befall a fate that hinders your ability to perform your duties, or if your Equerry deems you unfit, she will take your place as Warmaster until either you are retrieved, recovered, or replaced. Do you understand?"

You nod again, just as you turn the slightest bit to get Sayaka in your field of vision. She's...trying her hardest not to smirk.

"Very well. Do you have any words before we update your record?"

How do you respond?

You shake your head no. You don't really have anything to say that warrants saying now. ...Besides you don't want to spoil the moment.

+ A wise decision. + Dildoes' frosty voice, eternally composed, murmurs in your ear. + However, allow me, if you will. This won't take a moment. +

You blink in alarm as you feel your body moving on its own, your head turning to the side, facing Kyoko - the Eversor glancing your way a moment later, puzzlement on her face. At the same time, your left hand reaches up towards your ponytail, completely on its own accord.

Wait! Wait, what the fuck is going on?! You don't want to do anything crazy during your own ratification, what is she--

+ I said leave it to me. + There's a dangerous edge in her voice. + There. Done. Now, all together--+

Your body moves again, much more quickly this time, in one sickeningly-natural motion that feels as if you'd done it a hundred times before. Your vision snapping back to the assembled Officio in front of you, just as your outflung arm lowers itself back down at your side. A palpable weight now resting against your back and warming your neck.

You're not quite sure what you did, but from the collective intake of breath from the hundreds of Magical Girls standing in front of you, it was...something.

Even Kyuubey seems to have been taken slightly aback, blinking a couple of times before clearing his throat. "...Yes, well. Tomoe Mami, if you would?"

A demurely-blushing Mami steps forward now, a small tablet in her hands. She taps its cobalt surface once, and the wall behind your throne lights up, from floor to ceiling - revealing itself to be the gigantic screen that it is as it displays your profile. Name, rank, kill record, all there - it even has your old portrait still, with you glaring dourly at the camera, eyebags and unwashed hair and everything.

>>34318848

A few scattered laughs rise from the crowd, with the loudest coming from Kyoko herself - and you find yourself letting this slide, even deigning to chuckle underneath your breath. ...Yeah, fine, it's an embarrassing picture of you being a slob, but it's not like you pretended to be anything else. You probably still are. Just a bit more cleaned up.

Mami taps at her tablet again. Your rank disappears, as do your portrait. One more tap, and they're replaced, respectively, with the word 'Warmaster' - and a stolen shot of you scratching your ass in an interview booth.

Wait, what?

More laughter, now. Dispelling the tension from earlier. "My apologies, Warmaster." Mami giggles, her cheeks still red. "It was a personal request. Please, let me rectify this--"

You frown as the offending picture is replaced by a proper portrait of you - and you're struck by how much you've changed. Your eyes, well, there's nothing that can be done about that, what with the procedure - but your new portrait looks much better than the old one, for a lack of a better way of putting it. You look more focused, more...driven. Certainly a lot cleaner, anyway.

"Profile updated, Incubator." The blonde states, and Kyuubey nods. He looks at you one last time, before turning to the crowd.

"Members of the Officio Assassinorum, your new Warmaster!"

You step forward as the entire hall erupts into cheers again, loud enough to shake the building to its very foundation. Something explodes overhead - and you very nearly draw your Golden Weapon before you realize that it's just confetti poppers being set off overhead, as evidenced by the shower of ribbons and bits of colored paper falling from the ceiling. Camera flashes burst from the depths of the crowd as well as they continue to cheer, a wordless exultation that coalesces into them shouting your name over and over again. ...Your old name.

"MURDERFACE! MURDERFACE! MURDERFACE! MURDERFACE!"

It's a start, at least.

+ Wave, you idiot. + Dildo snaps. + Just a little, though, and not like you're enthusiastically trying to flag down a cab. +

Yeah. Sure. Fine. ...How come she knows so much about this kind of thing, anyway?

+ It's what I do best. Now wave. +

You do so. Allowing yourself to smile just the slightest bit as the cheers erupt again.

Maybe it won't be so bad after all, being Dildo Emperor for the rest of your days.

The cheering gradually settles down a few minutes later, and it's then that tables and tables of food are brought into the hall from the outside. You take your seat back on your throne, with Kyoko, Midori and Sayaka taking up station beside you as Mami outlines the events for the evening.

Apparently, there are quite a few events lined up to celebrate your being ratified - from a buffet dinner to a dance and even a song and dance number from a popular idol. Mami didn't quite say who the idol was, but from how the crowd applauded, it must be someone really popular.

"How are you holding up, sempai?" Midori asks you, smiling, as Kyoko takes flight from a chiding Sayaka, her formal dress cape billowing out behind her as she makes for the buffet table. "How's it feel being official now?"

How do you respond?

[]...I feel the watch-wearing dildoness taking me. Can I get fired now?

Not as shitty as you expected, you murmur as you look up at Midori from your throne. ...Things were happening way too fast earlier so you couldn't really get a good look at the green-haired Callidus, but her uniform...well, suffice to say she looks really good in it. Good enough that you couldn't help remark it to her out loud, and she crimsons at this, a playful smile curling the corners of her lips up.

"W-well, I had to make sure I looked the best for my sempai's ratification, after all," Midori grins. "I think they got my measurements wrong, though...it's still a bit tight at the front, even though I asked for them to let it out a bit..."

...It looks fine, you tell her, even though you're pretty sure that the buttons securing the front of the uniform is undergoing some very interesting amounts of tension at the moment. She looks really...well, sharp. Maybe you should get your greatcoat tailored to fit a bit more closely, too? After all, it's still cut to fit a bigger, taller frame.

"Eh?" Midori blinks, before shaking her head. "Oh, no, don't do that, sempai! It's better this way, worn around your shoulders!" She reaches out to brush some imaginary lint from your epaulettes. "It looks like a really awesome cape, and makes you look badass!"

...Badass, huh? Really?

"Of course!" Midori nods, beaming, before turning to the blue-haired Eversor standing stiffly at attention beside your throne. "Right, Miss Sayaka? The greatcoat really fits sempai, right?"

"Huh?" Your Equerry blinks at the Callidus, then at you, before smirking. "Oh, yeah, sure. Really badass. Like that western manga superhero who dresses up like a giant bat and gargles gravel while he talks."

...What, Batman? Sayaka thinks you're like Batman?

"Maybe? I don't know, I don't keep up with them much." Sayaka shrugs, before suddenly recoiling, a disgusted expression on her face. "...Christ, Murderface, are you going to cry? What, I hurt your feelings or something?"

N-no. It's...you're just touched, that's all. That's probably the nicest thing she ever said to you. You sniff here, theatrically dabbing at your eyes with a sleeve of your greatcoat.

Sayaka frowns at you, before shaking her head. "Nobody likes a smartass Warmaster, Murderface. I--" It's here, then, that Kyoko comes running back, carrying a plate in each hand - both of them piled high with food. "Christ, Kyoko, I told you to just take it slow today! It's a cheat day, sure, but you didn't have to--"

"I got enough for all four of us!" The red-haired Eversor grins as she thrusts one plate into Sayaka's hands, and the other into Midori's. "Guess who I met while lining up for the chili shrimp, though!"

"Who?" Sayaka asks as she waves some of the kitchen staff over - and immediately, a table for one is placed right in front of your throne, high enough for you to be able to eat without having to stoop. Another one, slightly bigger and taller, is placed a few ways beside your station, most likely for Sayaka and Kyoko's benefit. "Ugh, don't tell me it's that Heather girl again, yelling for another rematch with Kharn. She can get so fucking annoying--"

"No, it's Miss Vintage!" Kyoko interrupts, shaking her head as she prepares to dig in, shoving a white linen handkerchief down her armor's gorget to make a bib - and it's here that you see Sayaka's eyes widen. "She actually called me and told me I was getting skinnier, hahaha! Poor Enishi-chan though, probably didn't expect her to attend!"

...Vintage? You blink at this, looking at Kyoko, then at Sayaka. You don't remember a Vintage--

"You won't, she left long before you came around." Your Equerry shakes her head. "Former Warmaster, way before Kharn and Miss Malal. Visited a couple of times to check up on us, but not as much lately. She's contracted under the First, now." It's here that Sayaka shudders - a tremor snaking up her spine to settle in her shoulders. "...Christ, it's not like she was anything as bad as Kirika, but she never stopped being creepy to me. Why'd she have to come visit now of all times, anyway?"

"Eh? But...well, if she's a former Warmaster, maybe it's because she wanted to pay respects to sempai, seeing as she's the new one?" Midori asks, puzzled.

"Maybe." Sayaka doesn't seem convinced, however. "But she's...well, she's from the First, and..." Your Equerry seems to finally realize where she is, and lets the thought remain unfinished. "...Just watch out, Murderface. She'll probably want to talk to you later, and if she does, just watch your back."

...Not the most sparkling of character references, there. But you'll try.

"Good." Your Equerry lets out a sigh. "...We might as well eat, seeing as everyone else is."

That might be a good idea right now. Doesn't look like you can do anything at the moment besides waiting for the next event.

...Hmm. Strange, though. Your Shield feels like it's vibrating slightly, but it could be just your nerves...

I too recall us asking QB to check that name and him finding nothing.

That being said, we do know that there is a native version of Homura present, and in one of the Q&As, Decu said that the native Homura had visions about what was going on much like Malal did (due to being this dimensions counterparts to their respective deities).

So it would make sense that the native Homura is hiding who she truly is, just as Malal hid who she was.

It also means she knows a LOT about us, Pinky and Homucifer. Which is probably not good for us.

We got like two thousand magical girls here, some of them real masters of the trade. If whatever's at the other side has hostile intentions there's not better place to bring it than right here. Sure, we're gonna enter history as the worst party crasher ever, but that comes with the teritory

Yeah. Revealing that an incarnation of ourself (Homucifer/TNO) pulled the "Blessed Lady" out of "heaven" and corrupted her would go over well with those two thousand magical girls. Large part of whom likely worship the Blessed Lady.

Nothing like publically revealing ourself to literally be the devil eh?

You glance down at your right arm, where your scarred Shield is clamped on. ...For some reason, it feels like the entire thing is shaking. Maybe it's some sort of muscle fatigue that you forgot to take note of, or something? Wouldn't be the first time, but if it's your Shield--

As soon as your fingertips come in contact with the rim of the heavy metal disc, it engages itself - so suddenly and so abruptly that you very nearly jump out of your throne.

There's a crash of gears and metal smashing together as your Shield rotates upon its own main joint, a full ninety degrees - and the world around you goes cold, all warmth and color draining from it, in the characteristic pallor of time being stopped for everyone except you.

And a cheerful pink demon in a rather revealing cheerleader outfit, the skirt way too short to cover her pink-and-white striped panties protecting her modesty.

"HO-MU-RA! HO-MU-RA! L-O-V-E HO-MU-RA!" Pinky, in all her black-eyed, sharp-toothed glory jumps and flits and leaps towards you, shaking two brightly-colored pom-poms in her hands. As she gets closer, you realize that they're not pom-poms at all - but rather, freshly-severed heads of Magical Girls, with their still-bleeding eye sockets and slack-open mouth used as...handholds. "YAAAAY HOMURA-CHAN! CONGRATULATIONS!"

These gory cheerleader gear is quickly dropped like so much trash as the eldritchian abomination with a rusty bone saw's smile prances up to your throne - and it's with a few moments of grunting and cursing that she climbs up the side and drops herself into your lap. Reclining comfortably there, like a cat curling up at her favorite spot.

"Oh, I thought you were never going to let me visit, Homura-chan! I thought I was gonna have to do something drastic to get your attention!" Pinky giggles, before reaching up with both blood-clawed hands to pull your face down close to her.

You immediately freeze at this - the last time she tried this, you ended up tongue-kissing a mouthful of blood and sharp teeth - but instead of forcing you into a makeout session, she simply gives you a warm peck on the cheek. "That's for you! Congratulations on becoming Buttmaster, Homura-chan! Make sure you don't forget about me now that you've come up into the world, okay?!"

...It's...no, she's thinking about the impossible. There's no way you can forget about her.

"Oh? Hee, that's really sweet, Homura-chan! I'll have you know I'll never forget you, either! I think of you all the time!" She claps her bloody hands together, the sound sticky with drying, crusty gore. "Every day, every hour, every minute, every second...Homura-chan is always on my mind! Even before you made me this way!" She giggles again, the sound cute and feminine, completely at odds with the bloodthirsty monster on your lap.

"Mmmh, I see Homura-chan's surrounding herself with boobies again," Pinky frowns at Midori beside you. "Wendy-chan's here too, isn't she? Aha, I see her there a few rows from the front! It's nice to see her doing so well, she was a complete wreck after Homura-chan broke her heart, ahahaha!" She kicks her bare legs up and down in hilarity. "Well, it's not like she's not a complete wreck still! Can't do anything about that, I'm an insane goddess, not a miracle worker!"

She fidgets again on your lap, shifting to sit up a bit more - and it's here that Pinky pokes your cheek with a claw-tipped finger.

"Why do you like boobs so much, Homura-chan? They're just lumps of fat! They don't do anything! I just don't get it! I don't't!" She clicks her tongue against her razor-sharp teeth, making a drop of blood trickle down her chin and onto her white cheerleader tank top. "Stop surrounding yourself with 'em, they're not worth the trouble! Okay? Okay! Pinky Promiiiise!"

But the point is that TNO does exist as a separate divine-level entity right now. Pinky however has no idea about that.

I agree that telling Pinky probably isn't an immediate quest ending deathflag. However, if Decu in the future put in a quest ending deathflag, I don't think he would/should relent to the inevitable shitstorm.
Chances are that when such a deathflag could be picked, it would be in a situation with less ambiguous choices than these.

I don't think its that simple. Braids has implied full knowledge of everything, including Homucifer. I think their personalities manifest from points in time, but each knows the full story more or less.

There is still the chance that Pinky knew already and was just testing us. She might appreciate the honesty and only kill half of the attendees.

Either way the fall is already coming, might as well use it to clear one obstacle off the Pinky route.

I've said it before and I'll say it again. Braids, Dildoes and Murderface represent the three most common fates of various homuras. In some timelines, she stays mostly Braids, in some timelines she goes full Dildoes, and in some she's full Murderface.

Yumaquest really did have some of the best writing of the entire quest.

You don't need things to be happy to be entertaining or good, and feeling negatives emotions isn't always a bad thing. Just look at Madoka Magica. It didn't become one of the most popular anime of all time because of the slice of life and comedy in the first three episodes

People say tragedy is the highest form of art, and I am inclined to agree when the alternatives are endless happy days and comedy.

Because it has been stated that madoka canon is canon here for the most part, and considering how Dildoes, Ribbons, and Devilhomu came to be it is kind of required for there to be a chronological tie.

That being said it is possible that after Rebellion we started having amnesia at the start of every timeline or something. We were fucked up before Yuma fucked us harder.

no, it's just headcanon.

But it makes more sense than each shade being a specific incarnation: We've had so many loops, we can't even remember them all at the best of times. And these aren't exactly our glory days anymore.

Hundreds of thousands of lives could have passed since the events of Rebellion. We just don't know.

>>34321878
I seem to remember one of the three stooges (Braids I think) implying that they actually died or witched out at one point. Not to mention the amount of loops was way beyond what it was in canon.

That implies that at some point after anime canon and possibly after rebellion, Homuras started time traveling again. Only this time they made it so that even dying would just reset things.

They're not here for the lulz. They're here to see a story. Might not be the story you want, but this was never about that, was it? This is about you. This is about you, and people like you, being pissed off that the quest is not going the way you want it to go. Some of you are calm about it, like yourself, and I can admire that, but that's just treating the symptoms, not the disease.

Let me make myself clear on the matter. I believe that no vote is rendered invalid just because the voter wants to see a different story. Likewise, no vote is rendered valid just because the voter has been here for longer, or has more seniority, or thinks that it might be the way to 'win'. This is a democracy, and you get outvoted. It happens. There's no need to start pointing fingers and cursing invisible bogeymen, and potentially ruining the quest for everyone else. Ever heard the expression 'Cut off your nose to spite your face'? That is what you are doing here.

Basically, get the fuck over yourselves. The story is getting told regardless. You can either enjoy the twists and turns, or you can embitter yourself with thoughts of what ifs and could ofs, and then blame everyone else for the perceived slight that is making you miserable.

And with that note, I'm done. I'm tired of having this same fucking argument every dozen threads.

You decide to tell her the truth. It's...a bit complicated, you try to explain.

"Oh? How is it complicated, Homura-chan?" Pinky asks sweetly, smiling wide, showing two bloody-pinked rows of sharp-pointed teeth. "Please, explain everything to me~ I promise I won't get mad, don't WORRY!" She emphasizes the last word by digging her claws into your arm right down into the bone, making you grit your teeth at the cold bite of pain! "Do go on, Homura-chan! Really! I'm not even mad right now, ahahaha!"

...Right. You swallow hard, before explaining what you know and remember. How you simply tried to see what kind of spirit resided in your Desert Eagle - and all of a sudden, the three spirits simply began talking to you, just like that. You didn't really have a choice in the matter, considering that they were talking to you before Pinky warned you about them.

That said, you're...sorry for lying to her, you murmur. Sorry for making that promise, and breaking it.

The eldritichian horror reclining on your lap narrows her eyes at you for a moment too long - before her gaze swivels to the Golden Desert Eagle holstered at your side. She reaches out with a clawed finger and gently, ever so gently, pokes the butt of the handcannon.

The crushing pain smashes into you with the force of an oncoming truck covered in acid-soaked needles. Your muscles immediately locking up and making you spasm and jerk and twitch upon your throne, your teeth gritting hard enough that you could swear you heard some of them break during those first, few moments of absolute torture.

Excruciating doesn't even begin to describe it - it feels like dying. Dimly, you feel yourself breathing out blood all over the front of your costume - bright red, vital blood, burning all the way up your throat as you cough it out.

And in your mind, fevered and drowned in pain, you could hear all three of your past selves screaming the scream of pain you forced yourself to grit your teeth against.

It's only when Pinky withdraws her claw-tipped finger that the pain immediately vanishes - and you slump back against your throne, limp and exhausted. The impromptu torture session leaving you hollow, leaving you drained, enough that you don't even notice Pinky slowly clambering off your lap, self-consciously-adjusting the tiny skirt that had hiked up earlier.

"I don't like being lied to, Homura-chan." Pinky murmurs, not turning to look at you as she pulls her skirt down to a more modest hem line. "...But you're trying again, so that means something. That means you're learning from your past mistakes, even if I'm going to make you suffer for all of them."

And once again, as if a switch inside her had suddenly been flipped by an invisible hand - she twirls around, all smiles, all cheer. "Well, I guess it couldn't really be helped! Homura-chan's clever and sneaky like that, always trying to game the system, always looking for an unfair advantage for a rainy day!"

She sidles up in front of you, leaning forward and lifting up your chin with a claw-tipped finger - forcing you to look up at her. "So what lies did they tell you, huh, Homura-chan? What kind of bullshit did your past selves make you swallow? And more importantly - did you believe them?"

You can probably talk if you forced it.

[]...I'm reserving judgment until further notice.
[]...I'm not going to kill you. I'm going to help you.

I think the 2nd option is probably an extremely terrible idea.

It would mean not only were we listening to the voices, and not only did we lie, but we were also hiding what we were going to do to Pinky from Pinky.

However I know the 2nd option will win. So I am going to vote for the version of the 2nd option I think is least likely to fail.

Magical Juggernaut Heather Crunch versus Magical Ascetic Valentina Tenko

"Sister, she's going to wake up any minute now."

My eyes SNAP open as consciousness returns to me, and I spy a sneak straddling me with a sheepish smile, in a yellow shirt that SCANDALOUSLY reveals her navel, and grey sweatpants that accentuate her FOCUS CRUNCH FOCUS DON'T LET HER GET IN YOUR HEAD!

In her hand she is holding another syringe. I thought myself SAFE sleeping in a negligee, but I WAS GRAVELY MISTAKEN. I could almost overlook this HORRIFIC breach of trust and violation of my personal space... If this wasn't the THIRD TIME THIS WEEK!

"NAKAJIMAAAA!" I bellow at her loudly, which only makes her smile bigger, "I TOLD you to stop trying to experiment on me in my sleep!"

"I apologize," she says demurely. Well, that's more-

Wait, that's the other Nakajima, standing off to the side. "Not... Not you," I clarify. Why's she the only one dressed?

"Oh crackle," Nakajima - the first Nakajima, that is - squawks, trying to stand. "She's awake!"

No more games. I make to snatch the syringe from her hands, informing this SATANIC SIREN that "I'LL be taking THIS devil's instrument, and-"

"Kyaaaa~!" she screeches, before toppling on top of me. Of all the stupid, contrived nonsense...

I NARROWLY avoid having my eye pierced with the needle, which clatters onto the floor! "Geh... Get off of me!" I rage at her, trying to untangle myself!

Wait, how'd her hand get in there? Don't even think about- "Ohhh, that's soft and squishy~!"

"A-ah..." I coo helplessly as a jolt of electricity runs up my spine... THEN SNAP TO MY SENSES AND TENSE UP, THUNDERING, "RELEASE YOUR GRASP ON ME, YOU SINFUL SUCCUBUS, OR SO HELP ME I WILL-"

"Jaaaaade!" this VIOLENT VIXEN SHRIEKS, attempting to RESTRAIN me! "Stop taking pictures and get the syringe, I think she's serious!"

"A very nice pose," comes the voice of the other Nakajima, along with the sound of a camera shutter clicking.

"Jaaaade! Hurry, she's about to-"

"DYNAMIC EXIT!" I CRY OUT, REMOVING Nakajima from my person by BRACING against her and THROWING her off with my feet! HAH! Even when not transformed, THE CRUNCH TRAIN EJECTS UNWANTED PASSENGERS! Nakajima LAUNCHES OFF the bed, clear to the other side of the room, and hits the wall!

"Owww!" the girl groans, stumbling forward. I see what you're planning, Nakajima, and I will THWART it! For as soon as she's stumbled over to where the syringe is, I am already LEAPING out of bed and DESCENDING UPON HER LIKE THE FIST OF GOD! She only has a moment to pick it up and call out "Got it!" before THE CRUNCH TRAIN RUNS HER OVER AND PINS HER DOWN!

Prying it out of her hand, I declare triumphantly, "your nefarious needle is MINE now!"

"Hey, give that back!" Nakajima calls out beneath me, unable to pry me off. "That solution's really hard to replace!" she adds, trying AGAIN to grab my chest, but I RESTRAIN her arm while keeping the nefarious instrument out of her reach.

"I'M going to hold on to this," I declare, to the BOTH of them. "You can have it back when I am GONE."

"Give it back!" Nakajima pleads. "Pleeeeease!" She's frowning heavily, but I will NOT be moved as I am going to focus on the OTHER Nakajima instead!

"We would appreciate it if you returned that to us, Miss Crunch," other Nakajima says politely.

I shake my head, for I have made up my mind! "NO!"

"Pretty please with a cherry on top?" says Nakajima hopefully. I turn to look - DAMMIT SHE'S MAKING PUPPY-DOG EYES AT ME! Will failing... resolve crumbling... GAH! This soft-heartedness of mine is going to come back to haunt me someday. I just know it!

"If you promise to stop trying to conduct SCIENCE on me in my sleep," I say slowly, "THEN I'll give it back. Deal?"

Nakajima pleads pleadingly, "can we run more tests on you while you're awake, then?"

"What?" I ask incredulously, keeping the wiggling woman held down. "Why would I EVER allow that?" What are they thinking?

"To test your physical limits beyond what we have already tried," explains other Nakajima.

"Aren't you just the teensiest bit curious?" inquires Nakajima. Her lower lip is trembling. Confound her, she raises a good point.

"Nnngh... No funny business?" I ask.

"We're not gonna kill you or make you wish you'd died, Crunchy," reassures Amber, who THEN adds, "unless something goes wrong, but what are the chances of that?"

"Remarkably low if we are not trying," says other Nakajima, having moved adjacent to me. FORTUNATELY, the implement we are bargaining for is out of BOTH their reaches.

"I'll agree," I concede... BUT I state my terms, saying, "that is, IF you swear that you will not conduct experiments on me while I sleep, and will NOT use this opportunity for EVIL!" My grip tightens as I bellow "SWEAR ON IT!"

Amber calls out, "aww, butterpoop!"

"...Huh?"

"Just kidding," Amber says with a grin, holding up her hand, pinky extended. "Pinky swear!"

"PINKY SWEAR!" I yell out, RELEASING my grasp on her to wrap my pinky around hers.

"Pinky swear," murmurs the other Nakajima, linking her pinky around ours. We hold it for a moment, and... I hand the other Nakajima the syringe. Amber cheers.

"Alright then!" I say, my mood considerably improved, "are you preparing breakfast again?"

"Yah huh!" Amber chirps, nodding her head, "Jade and I are invincible when we're together!"

"Unstoppable culinary machines," affirms other Nakajima, the syringe already gone.

"I would like that!" I reply with a smile, then order, "SNAP TO IT, THEN!"

"Umm... Could you get off of me, first?" asks Amber, face slightly red. What is-

"GYAH!" I CRY OUT AS I LEAP OFF THE SINISTER SEDUCTRESS AS QUICKLY AS I CAN, THOROUGHLY DISGUSTED, AND POINTEDLY IGNORING THE THOUGHTS SAYING TO STAY ON HER! Nakajima GIGGLES at this! NOT FUNNY!

"DIABOLICAL DEMONIC DELILAHS, THE BOTH OF YOU!" I scream at the Nakajimas. Amber just titters and Jade looks at me impassively. The impact is probably lost after being said through a mouthful of food.

Swallowing, I clarify, saying, "Having said that, you are EXCELLENT cooks!" Before coming here, it'd been AGES since I'd had an American-style spread. A plate of crispy bacon and steaming scrambled eggs over here. A plate of golden waffles DROWNING in syrup and butter over there. Before me, PUMPKIN MUFFINS AND HASH BROWNS! I click my chopsticks together and hold up another slice of bacon, then start to DEVOUR THE GOODNESS.

Nakajima bows her head, and starts murmuring, "gosh, and here I was hoping you'd say I'd make a great wife someday."

I nearly spit out my meal. Was she attempting to make me choke to death? I'M ON TO YOU, NAKAJIMAAAAAAAAAA!

"Aww, Crunchy's cute when she's blushing~!" she teases, my face growing hotter. I... Just... Argh!

Other Nakajima interjects, "you said she was cute all the time." G-grr... Stop fanning the flames, you duplicitous-

"What? Jade, I did not!" a pink-faced Nakajima cries in outrage.

"Did so," claims other Nakajima, holding up her phone and proclaiming, "I have proof."

Nakajima is pointedly unable to look at my glorious, if flustered, visage, stammering, "Well don't tell her that!"

"Too late," says other Nakajima, holding the incriminating item just out of reach of her sibling. I feel a powerful urge to avert my head...

Swallowing, I croak, "nuh... Nuh... New subject!" Recapturing their attention, I ask, "When did you STOP poisoning my food?"

A serious atmosphere chokes the cheer out of the room. Both of them look equally shocked. "Uh oh," Nakajima groans, "you noticed?"

"I'm NOT stupid enough to miss it," I inform her, pointing my chopsticks at her. "Now ANSWER MY QUESTION!"

Other Nakajima bows at me, stating, "We have been trying since the beginning, and only stopped today. My apologies."

"Yeah, yeah, sorry," Nakajima says insincerely. Her curiosity overwhelms her tact, and she presses, "say, you haven't been feeling nauseous or sleepy or anything?"

Puffing my chest out, I proudly declare, "Not in the SLIGHTEST!"

"Be serious," Nakajima says without ANY trace of amusement, "this is important science stuff."

Setting down my chopsticks, I inform them, "I have NOT felt any such -weakness- after consuming these meals."

The two of them stare at me for about a minute. They see only the BLINDING truth, as other Nakajima states, "invincible body."

I grin at them, the seriousness SHATTERED, and shout, "INVINCIBLE!"

"Yaaaay!" Nakajima cheers while hugging her sister. "We're off the hook!"

"No you're not!" I interrupt, startling them both. "Between THIS and allowing you to continue your experiments, YOU OWE ME." With how they're staring at the ground, it's CLEAR that they understand this. FINALLY, I have the upper hand!

Satisfied, I take a swig of milk before I pick my chopsticks back up, and RESUME my consumption.

Mmm, these eggs are nice and fluffy. Taste like VICTORY.

"Sooo," Nakajima says nervously, "what happened with the flower lady?"

Pointing my utensils at the Nakajimas, I inform the both of them, "she REFUSES to see me after the INFERNO CONSUMED her flower fields!" It wasn't supposed to rage out of control like that.

"But on the plus side, no more wasp's nest!" Nakajima volunteers.

"No more anything," other Nakajima drones.

"In any case," I continue after finishing a muffin, "I -must- meet with the Spiritual Liege once more, and find out WHAT is on the itinerary for today."

"And we'll tag along out of sight, right Jade?" Nakajima says excitedly, turning to her sister.

"Completely silent," other Nakajima confirms.

"SEE TO IT THAT YOU DO!" I roar, transforming into my costume at long last, "For I have ANSWERS to find!"

Both of them nod in response. Nakajima fist-bumps her sister and calls out, "Nakajima twin powers, gooo!"

"Aiyaaaaah!" screeches the Spiritual Liege of the Seventh, who looks quite cross. "Crunch why you come back?"

Bowing slightly, I answer her, "SPIRITUAL LIEGE! I am here for the remainder of the month, as I seek-"

"You set back Plum Blossom anger management two years!" she interrupts. STOP DOING THAT, IT'S RUDE!

"That was not my intention," I answer her plainly. It wasn't supposed to get out of control like that.

"You not even sorry!" she seethes, MENACING me with that... paper on a stick thing. "Xiaomei make you sorry!"

Thumping my chest with my fist, I PROUDLY declare, "even so, I ERRRADICATED the wasp's nest, AS I WAS INSTRUCTED TO-"

"Xiaomei not care!" she interrupts AGAIN, pointing now towards the western hallway. "You train with other noisy Rank Leader!"

"But-"

"You dismissed!" the Spiritual Liege says with finality, turning her back on me. It seems there is simply NO REASONING with her.

...I WORRY for the state of this Officio with such a person in charge.

I take my leave and STRIDE down the indicated hall. The place is only MODESTLY furnished, with PLANTS and PICTURES and PICTURES OF PLANTS lining it, aside from the various closed doors. The hall is DEATHLY quiet, aside from the clacking of my steps on the wooden floor.

And the various sounds the Nakajimas are making as they follow me. Sounds such as jumping and LOUDLY somersaulting, things that are COMPLETELY out of place when trying to be quiet and sneak around. Even I know that much, as the Big Boss INSISTED I learn about how to move stealthily. While it hasn't seen use, it allows me to know, WITHOUT EVEN LOOKING, that they are doing it WRONG!

"Hey Crunchy! We're being ninjas!"

...Do NOT look, Crunch. It's simply NOT worth it.

The only door open is a sliding door at the end of the hall. I make to move through it, and look around-

Wait, my Crunch senses are tingling! DANGER IS NEAR!

There's movement to the left of me. I turn to face it just as a BURNING SWORD BEARS DOWN UPON ME!

"BARE-HANDED BLADE BLOCK!" I CALL OUT, THROWING UP MY HANDS AND CATCHING THE SHARP EDGE BEFORE IT CAN REACH ME!

"And so comes the Truth-Seeker," speaks the wielder, a girl with long blue hair, "who holds the sun upon her back!"

"What is the MEANING of this?" I demand, holding the searing hot blade between my hands and forcing it back! "And what is the MEANING of that thing you said? WHO ARE YOU?"

My assailant WISELY sheathes her blade after that. "I am the lone island in a sea of tranquil fury!" she answers.

"...Huh?"

"I am the whispering winds and the babbling brooks, intermingling and shifting!" she elaborates. I don't get what she's talking about.

"No, your NAME!" I angrily demand of her. "What is your NAME?"

Putting her hands on her hips and staring straight ahead, the person says, "My name is Valentina Tenko! The Eversor Soul Temperer of this most sacred of places!"

"Is that like a Rank Leader?" I ask of this confusing person.

After relaxing her posture, she turns to look at me and COMPLETELY IGNORES MY QUESTION! "Are you the one known as Heather Crunch?"

Aha! "I am indeed!" I respond. "So YOU are the one I was supposed to find."

"Indeed I am!" Tenko replies, and asks of me, "but have you found yourself?"

I frown in confusion. "I'm... I'm right here, aren't I?" I ask. I'm me, right? I pull at the fabric of my jacket to see that, yes, I'm almost certainly myself and not another person.

Tenko throws her arms wide and turns away from me, declaring, "And yet you are nowhere at all!"

"No," I try to explain to her, "I'm right-"

She looks over her shoulder, looking very pleased with herself when she assures me, "I see now that you have much to learn, Seeker of Enlightenment!"

Between this, the Spiritual Liege, and the Nakajimas, my patience is NEARLY AT ITS END! "I KNOW that!" I SHOUT, GESTICULATING WILDLY. "THAT is why I'm here!"

"You only know of battles without!" Tenko scoffs, "but what of your battles within?"

"You're not making any SENSE!" I SCREAM!

She's not even looking at me! She's looking outside! "The zealous fires that race across the sky draw closer to the horizon!" she proclaims, spinning around and drawing her blade from its sheath in a burst of flame. "Come, Seeker of Wisdom, show me your heart!" What is she-

Wait.

I can't help but smile at this. "HAH! I know what -that- means!" I say with COMPLETE CERTAINTY! IMPOSING my will into physical form, my Eversword manifests in my hands! Both of us take our stances, and it's Tenko that makes the first move! My trusty blade repels a fiery slash, but Tenko simply uses the momentum to make ANOTHER swing! I am unguarded, but not defenseless, as my UNBREAKABLE body takes the attack, and that ones that follow, in stride!

...Well, it hurts a bit. Quite a bit, really. I forgot how hard Rank Leaders hit.

Tenko follows up with a FIERCE upward kick. I am sent FLYING and reeling from pain as she LEAPS after me! I am COMPLETELY HELPLESS!

HAH! LIKE THAT'D HAPPEN!

I WILL heaviness into my blade, and I PLUMMET to the ground before she can reach me. Tenko knows what's coming next, but her evasive maneuvers are NOT fast enough to stop the Crunch Train!

"COUNTER SWING!" I bellow, whipping my sword back and SLASHING into the airborne figure! Even though she blocks some of it, she CRASHES into the far wall!

I thought it would break, being wood, but it did not. Curious. But not important! As she points her weapon at me, a CONE OF FLAME ENGULFS ME! The searing heat is even MORE intense than that of Nakajima's energy katana, and is QUITE PAINFUL! It is even singeing my costume away!

BUT HEATHER CRUNCH BURNS HOTTER!

CHARGING THROUGH THE INFERNO, I slash at her AGAIN! Even though Tenko is able to parry my blow, I FORCE her back with the sheer weight of it, and she seems to be in WORSE shape than I! I can tell she's holding back - we both are, but I don't know how much stronger she can get.

"Your fighting is like a raging typhoon!" she commends me, panting slightly. "And yet, it lacks something!"

Holding up my sword, I ask of her, "What does it lack? What is the answer that I seek?"

Smiling at me, Tenko stands up and dusts herself off, before slipping her weapon back into its sheath. The temperature of the room quickly drops. She points at me and exclaims, "You are as the monkey with the key to the plantation!"

Huh? "Did you just call me a monkey?" I ask indignantly, bringing my sword back up.

"You lack discipline!" she clarifies. Which... Doesn't clarify anything.

"Discipline?" I ask yet again, letting my Eversword disappear.

"You rely too much on the strength of your soul gem, rather than the strength of your soul itself!" she proclaims, pointing outside. "Have you ever seen the sunset through your true eyes?"

"I don't understand what you're saying."

Tenko faces me once more, a self-satisfied look on her face. "Have you heard the world laugh without invoking your magic?" she inquires.

"...Does hearing Nakajima's giggling while dressed for bed count?" I ask warily in return.

She shakes her head. "I'm afraid not," she says, advancing upon me. "You shine as brightly as any pearl, but beneath that luster you are still merely a grain of sand."

She's standing uncomfortably close right now. Why is everyone here so STRANGE? "Could you just explain to me what to do here?" I query.

"Shed that garish luster, Seeker of Justice!" she retorts, clenching her fists. "Bare your true self to me, as the grain of sand it always was!"

I let her words sink in for a moment, then asks, just to make sure, "You mean transform back into a normal girl instead of a magical girl?"

Tenko confirms this with a nod.

I only do that at bedtime, though. Which means... "I'm not comfortable running around in a nightie, or just my undergarments," I tell her, hoping she picks up on my discomfort.

"Then bare your soul to the world without the threads of fate binding you down!" she yells, tugging at my clothes.

"What? NO!" I yell, pushing her back!

"Is the baby bird afraid to leave the comfort of its shell?" Tenko taunts. What is WITH these people?

"I said NO!" I screech at her!

"Then I shall be your wings, Truth-Seeker!" Tenko exclaims, and- Oh no, she's actually starting to undress. "Gaze upon my brilliant innocence and feel no shame!"

Shameless is right! "JUST, JUST GET ME SOME NORMAL CLOTHES!" I yell!

"Very well, Truth-Seeker!" she proclaims, clearly disappointed. Ugh! If she weren't my equal in battle, I would have NO respect for her right now!

"Here you are!" Tenko exclaims after pulling something out of her inventory. "A new shell for the hermit crab!"

I catch what she tosses to me and grunt at her in acknowledgement. She has given a black sleeveless athletic shirt and a pair of long pants with a jungle camouflage print, that flare slightly at the hips. They feel comfortable in my hands, and look stretchy enough to fit.

Both of them are wrinkly, and smell faintly of peaches, but seem to be the right measurements. And she just had these clothes in her inventory, when she -clearly- lacks the endowments for them. Disturbing.

"Make haste, Truth-Seeker!" the increasingly bothersome person urges. Sighing heavily, I transform out of my costume, and back into my nightgown. I pull it over my head, careful not to tear it, and-

"Nice!" calls the annoying voice of Nakajima, followed by a VERY tasteless wolf whistle. I freeze like a deer in the headlights, my back to the entrance.

"Please just stare quietly, sister," other Nakajima murmurs over the sound of her camera's shutter. "You are making a scene."

Ignore them. Just ignore the perverts, Crunch.

"Crunchyyy, come on!" pesters Nakajima, prodding at the back of my head.

"Sister," other Nakajima murmurs, "Miss Tenko said Miss Crunch was to meditate under the waterfall until sunset." Which is what I've been doing for the last... I'm not sure how much time has passed. I've had my eyes closed since Tenko left.

The freezing water pounds on my head and shoulders relentlessly. I'm actually starting to shiver. But thus far, I've been able to put that out of mind. I've come close to achieving some sort of inner peace.

And then these two show up.

"She said a bunch of baloney!" Nakajima insists. I believe it's her that is grabbing me from behind. "Now help me pick her up!"

"What if she fights back?" retorts other Nakajima.

I'm let go of, and then something is planted against the small of my back. "Plan B, then!" And then, in as many days, I am pushed into the dirt and mud! Wiping the muck from my eyes, I make to turn and glare at my oppressor, but there's something more interesting ahead.

Half a dozen identical copies of other Nakajima stand at the ready, eyes staring dully ahead. As one, their heads turn to face me with a loud clicking sound. Looking closer, their skin has a metallic finish, just like...

ACTUAL FIGHTING ROBOTS! OH MY GOD!

"At last!" bellows Nakajima as she takes up position behind the assembled FIGHTING ROBOTS! "I, Amber Nakajima, have the great and mighty Heather Crunch at my mercy! Now, bear witness to the power of SCIENCE!"

Pointing at me, Amber gives the order to her henchmaids! "Go, my minions!" she cries out. "Bring her to meeeee!" Over the sound of machinery moving, her evil laughter ECHOES where there should be none!

I may have to explain myself to the Soul Temperer later... But FIGHTING ROBOTS!

"BRING IT ON, NAKAJIMAAAAAAAA!" I ROAR AT HER!

"Yes?" a voice demurely queries behind me. I spin around and see other Nakajima doing the waterfall meditation I had taken up until moments before.

"N-no, the other- NEVER MIND!"

The Iron Circle
Chapter IV: Iron Without

Evening in the Sahara.

The cool sands of the desert, their once-blistering heat now sucked dry by the night's chill, left little dust clouds in the dunes as the wind howled and howled and tossed them about.

Atop of one dune on the endless wastes sat a figure. It was vaguely humanoid and hunched over, keeping its eyes transfixed on the two-thousand foot machine looming over the desert. Gusts of wind threw dust in its eyes, but it didn't notice, didn't even flinch, as its eyes were not of flesh but were instead made of plastic and metal.

Movement.

At once, the figure swiveled its right eye, and only its right eye, towards the source. Two Ironforms were striding across the sands, accompanied by a floating object. The desert wastes muffled the sounds of their heavy tread. Data archives indicated the Ironforms were both Heavy chassis, the floating object a recon drone.

The figure went death-still. <Audio signatures detected. Activating recording systems...>

"...so that's when Karla gives me the whole 'let's just be friends' spiel, a-and I just had to, to get out of the room, you know? I mean, how could she just -say- that? After all we did together?"

The second voice grated, its tone rendered harsher by reluctance. "...yeah. Right. Whatever."

Soul Gem signatures and unique markers on the chassis told it who the pair was. Two Magical Girls from the Toxotes Order, no one on registered as anyone particularly important. Nonetheless, protocol demanded that it keep its recording devices active in case it picked up anything of interest, and so the directional microphone stayed on.

The pair spoke of nothings to stave off boredom. Every step carried them closer and closer to the dune upon which sat the figure.

"Anyway,' said the first, her voice taking on a coy tone. Data archives identified her as Hekate Ervin. "So how about that new girl, hmm?"

"The one from the Ninth?" grunted the other one. Pala Greut, leader of Squad Alpha-Five. "What about her?"

A giggle. "A Japanese girl! Redhead, too! She's my type and everything! Ooh, I wonder what sort Ironform she's gonna end up with--"

Twenty feet. Ten feet. Five feet. Any closer, and the patrolling girls would run straight into the figure. They had turned their gaze towards it several times, yet never once did they notice it was there.

"--you saw her too, right? She's got this really tight little--"

Two feet...

Bafflers rendered the figure invisible to the Ironforms' scanners, but all the stealth technology in the world would mean nothing if they simply bumped into it. As they drew closer, programmed contingencies within the figure began to go active.

One foot...

"--shit, now I really want to see her wearing one of those things they have in Japan, you know, those--"

<Priming self-destruct device. Engage evasive maneuvers in 3...2...1...>

"Hekate."

There was a clang of metal on metal. The Pala had kicked Hekate in the back of her leg.

"Hekate," she said, "I swear to god: if you signed up to be my patrol buddy just to tell me about your fucking sex life and how fucking cute the new girl is, I'm going to shoot you. I don't care if I end up in Containment for an entire fucking year, and I don't care if I'm Castigated for the rest of my entire fucking life." She punctuated her rant with jabs from her gun-arm.

"So if you say one more -goddamn- word about the novitiate's butt, face, or boobs, or start bitching about your empty 'receiver jack', I -will- shoot you. And I will shoot you until I fucking run out ammo." One last jab. "Got it?"

"Ok, fine..." grumbled Hekate. "But seriously, I'm not the only one, am I? She's--"

The sound of a high-caliber round cycling rendered her silent.

"Alright, alright! Geez..."

"Also, patrol route's this way," said the other girl, waving a gun-arm off in another direction. "Come on, let's finish this up. Tonight's the season finale for 'Solium Ludi' and I'll be fucked if I miss it."

"No."

"What?! Why noooot?!"

And so the pair continued their patrol, squabbling as they went. The rounded, disc-shaped recon drone hovered silently ahead of them.

The figure waited, stock still, as the sounds of the quarreling duo faded into the moaning of the desert wind. Only when the pair was out of sight did it relax its countermeasures and begin its most important duty.

Far, far away, in the cold gloom of the underground, she smiled at the streams of data flickering across her vision. Beneath her the man moaned as he lay on a metal surgical table, restraints creaking as he struggled, futilely, for his freedom.

The sounds of his misery brought out of her stupor, though she continued to digest the information even as she brought out another tool. 'A new lamb brought into the fold?' she mused, as she lowered the whining, spinning buzzsaw through the man's leg, just below the knee. 'Curious. I wonder what she is like...'

"Hush now," she cooed, stroking his trembling, sweating, face. She ignored the spittle that sprayed from his lips, his whimpered pleas for mercy. "Hush, for you will be reborn into a body far more glorious than this one of stinking flesh and blood. A beautiful form, a sublime form..."

She lowered the buzzsaw again, this time on the man's other leg. Screaming filled the gloom again, and to her ears it was a grating, unpleasant noise. How sweeter the voice would be when disgusting meat and bone would be supplanted by consecrated metal. Agony was the fire through which this wretched creature would be forged, and she was the hammer--in this way did she honor the Omnissiah.

As her arm changed from a circular saw to a scalpel, she let out a whisper that reeked of devotion.

"Yes...a form holy in the eyes of the Blessed Lady of Machines."

And there, in the cool gloom of the underground, the sound of screaming mingled and mixed with the shriek of cutting tools, until they all became one.

'Well, this isn't the -worst- situation I've ever been in, but it's up there.'

Honoka Iwakura found herself crouched behind a low brick wall. She was in a quiet little town--somewhere in Europe, judging from the architecture--whose name she was too distracted to bother remembering. There was dust around her feet, sun in her eyes, and a blocky battle rifle in her fists.

She was also wearing state-of-the-art powered armor--courtesy of the Fourth--and surrounded by more firepower than she'd ever been.

The Vindicare started to slide the magazine out of her rifle to check its load, before realizing her visor's HUD already displayed the information. Crunching the box of bullets back home, she brought up a map of the local area, reviewing the layout and the marked heat signatures showing her were the enemies lay.

Fifteen humans, plus the heat-wash of a heavy engine--an IFV, from the looks of it. All of them arrayed in a semi-circle around the lone low wall that served as her cover, nestled in a scattering of brick houses two or three stories tall or hiding in the alleyways between them. Images from her recon drone told her she was up against trained, well-equipped professionals.

Not Magical Girls, or else she would have been cut to pieces already, but nor were they the undisciplined yakuza muscleheads with peashooters she was used to; they had military-grade body armor, assault rifles, iron discipline, and a goddamn armored vehicle. All she had on her was a battle rifle, some ammo, a sidearm, two of each of smoke grenades and frag grenades, and her armor. Those were the tools she'd been given to kill fifteen soldiers and an IFV. No magic allowed either, according to mission parameters.

Again, not the worst situation she'd ever been in—going up against a Witch with just a pistol won that one--but not the best, either.

A part of her wondered why she was even here. Back in Japan, her job was to provide long-range fire support or overwatch. None of this run 'n gun Rambo business. That sort of thing was for nutcases like the new Warmaster or Eversor wannabes--hers was the methodical elegance of the marksman. Long range, preferably somewhere up high with a nice view, one shot, one kill.

Alas, she thought, as she viciously racked the slide of her sidearm.

Putting the discouraging thoughts aside, Honoka's mind worked to formulate a plan. Her objective was to neutralize all hostiles in the mission area; given that she was outnumbered, she opted to divide and conquer.

'Smoke grenade it is,' she thought to herself. She unhooked the tube-shaped munition from her belt and tossed it up and down once, twice, trying to get a feel for the weight of the device while wearing her suit.

'Here goes.'

She tossed the grenade. It spun end over end through the air and landed with a clink in the dirt in front of the IFV. Honoka crouched back down before someone could draw a bead on her, and tensed, ready to sprint.

There was a distinct pop as the smoke grenade went off. She waited a few seconds for the smoke to spread, and then it was time to move.

She dashed out of cover, hurtling towards a ruin of a shack, her feet and the bullets of enemy fire kicking up dust as she went. Her own speed, enhanced as it was by her 'Maximus' armor, almost made her stumble and pause in shock. Her magical nature meant she was already faster than most Olympic athletes, but this...she felt like she'd reached the shack in the blink of an eye. She'd moved so fast she almost crashed into the building's wall, just barely managing to come to a skidding halt in time. Before she could fully wrap her mind around her newfound speed, shouts from the opposing soldiers kept her focused on the situation.

Her recon drone drifted momentarily out of cover. It sent its sensor feed back to her visor, rebuilding the tactical map she'd been looking at before.

Already the soldiers were displacing, waving to one another with hand-signs. She'd have to move soon, she realized, or they were going to flank her. Noting a weakness in their deployment on the tactical map, she dashed out of cover once more, towards the blasted remains of a two-story house.

A window shattered, demolished, as Honoka dove through it. Even as a Magical Girl such a maneuver would have left her with deep albeit inconsequential scratches, but her new armor could easily resist several hits from a rifle. The only thing she felt was the light impact of the floor as she rolled into a prone position, aiming with her rifle as she did.

Target, fifteen feet to the right: a tall, muscular man with a red crosshair painted over his face by her visor. A targeting laser on her weapon told her where to aim, and Honoka complied without hesitation.

She squeezed the trigger. A burst of fire from her rifle smashed through the soldier's helmet and face, throwing him to the floor. Another man landed in her sights and she dropped him, too. A third appeared, his assault rifle roaring, and Honoka rolled to her left avoid the oncoming hail of death, the weather-beaten lamp table behind her shredding into splinters. A stray bullet smacked into her right shoulder guard--grunting at what felt like hard punch into her flesh--and it sparked as it left a dent in her armor.

Honoka had dived into a small hallway, one that connected a set of stairs to the living room on the first floor. There was no cover to be found, nothing to put between herself and the third soldier save backing further away towards the stairway. Rolling into a sitting position with her rifle readied, she scrambled backwards while laying down shots of her own, hoping to keep her foe's head down and buy her space to get into cover. As it turned out, however, what was meant to be a potshot became a kill shot, as she instinctively followed her armor's aiming software and landed a clean hit on the man's neck. He crumpled to the floor in a boneless heap.

Silence. Silence punctuated only by the growl of her armor joints.

As quickly as it had begun, it had ended. Honoka sat still, recovering from the unfamiliar rush of power-armored combat. Though the sounds of boots stamping and an engine roaring started to cut their way into the dusty little house, the red-haired Vindicare only noticed the sound of her pounding, beating heart.

She let out the breath she'd been holding.

Her recon drone blipped and alerted her of twelve humanoid heat-signatures and one vehicle signature moving towards her position. Groaning, Honoka stood up, the dust that had layered the floor wafting from her armor, and as she walked up the stairway to the second floor she considered her next move.

Outnumbered as she was thirteen to one, none of the options she could think of made her particularly happy.

By then, the twelve remaining soldiers had closed in. Dividing themselves into three squads of four, each man covered another as they moved in lock-step discipline, from building to building and cover to cover. One squad in particular reached the house she was in, and Honoka had no desire to be on the receiving end of a professional breach-and-entry.

Letting her visor's targeting systems do the heavy lifting--she was already starting to rely on its aiming systems--Honoka popped off a shot that badly winged a soldier from the other squads, sending the rest his squadmates scurrying for cover. Then she sprinted away from the window to another one, one she knew was directly above the back door the breaching squad was about to use, and leapt, getting the drop on them.

Literally.

The four had stacked up along the wall near the door, all of them to the door's right: the classic pattern for a safe, methodical breach. As she fell, she landed heavily on the rearmost soldier, then slung out her rifle and emptied her magazine into the rest.

Bodies jerked and twitched as rifle rounds tore them to pieces. One managed to let off a wild burst, a reflex twitch from a dying finger. A glance under her told Honoka the fourth soldier didn't survive having a heavily armored Magical Girl land on top of him.

Nine more to go.

There was no time to waste--she could already hear the sound of eight pairs of boots trampling the earth. Sending her recon drone out to scout out the incoming enemy, she jammed the spent magazine into a pocket and slammed a new one home. The Vindicare was sliding the charging handle, loading a fresh round into the rifle chamber, when an alert went off in her visor.

<Warning. Enemy detected.>

Crosshairs painted the pair of gunmen that were flanking her. They were leaning around the corner of the house, using the wall as cover, one man crouched and the other man standing. Twin barrels leveled their black gaze, promising a storm of metal that would tear her apart even through her armor, or at least cripple her enough to be easily finished off.

'Shit they're fast--'

Honoka threw herself to the right, back into the house she'd reaved clean of life. Most of the shots went wide, but a few left dents on the armor guarding her ribs.

Her mind raced as she picked herself back off the floor. There had been only two men firing, but she heard much more than just two pairs of boots. No doubt the other six were here; Honoka guessed the rest stayed back to give the first two soldiers a clear shot at her, maybe even left a few on the other side of the building to keep her from escaping.

This, mused Honoka, was why she hated taking on professionals.

She switched to her audio-trackers, trying to pinpoint enemy locations by sound. Vibrations from their footsteps told her they were stacking up on the door. Given their hesitation in entering, she guessed one of them was priming a grenade.

Her mind was racing. Viable options were rapidly decreasing. If she charged out the door, they'd pump her full of lead. If she stayed, the grenade would surely at least stun her, armor or no, maybe even blow her to pieces. If she retreated further into the house, she had no doubts the soldiers at the back of the house would move in, cutting her off and bringing her back to square one..

What do I do? She thought. What do I do? What do I do?

-What do I do?-

Instinct decided for her. Vindicare training, beaten into her over the course of four brutal years of killing gangsters and Witches alike, sent her blurring into action. She tore a frag grenade from her pouch and tossed it out the door. Its pin remained unremoved--the grenade was just a decoy, to get the soldiers to hesitate while she made a run for the stairs.

She got to the very top when the air behind her was torn apart by a swarm of bullets. Armor enhancements meant she was too fast to be in the line of fire for long, but she felt a round glance off the back of her helmet.

There was nothing for it. She couldn't hold the second floor by herself, not with eight heavily-armed veterans coming after her. In yet another bout of defenestration, Honoka leapt out of a second-story window.

There was a brief, fleeting moment, one stretched out into an eternity by the adrenaline flooding her veins, when she felt like she was flying.

Then the dusty earth smashed into her like an oncoming tank.

Haste had diminished her control over her armor. She'd leapt too hard, too far out. Her shock at how far she'd jumped meant she smashed into the ground, driving the breath out of her lungs. She was coughing, gasping, struggling for air when her visor beeped out a warning.

<Alert. Vehicle-class heat signature detected.>

Sputtering, she looked up. She realized she had precisely one second.

Precisely one second to realize there was an IFV parked not forty feet away from her. One second to realize its light cannon had been aimed at the two-story house she'd been in, and now it had finished drawn a bead on her. One long, painful second to realize that she was going to die, and there was nothing she could do about it.

(11/11)
It was quick, at least. Her shiny new armor, fresh from the forges of the Fourth Officio, could withstand multiple impacts from a rifle at close range, and against sidearms she was practically invulnerable. It made her faster and stronger, beyond the magical enhancements already bestowed upon her by an alien race beyond human comprehension, and it came with a suite of auxiliary systems that was the dream of any soldier.

But against an autocannon that could murder armored vehicles, she might as well have been naked.

The first round pulverized her torso, the second tore away her hip. Those wounds alone would have killed her in less than a minute, even with her magically enhanced body, but the third, fourth, fifth, and sixth ensured she wasn't going to survive the next second.

After the seventh, the IFV went still, and a dead calm took hold over the battlefield.

Her severed hand, laying palm-up on a pile of broken glass, twitched once, twice, then went still as its dying nerves spasmed one last time in death-throes. Dry earth drank in the blood spilling from her ruptured corpse until it became wine-dark. The soldiers, as unceremonious as Honoka's demise, approached the shredded body and confirmed their kill before moving off.

And then the simulation ended.

Chapter IV END

I am probably several years late to this, but I recently realized Kyuu is 9 in japanese and Juu is 10, Kyuubey being the 9th in this and Juubey from Kazumi being the 10th I assume, do all the other incubators follow this naming scheme?

This is a very good question, actually. Malal has, to my recollection, been headhunted for the First, but held no interest whatsoever.

Not sure about Vintage's equerry - probably nobody that's still around.

Almost all of them, at least, have names related to the number of their Officio. You might argue that adopting something like that is what passes for Incubator humor.

Steppin' in for the 'official' answer to this one before we fall off the board.

Using the number-naming is traditional among the incubators, so those that pick other names are considered the out-liers.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE FALL OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 08/23/14(Sat)10:45:18 No.34340893

You try to speak. It's...it's an ordeal, with bile and blood and something foul clogging your throat, filling your mouth. After a couple of false starts where you end up hacking and coughing and retching another wave of half-clotted, acidic blood down your front - painting your costume a lovely shade of lumpy, diseased crimson that spoke of some sick, inner corruption - you finally manage to drag a breath deep enough to actually speak.

"...I'm not...going to kill you..." You rasp at the pink-haired demon mere inches from your face, your voice sounding weaker and more desperate than you've ever heard it before.

"Homura-chan, you're throwing up chunks of your liver." Pinky giggles. "You can't even kill a double of whisky in the state you're in."

You shake your head, gritting your teeth as the motion causes you enough nausea to induce another wave of blood puke. You force it back down, just as you force yourself to speak again.

"I'm...going to help...you."

>>34340893

Silence. Pure, stark, deafening silence rings in your ears, choking off all other sound as Pinky's smile vanishes like the last light of a late sunset.

"'Help' me?" The corrupted goddess in the cheerleader outfit whispers. "I don't believe I heard you correctly, Homura-chan. You want...you want to 'help' me? Did I get that right?"

Dragging yourself up against the back rest of your throne, you force a nod in reply. Pinky's eyes go wide here, the disgusting-glossy orbs of pure black rolling in their sockets, before focusing on you.

"That makes it all right, then, doesn't it?" She smiles, giggling once more as she pulls back away from you to pace back and forth, gesticulating with her blood-encrusted hands. "Homura-chan's going to help me, after all! Help implies a positive, beneficial action for all parties concerned, heading towards a favorable goal!" She stops momentarily to flash you a toothy grin, before pacing again.

"Why, I should reward Homura-chan for being so thoughtful and so kind, seeing as she's going out of her way to help me! It's not like things turned out really horribly, super terribly wrong when Homura-chan tried it the last time, right?"

She stops again, eyes wide as she smacks a fist to her palm, sudden revelation dawning on her features. "Oh, wait! Silly me - they totally did!"

You open your mouth to reply - to explain about what you plan to do, to tell her what you know - but before you could even draw in a single breath, Pinky is already in your face, eyes blazing with the sick unlight of souls being tortured for eternity. Roaring her hate out at you, her breath filling your nostrils of the chokingly-sweet scent of decaying carrion.

"YOU WANTING TO FUCKING HELP TURNED ME INTO THIS, HOMURA-CHAN!" The insane goddess snarls as she grabs you by the shoulders, her thumbs stabbing deep into your flesh, twisting, turning, digging right into your chest, subjecting you to yet another body-wracking, teeth-cracking world of fresh agony. "YOU WANTING TO HELP FUCKED EVERYTHING UP FOR EVERYONE! MAMI! KYOKO! SAYAKA-CHAN! AND NOW YOU WANT TO HELP ME AGAIN?!" She cackles here. "YOU REALLY DON'T WANT ANYONE BUT YOU TO BE HAPPY, DO YOU, HOMURA-CHAN!"

N-no, no, that's not true, that's--

"You couldn't leave things well enough alone, Homura-chan. You didn't listen to anyone, you didn't give a single FUCK about the consequences." Pinky growls this at you with all the menace of a leopard moments from tearing your throat out with one snap of its jaws. "And you called it 'helping' me. You called it 'rescuing' me. You didn't care. You just thought about yourself."

She pulls away from you again, her clawed fingers coming away with a fresh coat of blood. Your blood. "I want...I want you to think very carefully about what you just said, Homura-chan. I want you to think about what you're planning to do, whatever those things inside that gun of yours told you." Pinky turns her back on you, and you can see from her heaving shoulders that she's trying to calm herself down, each deep breath whistling through her mouthful of sharp teeth. "Because if I find out that you're screwing up things for everyone again..."

"...Everyone you love dies slow. And you'll be watching, right up to the moment where I kill you for real."

And, once again, some inner switch inside her flips - and the eldritchian horror winks at you, all smiles again. "So, if you don't want that to happen, just do as I say and keep getting those Golden Weapons! The next one's like, really really close, you know! So close I can just taste it!" She poses here, throwing up double peace signs and letting her blood-pinked tongue loll out of her mouth. "Like this, get it? Ahahaha~!"

Your only viable response as of this moment is to wheeze a pink mist from your punctured lungs.

"Oops! Homura-chan can't talk if she can't breathe, can she?" Pinky hops forward onto your lap again, before slamming the heel of her hand into your sternum. Something shifts inside your chest, something worm-like and barbed - and with a burning stab of agony, the holes she'd poked into your chest fills out and disappears, as if they never were. "Now, does Homura-chan have any questions to ask or even confessions she'd like to make before I leave? I promise I won't get mad! Pinky Promiiiise!"

I suppose I can see where you're coming from. I don't think telling her about TNO is a bad idea, I'd just rather give her some time to get comfortable with the idea of us being "on her side" before dropping that particular bit of information.

Well, I don't think either one is a particularly bad choice, it's just a personal preference on how and when to proceed.

Pretty much. Theres another goddess level entity out there. She is the one who fucked Pinky bad. Pinky thinks WE are the one who fucked her.

And since we did not TELL HER ABOUT THE OTHER GODDESS, Pinky will almost certainly blame us for anything else Homucifer will do aswell.

Ohwell, lets look at the bright side, atleast now we have an alarm system of sorts. When Wendy and Midori both suddenly die horribly, we know Homucifer has done something. We don't know what, but we know she has done something that upset Pinky. Who naturally thought it was us.

This is a fairly clear reference to Rebellion. Pinky's angry that Homucifer's interference made her literally fall from grace.

So, like the other anon said, it's nothing that Chiaki did, but what "a Homura did".

However, you're right in one aspect: Chiaki's nature is controlling, same as Homucifer. By always burdening herself with all the responsibility and trying to help, Chiaki is pretty much falling into the same pattern that Homucifer did.

I'm kind of amused how anon manages to maintain her in character to her nature despite everything else.

Now, if you subscribe to the theory that Chiaki is actually an amnesiac Homucifer, then things start to get downright creepy...

It's more of the fact that Homura falls into the standard player controlled character role. Players don't want to trust NPC to do anything because it risks it either going wrong or the death of an NPC they like.

Personally I wanted to just tell her about Homucifer. I did not even mention the "help" part in my vote in the previous thread.

What really annoys me is that we said the help part, but did NOT mention Homucifer, meaning we suffered for no reason. This was all so completely pointless.

Telling Pinky about Homucifer would have been beneficial. It would have warned Pinky about a potential threat, and helped her see us as more of an ally while also letting her know that it was Homucifer who messed her up.

Telling Pinky that we want to "help her", but not telling her HOW we plan to help her (by killing the Transcendent One, who is really to blame) obviously pissed her off, since she has no idea what our "help" is going to include, because we did not tell her that part, despite being the MOST IMPORTANT part.

Ahwell. Whats done is done.

So no. You don't have anything else to say.

"Mmm? Really, really? Homura-chan doesn't have anything else for me?" Pinky grins as she squirms on your lap, before frowning. "Well, I guess I did go overboard there, huh...sorry, Homura-chan! You know how it is, being crazy and everything!" She knuckles her forehead just as she contorts her face into the stuck-out tongue-and-eyewink combo. "Tehe!"

"Alright, that's enough hanky-panky for today!" Pinky hops off of your lap, landing on both feet before twirling to face you, her twintails swaying with her movement. "I'll leave you to enjoy the rest of your party, Homura-chan, just don't forget what we talked about, alright?"

Y-yeah. Yeah, you won't.

"Okay! I'll be checking up on you again real soon, to make sure you don't miss me too much!" She poses here, arms held out on either side of her - before bringing her hands together and making a heart sign with her fingers. "PINKY FLASH!"

The combined screams of a thousand blind men drowning all at once bubbles in your ears, loud and long enough that when time finally resumes again - your Shield clicking back into its original position - you can still hear the echoes ringing in your mind.

You shake your head, leaning back on your throne as you drag in a shuddering breath. Christ. That...that was too close. Way too close--

Midori is already super involved since Siberia. We just have to make sure the both of us are on the same page so neither of us can get blind-sided.

We've been putting off this conversation for way too long and I'd be happy if we could get it done with now that we're officially ratified.

A conversation in private, after the ceremony, sounds like a good way to finally talk about Siberia and bring Midori up to speed on things too.

We might want to apologize for the three stooges for getting all of us tortured.

Though something tells me the physical torture was probably minor to them, compared to finally seeing Pinky through Chiakis eyes and the psychological horror of seeing what Madoka has become.

There is.

The class you're given is largely just based on the powers you get and the weapon you're given, which is determined largely by your personality and your wish. The class you get affects which training you get.

The training turns you into the class, it's not really inherent in the contract.

The classes don't appear to be really strict about who is what, at least not in the ninth. It's all about turning you into the best meguca you can be, and where you feel most comfortable.

Mami (and to a lesser extent Murderface) exemply the Vindicares, and Sayaka, Kyoko and Kirika evemplify the Eversors.

It was indeed something of a "mistake" to offer to help Pinky, but it was a mistake Homura would have made. She has relied on herself and her own iron determination to save Madoka across countless turns of the shield, becoming ever more driven and self-reliant along the way. And at every turn she fails, with her monomaniacal focus inevitably screwing things up sooner or later. Having Pinky lay into her for that might be a long term benefit, though, since it is also an invitation to examine that mistake and learn from it.

I think thematically we are doomed if Chiaki does not learn from Homura's failure. The hero being brought low by a tragic flaw despite their incredible efforts has been a staple of drama since drama was invented. And Chiaki's (and /tg/'s) need to control and direct everyone to finally reach the happy ending is a major character flaw.

So we should consider doing something completely different. Chiaki can't protect everyone on her own. She can't save everyone. In fact she can't save anyone, even herself. Only by working together and by trusting others to save themselves is it possible that a happy ending might emerge. And yet bringing in Chiaki's loved ones and friends puts them into severe danger too; she has to trust their judgement and their capabilities and accept that she can't assure a positive outcome.

And to trust is to open the way for betrayal. But doing the same thing over and over again is the definition of insanity, isn't it?

Confiding in Midori is so self-evidently a good idea I don't think it needs much discussion. She's in extreme danger anyway but we can hardly scare her away now. And maybe Miracle Midori can pull another miracle out of her hat, just perhaps?

Sayaka and Kyouko have earned Chiaki's trust on a personal level. Mami and even Kyubey have been instrumental to her rise, and Wendy was beloved of her once. There's always a risk of betrayal, especially in Noir, but playing safe isn't going to win this thing.

You'll tell her later, you murmur quietly, forcing your pained grimace into something approaching a reassuring smile. Wincing again as you feel your facial muscles awkwardly trying to shift themselves into new and completely unfamiliar territory.

This doesn't seem to convince Midori at all - if anything, her expression of concern deepens, even teetering on the edge of panic. To her credit, however, she immediately catches on to you wanting to be discreet about it - the Callidus leaning forward to push the spoon nearer your lips as she lowers her own voice into a whisper. "Is...is it her again, sempai? Did she visit you?"

You open your mouth to accept the spoonful of food, closing it as you nod. Either your encounter with Pinky drained you to the point that you can't even taste flavors - this particular mouthful tasting much like mushy cardboard - or the caterers managed to fuck up something as simple as buffet fare.

...Wait. How did she know? Your Time Stop--

"You blurred just a bit, earlier, sempai." Midori whispers back. "Just...for a moment. I doubt anyone who wasn't looking at you closely would've seen it. I thought I was just imagining it myself, until you came back looking really...sick." She immediately offers you another spoonful of food, and a glass of cold soda to wash it all down. "Get something inside you, sempai, even if it doesn't taste all that good. You'll feel better with something in your stomach, and if worst comes to worst, you'll have something to throw up instead of dry-retching all night."

...Yeah. Yeah, that makes sense.

"Do you want me to call a Venenum over?" She asks after you force down the fifth mouthful. "I can just--"

No, you shake your head. No Venenum. Not right now. You don't want to be the first Warmaster to need medical attention during her ratification. That's...that's just embarrassing all around.

"..." Midori frowns here, before pushing another spoonful of food towards you. "I don't mean to offend, sempai, but you can really be stupid sometimes, sempai, you know that?"

So you've heard, you tell her, managing a genuine smile after you swallow your tenth mouthful of food - the grub settling nicely in your stomach and making you feel a bit less like dying. That's you in a nutshell. Really stupid sometimes. Or most of the time.

Midori frowns again, but her expression softens as she reaches forward to place her hand on top of yours to give it a squeeze. "We'll talk later after all this, alright, sempai? You promise, right?"

Yeah. You promise.

A flashbulb setting off beside your table makes both you and Midori turn towards its source - and you see both Kyoko and Sayaka lowering their smartphones, smug smiles on their faces.

"So bold, Murderface, to be this romantic during your own ratification," Sayaka sneers. "Planning to go official NOW, huh? Should've known you were planning to announce it at the same time that everyone's here. Much more dramatic that way, right?"

...What. It's your turn to frown, as Midori hunkers down, blushing an absolute crimson. You weren't planning to announce anything! You're just eating together, that's all! For fuck's sake--

"Yeah, yeah." Sayaka scoffs, and it's here that the lights in the assembly hall start to turn down, making the seated diners making up your Officio buzz with conversation. "...Oh, looks like it's time for the idol show to start! I wonder who they got?"

...Please don't be Ruri, you find yourself praying as you accept another spoonful of food, a spotlight from above cracking into life and focusing on an empty spot on the hall floor, where a microphone stand had been set up.

The idol that steps into the spotlight is...familiar, but it's not Ruri. Nor is it Iori.

From her long silver hair teased up into an elegant coiffure and her tall, slender frame wrapped in an elegant black silk dress with the shoulder-length gloves to match - it's none other than Shijou Takane, the idol who you encountered during the Kilgore op and also the idol who politely asked you to leave Iori alone. The spotlight making the crystal necklace around her ivory neck gleam and glitter almost hypnotically.

"Good evening, everyone. My name is Shijou Takane, of 765 Productions. I will be your idol for tonight." Her smile is as soft and as mysterious as it was back then, when you first met her. "Please allow me to sing my set, and after that I'll be open for requests. Just no Death Metal songs, please, I fear I've strained my throat after accepting too many of them the last time I was here." Laughter ensues as she gives the audience a wink.

"And now, to celebrate the ratification of Warmaster Chiaki Matsuda..." Takane turns with a slow, elegant grace towards you, reaching out with a gloved hand. "May I sing a song that a colleague of mine requested especially to sing for you?"

You blink as the spotlight slides over to you - and all too quickly, you nod while shielding your eyes. Fuck, that was aimed right at your fucking face!

"Thank you." Takane smiles again, and she begins to sing into the microphone just as the music starts to play. You frown as you recognize the melody even before the idol sings the first verse.

...A Magical Girl's First Wish, huh?

Fucking idols. Seriously.

Still, after just what you've been through, it's...sort of nice to hear, you guess. A sign that you're back in the real world, and not trapped in your Time Stop with a homicidal eldritchian horror.

The song ends at the last verse, and the audience readily applauds Takane's performance. Midori enthusiastically claps as well, while you manage a miserable smacking of the heels of your hand. ...Fuck you still feel weak as shit. Pinky really did a number on you.

Just as the second song starts, though, it's here that you notice something on the table in front of you.

It's...it's a fat little bird. Some kind of a raven. Completely black, its eyes a pure, bright red. It would've looked evil as fuck, if not for the fact that it's fat enough to be almost spherical.

And it's looking at you with...well, intelligence. There's no other word for it. Not the blank, hunger-driven look that all animals tend to get, but with something approaching an almost human sentience.

>>Bittersweet endings are god tier.

I generally agree, but given the background here, that Chiaki is a Homura, I'd like for her and Midori to finally have a happy ending... I think it would be "god tier" in this case, at least for me.

>>34342895

I think this is the best, yes. I don't want Chiaki to break character, but I do think she has it in her to actually achieve a happy ending. She might not be the sharpest tool in the shed, but she's not dumb either. She learns from her mistakes (and then makes new ones), and I think with some subtle character development she could go all the way and achieve what none of the other Homus could.

A story that I enjoy reading and one that Chiaki and Midori have a happy ending are exactly the same for me, so it's what I'll try to vote for, generally.

You look around. It doesn't seem like anyone else has noticed the fat little demonic bird - Midori's turned in her seat to face Takane directly, completely enraptured by the idol's performance. Sayaka and Kyoko are similarly occupied, with your Equerry swaying slightly as she mouths the lyrics perfectly while your best friend continues to shovel food into her mouth.

At least they won't see you try and talk to a bird, then. There's some consolation in that, you find.

Shaking your head, you slowly reach out with a hand, offering the fat little bird your index finger. For a moment, you wonder if it'd get the wrong message and peck you instead - but it seems to understand just what you were going for, the tiny raptor hopping up to perch itself onto your finger. Its bright red eyes darting around madly before rooting underneath a stubby little wing with its stubby little beak.

You look around again, checking once more to see if anyone's noticed. ...Nope, everyone's eyes seem to be rooted at Takane, so no chance of that there. Shaking your head, it's here that you bring the thing up to face level - making sure to hold away far enough to prevent it from pecking your eyes out through your glasses.

"The fuck are you?" You murmur at it, suddenly feeling stupid for talking to a goddamn bird. ...Christ, if it talks like an incubator, you're going to stab it with your fork, no doubt about it. Cats are bad enough, but creepy shit like this--

+ Creepy? I beg to differ. Reginald has a very royal bearing. + A refined, feminine voice sneaks its way into your mind, very nearly making you drop the fucking thing on the table. + But I realize that not many share my tastes, so I'll let that go, Warmaster. +

...What? What the fuck? Is...is the bird actually fucking talking to you? Is it an Incubator all along? You fumble for a fork to stab it with. Fuck, fuck--

+ ...Please relax. Reginald isn't talking to you, I am. + The voice is...well, it's not like an Incubator at all, where it interrupts your thoughts to be heard - if anything, it's remarkably similar to how the three stooges talk to you, sliding in between thoughts to make themselves understood. + Reginald does not have the ability to speak. Not yet, anyway. He does have an encyclopedic knowledge of insults, however. +

Really? Well...that doesn't really help things much. Stranger things have happened, though, so you'll probably skip on freaking out at the moment.

You glance around you and then into the audience, hoping to catch someone staring at you meaningfully - but it's too dark to tell, and everyone is pretty much looking at your direction, seeing as Takane is performing in front of you.

+ That will do just fine, Warmaster Matsuda. Your keeping calm is mutually beneficial to both our interests.+

Even if you can't see who's talking to you, you'd bet any money that they were smiling right now. It sounds like it, anyway.

+ Now, I realize I haven't introduced myself yet, but I assure you I'm on your side. That said, may I ask you to excuse yourself and step out in the corridors for a brief smoke, after Takane-san has finished her current song? I'd much rather talk to you in private, away from...+ The voice pauses here, as if hesitating. +...certain personalities who I'd rather not have to deal with at the moment. And please bring Reginald with you. Don't worry, I won't take up too much of your time. +

Huh. So apparently you're being asked by someone mysterious for a smoke break outside.

How do you react?

As >>34344342 pointed out, we can already do telepathic communication, but only with Midori because their Soul Gems are linked.

We can also use that link to immediately pin-point Midori's location at any given moment, or to take control over her body too (not sure if it's a swap or not, Kyubey wasn't too specific)

I think being a Culexus has something to do with making a selfless wish?

In which case Kyoko's wish was... partly selfless (assuming she made the same one in this timeline, which she might not have) so maybe she has some small amount of potential?

Fine. You'll...do what this person tells you to, for now. But you have to know who they are first, and why they want to talk to you face to face. You're already talking anyway, so why go to all the trouble?

+ Because there are some things that need to be talked about in person, Warmaster Matsuda. Important things, things that need their importance stressed and emphasized by direct communication. + The voice pauses here. + And if you must really know in advance, then I am Karasawa Vintage. Former Warmaster of the Ninth, preceding the Betrayer. Now Equerry of the Warmaster of the First. +

Huh. That's...well. Sayaka did say that Vintage would want to talk to you sometime during your ratification, but you were expecting something more...relaxed, and less cloak-and-dagger.

+ Trust me, I know this looks a certain way, but it's best all around if we keep things discreet. The less controversy we cause being seen talking to each other, the less paperwork we'll both have to deal with. I know how these things go, Warmaster Matsuda. After all, I've accepted the burden of that damnable hat, too."

...She's got a point, there.

Right, then. You'll be outside to meet her, as soon as Takane finishes her song.

+ I'll be waiting, Warmaster Matsuda. Try not to attract too much attention on your way out. + The voice immediately fades to silence after that, and the fat little raven hops off of your finger and onto the table - industriously pecking at some loose grains of rice on your plate. You shake your head again, wondering just what else kind of shit the day has in store for you. First Wendy, then Misaka, THEN Pinky...and now, a former Warmaster of the same Officio you're now leading? What next?

Anyway. As soon as Takane's sung the last bar - and opened the floor to requests, immediately wincing at the yells of 'FREEBIRD' - you get up to meet Vintage outside, using the convenient excuse of a smoke break when both Sayaka and Midori asked about where you were going. Reginald, the clever little bugger, had hopped up onto your shoulder, burrowing itself into the mass of thick hair covering your neck and back.

This seemed to satisfy the two, although Midori seemed rather suspicious. Nevertheless, they let you go, and the moment you step outside - the double doors automatically closing behind you - it's here that you see the only two other people in the corridor itself. Both of them looking rather short, with the other only a couple of inches higher than the other.

You recognize one of them as your own Vindicare Rank Leader, Rea Ashford, in her own formal dress uniform and what looks like a military cap with...cat ears? The other figure, the slightly-taller one with black hair, is decidedly less formally-dressed - a black cape worn over a red silk kimono, with a rather pretty floral print pattern. The cape is clasped at the unfamiliar girl's throat with a golden eagle brooch, with the Roman numeral I embossed on its frame. Beside the brooch is a character pin - and you blink as you recognize the character itself as none other than Murder Mayumi, scowling at the viewer, with an MM x MM logo plastered in the empty air by her ear.

Is...is that Vintage? It can't be her, she looks younger than you. She's even shorter than you, for fuck's sake.

But there's no one else around, and she said to meet you here, so--

"Reginald!" The unfamiliar visitor calls as soon as you approach - and just like that, the fat little crow explodes out from your hair to fling itself right into the kimono-clad girl's outstretched hand. What was surprising - and creepy - was that Reginald didn't exactly fly like birds do. It didn't even so much as flap its stubby little wings.

It just barreled through the air straight like some sort of bullet or projectile. You could have sworn you heard a tiny sonic boom right then, too.

"Who's a good boy? Who is? You are, Reginald! Yes, you!" Vintage coos at the otherwise irate-looking ball of feathers perched upon her hand. "You'll get some treats later, I promise!"

...So. She IS Vintage, then. Yep, this day can't get any fucking weirder.

"Ah, Warmaster Matsuda. Thank you for indulging an old lady her foolish wishes." Vintage smiles at you as you approach, Reginald quickly hopping up to her shoulder as she offers you a handshake. "Ashford, you may go. I think we'll be alright. Give my regards to the rest of the rank, will you?"

"..." Rea merely nods at this, stiffly saluting the both of you before walking off towards the entrance to the assembly hall. You watch as Vintage smiles fondly after the Vindicare Rank Leader - and it's here that you also notice her leaning upon a cane for support, gripping its brass top with her own free hand.

"Never a day goes by when I don't miss this place. Or the camaraderie of being in an actual squad." She lets out a wistful sigh, before turning back to you. "It's never the same, you know? Even if you insist on being a member of a squad, to join them on missions. Once they see you with the hat on, it's all they see. They don't see a dependable squad member, they see...a, a rupert. A VIP. Someone who'll order them around, tell them what to do, instead of someone to rely upon in a pinch."

...Huh. Well. That sounds bad.

There's always something worse." It's here that her refined way of speaking gives way to something rougher, less...disciplined. "Fucking paperwork. Yes, I don't know why I forgot about it. You never do." She shakes her head again, grumbling as she slots a cigarette into her holder. A moment later, and she looks up at you, blinking. "Oh, sorry! I keep forgetting that there are other people than me who smoke down here!"

She holds out a pack of opened cigarettes to you. "Please, feel free. I haven't been down here for the longest time, so there are some habits I need to relearn. Like social cues. And gravity."

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE FALL OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 09/05/14(Fri)10:10:05 No.34645041

You take a stick from the proferred pack, murmuring thanks the very same moment you light up with a metallic snap of your inventory-drawn zippo. The calming effect of the nicotine immediately helping to settle your nerves, wracked as they've become after your encounter with Pinky. ...Christ, she really did a number on you there, didn't she. You won't be sleeping well tonight, that much you know.

"You needed that, huh? I can tell." Vintage remarks as she takes a pull from her own cigarette, her lips pursing delicately over the mouthpiece of her slim black pipette. Her dainty fingers holding the fragile-looking stalk of ebony between them with an almost mesmerizing grace. "Abysmally filthy habit, really, but one that all Warmasters pick up sooner or later, considering how stressful it is being chosen to wear the hat. It's stressful enough that people just...well, go crazy. Or Witch Out. Or both."

She turns to the side to blow the smoke away from you - a gesture that you would've probably called her out on for being unnecessarily polite, if you hadn't recognized it first as one made out of pure reflex. Most likely borne from smoking in the company of militant non-smokers, the sort that would wrinkle their nose or press a handkerchief to their face the moment you lit up. The very picture of sphincter-clenching, white-knuckled, squinty-eyed passive-aggression.

>> ☐ Deculture 09/05/14(Fri)10:12:09 No.34645069

>>34645041

...That's actually sad, when you think about it. The Equerry of the most powerful Officio in the world, powerful enough to warrant an actual fucking moonbase - and she can't even smoke without having to care where the smoke ends up? You'd think she'd be able to at least indulge herself freely without being guilted into being considerate.

...Jesus. Is that what's going to happen to you? Christ, not like you didn't have enough reasons to hate this job already.

"Alcohol's a nice enough poison to kill your sorrows with, I'll grant you." Vintage inhales another mouthful of smoke, before gesturing towards you with the willowy stalk of her cigarette holder. "But seeing as you need to keep up appearances for the rest of your Officio, and that never stops even when you're behind closed doors, well..." The Equerry shakes her head. "You dry out sooner than later. And then you'll really wish that you never got that promotion."

Vintage opens her mouth to talk again, before seemingly coming to the realization that she'd been the only one talking ever since she offered you a cigarette. "...Listen to me, will you?" She shakes her head mournfully, the motion dislodging Reginald from its perch on her scalp, the nearly-spherical raptor squawking in derision. "We haven't even finished sharing a single cigarette together and already I'm bending your ear with things you probably already know, or just about to."

An apologetic smile curls the Equerry's lips as she takes yet another deep pull. "I apologize. It's the whole...being away from actual human company for too long, again. It takes me a few days to relearn everything."

The shorter Magical Girl lets out the smoke she'd inhaled in a sigh, before looking up at you again. The smile returning to her face. "...Everything, including the bit where I realize that you've been patiently waiting for me to get to the point. Why I called you out here, tearing you away from your party."

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST

>>34645069

You nod, confirming her suspicions. ...Yeah, you've been waiting for her, sure.

"Well, we'll get to that soon enough. Just give me a bit more time to savor this moment...feel the old stomping ground underneath my feet again." Another smile, this time much more genuine than her last one. "There's nothing like it, you know. Nothing like it at all."

Like what?

"Being home."

...Ah. Well, Sayaka did say she was a former Warmaster, so...yeah. The nostalgia's probably getting to her. That's understandable, you suppose.

You wonder if you'll ever live long enough to be able to do the same thing.

And then, apropos of nothing, she tugs on your sleeve, once - before hobbling forward on her cane. Making her way towards the elevators in a slow, leisurely walk. "Come on. Show me around, Warmaster. I want to see what's changed from the last time I dropped by."

...What? So you're a tour guide now? But your ratification--

"We'll be back in time for everything that should occur TO occur, Warmaster, I promise you that. Takane-san has a special talent of being able to keep everyone occupied for hours." She continues to hobble down the corridor, leaving you behind. "She does a very rousing beatbox, you know."

Beatboxing? What? Since when did idols beatboxed? ...Wait, you're getting left behind!

What do you do?

Maybe we can get some Warmastering advice. She used to be Warmaster of the Ninth, and was good enough to be promoted to Equerry of the First.

Christ, is being a member of any Earthbound Officio like being a viola player to the First's violinist section?

...Fine. You decide to play along for now. After all, it's not everyday that you get to play tour guide for someone who's not only a former Warmaster of your own Officio, but also someone who managed a high-ranking position in The First. Who knows, maybe you'll even learn something along the way, a cheap trick or two to make it easier on you, and the Officio you're going to try your best not to run into the fucking ground.

And so, with the Warmaster's Hat on your head and a half-spent cigarette on your lips, you give The Equerry of the First, Karasawa Vintage, a tour of the Ninth Officio Assassinorum Headquarters. Due to your ratification ceremony, the place is thankfully deserted, which meant that no one had to hear you mumble and stumble around some places that you've forgotten about, and places that you never even realized existed until Vintage herself directed you to them. Despite your obvious lackluster performance as an impromptu tour guide, the Equerry seems to be having fun, with affectionate sighs and gleeful giggling coming from her in equal measure whenever the both of you passed by something that sparked her interest.

And you learned why, too. She made sure you did. Like how one of the Silent Rooms - particularly the Silent Room beside the one where Midori had been held captive - was where Vintage had tortured her own share of prisoners, breaking them to the point of Witching Out and murdering them before they could complete the transformation.

Or how a particular equipment storage room in the Eversor Wing had been a popular makeout spot, not only for amorous Eversors, but for ALL ranks. This was because the storage itself had been a Silent Room previously - and while the machinery involved had been deactivated and stripped away from the room, it somehow obtained a few...peculiarities.

One of which was the ability to make anyone inside to effectively 'disappear' from hawk-eyed Rank Leaders eager to prevent any flagrant instance of fraternization.

"We even organized a schedule for it, for those of us in the know. To eliminate any chances of bursting in on someone unexpectedly and all that." Vintage smiles wistfully, her dainty fingers brushing upon the storage room's doorknob. "We got away with it for three years before a Vanus ratted us out. Three months of menial duty for that one."

...And what happened to the Vanus? You found yourself asking, after you scribble down the storage room's location on your journal. The one that ratted them out?

Vintage's only answer here is another smile, her eyes glittering darkly behind her glasses, before hobbling onward. You shake your head at this, before following suit, shoving your journal back into your inventory.

You could probably guess, anyway. From what you can remember from Mami and Kharn, the Officio wasn't as...clean-cut back then, when the system itself was still young. Not as regulated. Not as disciplined. Not as safe.

"I may as well ask, since I'm all but dragging you along this trip down memory lane." The Equerry of the First suddenly pipes up, acting as if she hadn't just left you hanging a moment earlier. "How are you holding up so far, as Warmaster? I realize it hasn't been long since you assumed the rank, but are you acclimatizing well to your duties?"

How do you respond?

During the interrogation in the Silent Room Midori claimed that she was in an accident and her wish was to heal her legs or something. But she also lied about her Family-name back then so it might have been a lie as well.

Especially since in the Siberia arc she implied that her wish was silly and that she would never tell Chiaki because she is afraid Chiaki would make fun of her.

[X] The Flesh
of Fallen Angels!

Here's how we win MGNQ:

We kill Vintage. The First will declare war on us, then we declare war on them. We make it look like an act of self-defense, leading to a schism between the Officios, leading to Officio War One. Chaos ensues around the world, and all the renegade meguca factions come out of hiding to take revenge while they can. War also ensures that every Officio will use their most powerful asset in order to win, bringing all the Golden Weapons out of hiding. If non-Officio megucas/non-megucas have some, then they'll be found and taken because they're powerful. Using Chiaki's ability/Pinky's help, we win, and we kill Pinky.

NOTHING CAN GO WRONG

The obvious counter to time stop that everyone as accomplished as Vintage is aware of is that you don't let her use the time stop.

It requires a fairly blatant gesture to use, giving anyone plenty of time, especially if you have already seen it once. That's not even touching on how Mami had dealt with it in Rebellion.

If that were the case, then the meguca in the First would not be in any way special, and it would only be the supertech of the first that would always save them.

The implication I have is that the warmaster of the first could just walk inside the ninth officio, and singlehandedly kill everyone, with nothing but her own skills.

But then, Homura could indeed have done just that when her timestop was fully working so I guess its plausible.

Acclimatizing well to your duties? You consider the question as you echo it quietly. Well, if she's talking about paperwork, then sure. You're acclimatizing the fuck out of your duties then. It's all you do, now. In fact, you can't wait for the ceremony to conclude, so you can get back to your office, sit your ass back down on your chair and do some more paperwork. Read, sign, stamp. Read, sign, stamp. Ad fucking nauseam. Paperwork, all day, every day. Until the sun goes out, until the stars themselves wink out of fucking existence--

"Alright, alright, you've made your point." Vintage chuckles. "Dear me, I never thought I'd find someone who hates paperwork as much as I do. Maybe even more, from the way you were snarling." She shakes her head as the both of you continue to make your way down one of the headquarters' many corridors.

There's a brief silence here, one filled with the sound of footsteps and the tap, tap, tap of a walking cane - before the Equerry of the First speaks again. "Paperwork is...well, I won't lie, it's one of the most distasteful things you'll ever do as Warmaster. It's tedious, it's boring, and when you get up off your seat at the end of the day you'll hear cracks and pops from places in your body that you never thought could crack and pop in such a manner."

She makes a face. "...But it's not unimportant work. It's as vital to the Officio as a good sword hand for an Eversor, or a clear line of sight for a Vindicare. Any Warmaster who forgets that quickly learns the hard way - and it's usually with their entire Officio ripped clean away from underneath them, before being folded into other, more well-managed Officios."

Vintage nods here. "Sometimes, paperwork can win wars just as easily as a well-placed shot from a vantage point a mile away."

...Huh. Really? Paperwork is THAT important? You figured it was, but not to that extent--

"No, of course it isn't." The kimono-clad Karasawa laughs. "That was an exaggeration."

You frown here. Then why the fuck--

"To make sure you're listening. You are, so that's good." Perched upon her shoulder, the fat raven - or crow, you forget which - named Reginald turns its head to stare at you with its beady crimson eyes. "Now, seriously this time, paperwork is important to the Officio. It's important that the Warmaster knows how to deal with it in some capacity. But at the same time, the Warmaster doesn't need to always be swamped in it. She doesn't need to suffer it every day, as she has more important things to do than push bits of paper around."

...So what is she saying, then? That you get someone to handle the paperwork for you? Because Mami already handles most of the bulk of it, you only get around five percent or something--

"A small amount, but nevertheless a small amount of the entire thing. Which means you had to deal with a substantial pile that you didn't necessarily have to look at." Vintage nods. "Have Tomoe Mami give you the most important ones, and let her handle the rest. Then, have her report to you at the end of every day for anything that needs to be brought to your attention - be it a problematic client, or supplies not coming in as fast as they should be. Anything that needs your authorization.

"If this is done regularly enough, you'll establish a routine where all the important decisions you need to make will be on your table in the morning, and all the other, less important ones you can mull over later - when you're relaxed enough to think clearly, and in the presence of someone who has all the figures you need to make a decision."

...Huh. That...well, that doesn't sound so bad.

"It took me half my tour of duty as Warmaster to figure that out on my own." Vintage makes another face, this one eerily similar to Noriko's own expression of extreme distaste. "Of course, now I'M the one having to deal with the bulk of the paperwork, so it's not as fun for me when I taught her the same thing, but..." She shrugs again, the epaulettes of her own greatcoat tinkling with the movement. "You'll be able to perform your other, more important duties much easier if you don't have the threat of paperwork looming over you all the time, like some sort of guillotine."

Yeah, that makes sense.

Wait. What other duties? Does she mean like, missions and such? Because you don't have a problem with those--

"Oh, no, not just those." Vintage blinks at you. "Other duties, like visiting other Officios to remake alliances or forge new ones. Handling social responsibilities of your Officio's home country and city. Ensuring the morale of each and every member of the Officio. Accompanying the Incubator whenever he sets out on an official trip to...wherever he's needed. Meting out judgement on sanctioned trials, and carrying out sentences." She blinks again. "...Hasn't anyone told you about these things?"

No! Well, some of those you've got an idea about, but the others...!

"..." Vintage matches your own sullen, panicked silence, before shaking her head. "W-well, I'm sure you'll learn quickly. It's not the most glamorous life, being a Warmaster, but you will be in the spotlight and there'll be so much to do. Even when all you want is to be is a Magical Girl again." She smiles brightly, most likely in an attempt to cheer you up. "Anyway! Is there anything you'd like to ask me, then?"

By the way, every magical girl in MGNQ has doraemon inventory. If I ever gather the leverage and guts to make some sort of a difficulty chart of learning individual new things with magic, bag of holding effect would be the first thing anyone learns. Even Kharn could do it. It ust mostly has joke value.
Common sense says that normal inventories can be accessed by other people, though.

I seem to recall Deculture put that as the limit for this quest. So Chiaki can store objects the weight and size of a battleship in her shield, but she unfortunately cannot store the entire moon there (that would certainly be a way to defeat the First Officio).

However it does seem like it could work as an effective weapon. I think it was even mentioned that when Chiaki pulled out the container with Tiny Pete, she crushed a car in the process.

So it seems that Chiaki really could bludgeon things by summoning absurdly huge objects from her hammerspace and dropping them on people. Especially since we recently got that bonus from Braids when it comes to pulling items from the shield.

Granted, summoning a battleship in say an office building would not exactly be subtle. And QB might get rather upset at the rebuilding costs of this type of fighting.

Pretty sure he put a battleship in some Q&A but I might be wrong.

But yeah, its common sense for it to have some limit, or Chiaki really could win battles by just putting buildings, mountains, moons, suns and so on into her hammerspace.

Pretty sure the battleship was the biggest Homura summons in anime, so thats what Decu said was the biggest here (I am pretty sure).

Ofcourse, he might have changed his mind. I admit Chiaki putting the entire moon in her shield has a certain appeal to it.

Then go somewhere clearly alone.

Then suddenly pull their bodies out and touch them with the soulgems and instant reinforcements.

Still reeling from the list of watch-wearing dildo duties that Vintage had just rattled off, you're barely able to nod at her question. Y-yeah. Yeah, you have a few questions to ask her. While you'd much rather curl up into a ball in a corner somewhere and scream your lungs out from the hand that Fate had cruelly dealt you, you have enough wits about you to realize that this was indeed a rare opportunity. A rare chance to ask what you've always wanted to know about the First, ever since you heard them being talked about in hushed tones.

"Well, ask away, then!" Vintage grins. "I'll answer to the best of my ability!"

You take a deep breath.

"What's it like up there? On the moon?"

The Equerry's smile fades somewhat, but only a little. "Oh, hah! I get this question all the time! Well, it's--"

"--Is it out of this world?"

Silence. Stark, cold silence, as the eldest Karasawa sister works her jaw up and down in stunned silence, before finally closing it.

"...I see." Vintage narrows her eyes at you. "You've been holding that back for the longest time, haven't you? Waited all your life to ask that?"

No. ...Yes.

The Equerry of the most powerful Officio in the world lets out a sigh, before shaking her head, snorting softly. "Yes, well. I don't blame you. I'd probably have done the same, in your place. Still, it kind of feels..."

Lame?

"Kind of. Anyway." She shrugs. "It's not really all that fun, after the novelty of low gravity wears thin. It's climate controlled, for one, but they never really get it right so sometimes it's too cold, other times it's too hot." Another face of distaste. "And there's literally nothing to see other than a few rocks, some craters, and...well, that thing hovering in the dark side of the moon. Which we often have to go out and inspect from time to time, and it's never as exciting as it sounds."

[1/2]

Really? But you thought, well, a moon base would be more fun than that, more entertaining--

"It's a facility, not an amusement park." Vintage cuts you off now, the huffy tone in her voice reminding you of a particularly healthy Callidus. "There is literally nothing to do except to watch, and observe, and ocassionally be called down to provide assistance. In which case, everyone PRAYS they'll get picked for planetfall. Anything to get off that fucking rock for an entire day, or even an hour - and actually have the company of other people than fucking vegans or uppity nudists or even annoying sadomasochists who grovel at your feet and beg you to spank them with some sort of spiked ping-pong racket!"

Vintage looks blearily at you, before shaking her head. "...No, no. Nothing like that. No matter what I say, we are still the First. The chosen of the Incubators' progenitor. The universe's only hope of salvation. We're just..." A sigh escapes her lips as her shoulders droop. "...it just doesn't help, being cooped up with each other like that. It's driving me crazy. Probably already did."

...Does she regret it then? Being a Warmaster? Being accepted into the First?

"No, and no." The Equerry smiles, but it's a lonely, tired smile. Older. "Yes, it's hard. More often than not, it's as thankless as it is violent, and dangerous, and harrowing. But I wouldn't dream of trading away those bloody, tiresome years wearing the hat for anything." She reaches up with a tiny hand to adjust your own hat, centering its brim - and you could feel her run a thumb over the stitching. "You find out who you truly are, wearing that hat. You find your limits, and if you're willing to do whatever it takes to exceed them.

[2/3]

"As for being in the First..." It's here that she chuckles. "Well, no comment. But I will say that it's nice to be able to eat real food - the ones that come in plates and bowls, not the sort you squeeze out of tubes."

...That sounds horrible.

"More than you know, I assure you." Vintage murmurs darkly. "Replacing my tube of miso with speckled beige acryclic...you'll have your just desserts, Tenko, and no mistake."

The both of you continue your tour in relative silence, with Vintage considerably a bit less talkative with teaching you how this particular room was relevant to her, or how this particular bathroom stall was infamous for a certain Incident that apparently involved an oversized mail-order back massager, some peanut butter, and someone's trained Caucasian Shepherd. Instead, she simply stopped by these places, staring at them in cold silence, before nodding at you and moving on.

It took the both of you thirty minutes to reach Kyuubey's Office - Vintage did mention that she wanted to check it out - and as soon as you spy the white-painted double doors leading to the mutant cat's habitat is when you also see the Incubator himself, sitting right in the middle of your path.

"Ah, Karasawa. Right on the dot, as you promised." Kyuubey gets up off of his haunches, stretching briefly before padding closer to the both of you. "Thank you for bringing Matsuda here. I couldn't exactly pull her out of there without attracting undue suspicion."

What? What the hell's going on?

"Don't mention it, Kyuubey. Needs must, and all that." Vintage waves a hand. "Sorry. I'm sure you noticed, but I took the time to look around. The Warmaster here was kind enough to lend me her ear while I reminisced." She smiles at you, then down at the mutant cat. "Everyone's busy downstairs of course, no doubt listening to Takane-san doing a whole lot of damage to her throat with those beastly death metal songs."

Kyuubey nods. "I see. Well, we don't have much time, then." The doors to Kyuubey's Office swings open, completely on their own accord. "Now, Matsuda, if you'll step this way--"

It's not that easy, there isn't a necessary conection between the three stooges and the fragments.

If there is, though, then B raids is of course Moemure, what Chiaki now calls Murderface is the armored fragment(whose circumastances are weird to the point where it may have been just a projection of Chiaki's fear, what with the last timeline thing), Ribbon homu is dildoes, and the last mirror is empty because it's for the barrier Murderface, who won, and is the current Chiaki's base.

Your first instinct is to draw the weapon closest at hand, aim it at someone, and loudly demand answers before you blow someone's fucking kneecaps out. And you very nearly did it, too - had it not been for your second instinct of standing absolutely still and making no movement before you do something stupid catching up with the first, punching THAT instinct right in the kidneys, and then beating it to the parts of your brain that decides what your body actually does in that split second.

Of course, it doesn't completely stop you from verbally lashing out at the Incubator and Equerry in front of you, your questions spat with equal amounts of incredulity and disbelieving hatred.

WHAT THE FUCK IS GOING ON? What is their game? In your own fucking Officio? Just after your official ratification?

What the hell is this? So, was the fucking tour earlier just a distraction, or what? What's this about attracting undue attention? WHAT THE FUCK IS IN KYUUBEY'S OFFICE?

AND WHO THE FUCK IS SHADOWING YOU, RIGHT IN YOUR OWN FUCKING BUILDING?

"..." Both Kyuubey and Vintage glance at each other for a long moment, before the Equerry herself smiles and steps back, both hands raised in the universal symbol of 'this has nothing to do with me'. Kyuubey meanwhile steps forward, shaking his own head. Stepping towards you, near enough that you could conceivably lift your leg and stomp the little bastard's brains out with your heel.

"Before anything else, Matsuda, let me say that I'm very proud to see you being able to rein in your temper when it comes to surprises like this. Granted, your language still needs work, but I believe--"

We only know for sure that its not Homucifer because Dildoes claimed that Homucifer was somehow "blocked" from interfering.

Dildoes even gets alarmed when Chiaki mentions Homucifer, and only calms when she hears it was just during a seeing an in a recording.

So the one in the 4th mirror cannot be Homucifer. Who is it then? We have no idea, but the winged fragment is the obvious answer given that its the one Chiaki-type that has not made an appearance.

However it could well be that the 4th mirror represents something else. Heck, it might be that the 4th mirror is somehow Chiaki herself or something and it will get an image when Chiaki regains her memories or whatever.

Right now, we can just speculate.

"...I believe that you are well on your way to developing the necessary skills of diplomacy that your role requires." Kyuubey finishes, as if you hadn't just cut him off with a snarl. "Now, before we answer your questions, I want you to take a couple of deep breaths, alright? And unclench your hands, please. No one is your enemy here. Not me, not Karasawa, and certainly not Hanegawa over there, in the shadows."

...What? What the fuck is he talking about? Midori? But you left Midori back at the hall, with Kyoko and Sayaka! Whoever's in the shadows, it's probably one of Kyuubey's flunkies, or--

You glare down at the white furry creature, before taking a deep breath. Then another. And another.

...Alright, now what?

"Now we explain why we went through all this trouble bringing you here, while everyone's enjoying themselves downstairs." Vintage smiles. "For the record, I did want you to take me on that tour, Warmaster. And it would've been perfect, had it not been for your...joke, earlier." She chuckles. "Well, it was still a nice trip down memory lane. Besides that, though, Kyuubey wanted an opportunity to share something with you - something that only Incubators and their most trusted Warmasters know."

"Something that needs to be divulged right after the formal ceremony itself," Kyuubey cuts in. "I apologize for the short notice, Matsuda, but there really was no other opportunity. Better now, while everyone else is preoccupied for the time being. Otherwise, we risk this getting out, and we're not quite ready for that yet."

...Fine. Okay. Sure. It's...something super important. You get that.

And you'll probably play along with that too. Not without argument, but yeah.

Now, as for the tail they pinned on you earlier--

"It wasn't us, Matsuda." Kyuubey blinks at you. "Why would I want my own Warmaster followed in my own building?" He shakes his head. "Call her out yourself, if you don't believe me." He nods towards the corridor. "See the third pillar on the left? She's hiding behind it."

"I nearly didn't catch her myself," Vintage remarks, pulling out what looks like a peanut from some inner pocket in her sleeve and carefully feeding it to Reginald. "I was waiting for you to catch on, actually."

What? There? But you don't see anythi--

...

"Midori?" You couldn't help but say her name as she slowly moves out from behind the pillar, arms raised in surrender. A look of embarrassed, absolute guilt on her face.

"H-Hi, sempai." Midori smiles weakly, a single drop of sweat making its way down her cheek. "I...um. I'm sorry."

How do you react?

PROSE MAGICA

Prose Magica: The Ballad of the Seventeenth Part 20

"What - exactly - is the Ymir Protocol?"

Odette asked the question clear and blunt, locking eye with the incubator. For the first time in many years, she saw Fubey's eyes go wide with... something she couldn't quite place. Surprise? Shock? Fear, even?

"I'm afraid that is classified informa-"

At the sound of rustling paper, Fubey stopped. From her pocket, Odette pulled out a crumpled piece of paper, flattened it, then placed it on the incubator's desk. It was a standard termination order, neatly filled out in the incubator's own hand and stamped with the seal of the Seventeenth Officio. The order had been given to a one Fennel Vance, its target being none other than Odette Brighton. The only cause given was 'Protocol 81 - Ymir'.

"Fubey, I've been contracted for seven years now, don't pull that shit on me," the Eversor growled, her finger tapping the form. "I'm giving you a chance to explain yourself before we have another incident on our hands. What is the Ymir Protocol?"

The incubator refrained from answering her directly - instead he let out a short, exasperated sigh and pointed to one of the two sofa chairs in front of his desk. "Please have a seat," he directed her, before opening a desk drawer with his moustache-hand. "Would you care for a drink?"

"I- What? No," Odette shook her head in confusion after taking her seat. "Listen-"

"Are you sure?" The incubator asked, brandishing a bottle of Harrison's whiskey and a pair of tumblers. "It's quite good."

"Fubey."

Fubey shrugged - or as close as he could get to a shrug with his tiny, chubby shoulders - as he poured himself a glass. "Suit yourself."

File: odette_colour.png (615 KB, 1023x682)

Odette stared, stunned by the sight of her employer indulging himself. She had never seen him drink, but at the same time, she had to admit it wasn't entirely unexpected. Fubey had always been the type to fall into depressed slumps rather easily.

"Didn't know you drank," she remarked.

"I believe we've known each other long enough to stop keeping secrets," the chubby cat said, before taking his first sip. He let out a heavy breath, then asked again, "You're quite sure that you don't want any?"

"I'm sure."

Odette swore she heard a muted "Hrmph" come from the incubator as he set the glass down. "Where to begin," he murmured, trying desperately not to make eye contact with his charge. "The Ymir Protocol, to put it simply, is a contingency plan. Should your mental state, ah, deteriorate to the point where witch transformation is imminent, well, ah..."

"You kill me," Odette filled in the blank.

Fubey nodded silently -almost sheepishly- as he took another sip. "To put it bluntly, yes. In its current state, we-... I believed that our Officio would suffer immense losses in the case that you, as they say, 'Witch Out'. The loss of life would far outweigh any potential gain."

"So you retire me," she said, choosing her words a bit more carefully, "before I reach that point."

"Precisely."

Odette's composure slipped for a moment, lacing her next words with venom. "But I never did, did I?"

"I- No. No you did not," the Fubey answered. He couldn't bring himself to look anywhere but into his drink. "The order was rash and I wish with every fibre of my being that I could erase my moment of thoughtlessness. The day after Miss Vance was given the assignment, I tried contacting her to repeal the order. However, by that time she had vanished. Now that we know you were her primary target... I suppose I gave her exactly what she wanted."

>> ☐ archivalfag 09/05/14(Fri)16:45:01 No.34652924

Odette wanted to say something. She wanted to tell him how much of a load of bullshit that was, how she would quit the Officio forever, and yet... She knew he had a point. The Seventeenth wasn't exactly the toughest on the block, and she knew it. It was exactly the kind of decision she had been trained to make. She didn't want to admit it, but she knew she would have done the same thing in Fubey's position.

The silver-haired girl closed her eye and pressed her palm against her face as an exasperated sigh escaped her lips. "You fucking idiot..."

"Yes, thank you," the incubator muttered. "I apologize and am prepared to take whatever measures necessary to make amends, if possible."

"I- Fubey, listen-" Odette stammered, trying to sort out her emotions and speak at the same time. Slowly, she stood and reached out, clenching her fist, then relaxing it, as if about to retract it at any moment. Finally, she let out a long breath and held her hand out-stretched. "Call us even?"

Fubey looked at the hand, then back up at Odette. "Two years of poor Warmastering against one assassination attempt?" He asked, a hint of amusement colouring his words. With one of his moustache-appendages, he took Odette's hand and shook it lightly. "One of us is getting a bargain, but I can not for the life of me tell whom..."

Odette smirked and sunk back into her seat. "I'll take that drink now," she said. "But just one. I, uh, I'm going out with Lotte in a few hours."

Fubey laughed softly to himself and did as she asked, handing her a glass. "I must say, I am rather surprised. Pleased," he said, "but surprised. I did not expect you to take this so well."

"Turns out spending nine days hanging from a tree gives you a lot of time to think," the Eversor replied. "The last thing we need around here is more bullshit from either of us. I was serious when I said I wanted to make things right this time. No more grudges. No more secrets."

"I dare say, that almost sounds too good to be true," Fubey mused. "But if that is the case, there is one more thing I wished to speak to you about. A proposition."

"Shoot," Odette said, before taking a noisy sip of the whiskey. It burned her throat, forcing her to let out a wet hack. "Nope, still can't stand it..."

"Should the Warmaster decline your offer to become her Equerry or if you were to rethink it, I would ask you to consider becoming my personal aide," he said, bowing his head slightly - a gesture that only served to show off his multiple chins in place of a neck. "I would be honoured to have someone of your skill acting as my hand."

'I thought Holly and Molly were your aides."

"To a degree, yes," the incubator replied, taking another sip. "But I could certainly use someone who could act directly when necessary. There are a number of matters that could already use your attention."

Odette let out a long breath, leaning her head back against the chair as she thought. Though, as she did, she couldn't help but realize that there wasn't much to think about. Being Equerry could only let her do so much, but to be the incubator's personal aide? Odette had heard the position referred to as a 'Hatless Warmaster' before, and she couldn't exactly disagree with the term.

"I'll think about it," Odette finally answered. "After my vacation, of course. I mean, assuming the offer will still be open when I get back."

"Of course."

The former Warmaster couldn't help but smile and quietly giggle to herself . "I guess that's that then," she said, bringing her glass to her lips again and drank... then promptly spat it all back into the glass. "Nope. Can't do it."

"Joe baby, trust me. I know what I'm doing here."

The green-haired woman spoke into the phone with a tone just on the edge of frantic. She leaned back in her recliner, twirling her black sunhat around her finger again and again. She was called Prime; the first, the original, the leader of a leaderless organization.

"-no, sorry, bad choice of words," she said, giggling slightly. She spoke her words at rapid-fire speed with a light Southern accent, never stammering or tripping over herself. "I know you don't trust me, Joe. I don't trust you either! That's why we have a good business relationship! Mutual mistrust makes the world go round, sweetie. But, listen, hun, this ain't my first rodeo, alright? You gotta understand-"

The apartment around her was a cluttered, disorganized mess. Another green-haired girl wearing hot pants and stockings with a black waistcoat over a striped dress shirt sat on a sofa to one side of the Prime, anxiously shuffling and reshuffling a deck of cards. Curiously, a pair of short black devil horns jutted out from beneath her hair, like a pair of tiny mountains emerging from a forest canopy. The name given to her was Mathilda Herzog, but everyone had come to call her simply Tilly.

"Fine, finefinefine, we'll speed things up," said Prime after being interrupted. "You want two weeks, I'll give you two weeks, but I'm tellin' you right now, it's gon' be messy. Someone traces things back to you... or - heaven forbid - the little princess... Well, that ain't gonna be my fault, now. We understand each other, hon?"

To Tilly's right sat a third, taller girl, fiddling with her phone in one hand and dropping a slice of pizza into her mouth with the other. She looked nearly identical to Prime, save for a fedora and necktie in place of Prime's sunhat and ribbon.

A rustling and hissing exuded from her bosom before a small, scaly head slipped out from between her shirt buttons. The snake darted out, snatched a dangling piece of pepperoni, then disappeared beneath her top again. The snake charmer's current name was Ingrid Pech, an arbitrary designation given for convenience, same as the rest. The Black Mamba hiding in her cleavage, on the other hand, was called Lenny, and that was its true name because snakes have no use for pseudonyms.

"Well it ain't gonna go as well as the last time, but we barely had to do anything there," Prime continued, shooting a glare at the two girls to her right. "I mean, we already lost one of our big girls inside, and the one left is dumb as a bag o' rocks. Dedicated, sure. Passionate, even! But stupid, so she's only gonna get us so far. Not everyone can play the game like Elly... Yeah. I understand. So how's the princess doin', anyways?"

Across the coffee table from Tilly and Ingrid, a fourth girl sat cross-legged directly in front of the enormous television, her eyes blood-shot and transfixed to the screen as she flipped through a channel every second.

Unlike the others, she wore a traditional two-piece business suit with a checkered tie and thick-rimmed glasses. Her unkempt hair was a darker shade of green than the other three, decorated with a pair of pink streaks framing her face.

If one paid close enough attention to the rapidly changing channels, they would notice that a fair number looked suspiciously like security camera feeds and private communications. Her name was Shion Ranko, the house communications and information expert.

"Aw, that's adorable!" Prime laughed. "Call me if that little slut wants to start taking her job a little more seriously, m'kay? Tell her I said hi! Alright, gotta go, sweetie! Talk to you later! Buh-bye~"

Prime let out a long, heavy groan as she hung up the phone and squeezed the bridge of her nose. By the time her hand dropped from her face, Prime's good humour returned and she began to address the other girls in the room.

"Alright, ladies, you all heard! As of now, we're officially in crunch mode, so put on your big girl pants, and- Oh for god's sake," she said, gesturing toward Shion, "one of you wake her up."

With two fingers, Tilly picked a card out of her deck and threw it with a practised hand. The card spun through the air before a corner lodged itself firmly in the back of the spellbound girl's head. For the first time in hours, Shion blinked, then slowly turned to face the other girls with bleary, distant eyes.

"Hrm?" She groaned, still half in a trance. A beat passed, then, "OW, FFFUCK!" She screeched, yanking the lightly bloodied card out of her scalp. "UNNECESSARY."

"But funny," Ingrid remarked, snickering.
